INTRODUCTION

PACCHIAROTTO, AND HOW HE WORKED IN DISTEMPER, WITH OTHER POEMS

THE Pacchiarotto volume was published in the summer of 1876, about eight months after The Inn Album. How far all the nineteen poems contained in it were written within this period, it is impossible to say. Hervé Riel certainly belongs to an earlier date, and it is possible that some of the others had been in Browning's desk for some time, awaiting an opportunity for publication; but there is no direct evidence to prove this. On the whole, the volume is remarkable for its abandonment of the dramatic or narrative note (though there are examples of both of these) in favour of the personal note, and especially for a quite unusual exhibition (unusual, that is, in Browning, not in the genus irritabile in general) of sensitiveness to criticism. During the course of his poetic life, Browning had suffered more than enough from inattention and want of comprehension on the part of his critics, and he had borne it in almost complete silence; but the recrudescence (due, no doubt, to such poems as Hohenstiel-Schwangan, Fifine, and Red Cotton Night-Cap Country) of the charges of perversity and obscurity seem at length to have exhausted his patience. So, after twenty-three stanzas of more than usually extravagant doggerel and outrageous rhymes, at the end of the poem which gives the volume its title he turns on his critics and rends them in good set terms.

INTRODUCTION

This sensitiveness to misunderstanding and to the dictation of critics is not confined, however, to the first poem. It appears also in the Epilogue and in such poems as At the Mermaid, House, and Shop, where he protests against the claim of the public to intrude into the private life of the poet. These must in any case belong to the same period as Pacchiarotto. Browning went freely into society, talked much, cultivated friendships and acquaintanceships, but all the time reserved large areas of thought and feeling on which he allowed no intrusion. Indeed he protected his inner self not less effectively by his sociability than Tennyson by his seclusion. As a general rule, he did this silently, without calling attention to it; but in this one volume he makes his claim to essential privacy once and for all.

The remaining poems call for no special collective notice. Hervé Riel, A Forgiveness, and Numpholeptos stand out above the rest as real additions to the higher, if not the highest, levels of Browning's work.

INTRODUCTION

PROLOGUE

The Prologue has no special relation to Pacchiarotto, but is the preface to the volume as a whole ; and, like several of the other prologues and epilogues to the successive volumes from The Ring and the Book onwards, its central thought refers to that love, which, though now behind a veil, was as dominant in the secret recesses of Browning's life and thought as it had been during his married life.

OF PACCHIAROTTO, AND HOW HE WORKED IN DISTEMPER

Giacomo Pacchiarotto (1474-1540) is a historical character, a painter of very minor merit at Siena in the sixteenth century. As Browning states in the second stanza, he is sometimes confounded with his fellow-citizen, Girolamo del Paccia, whose paintings, however, are of a higher order of merit. The incidents on which the poem is founded are historical. Pacchiarotto was of a revolutionary turn of mind, and a member of the society called the Bardotti (see ll. 214-225), which aimed at subverting the existing order of things. In 1535 his participation in sedition led to his being compelled to hide himself, and the Observantine monks concealed him in a tomb, in close proximity to a new-buried corpse, in the church of S. Giovanni. The story is told by Browning in a style of burlesque, heightened by extravagantly Hudibrastic rhymes, which are intended as a challenge to the critics, upon whom he falls in the final stanzas. It is not a poem of which Browning's admirers can be particularly proud, but the critics of the day were the last who had a right to complain of it.

INTRODUCTION

AT THE MERMAID : HOUSE : SHOP

The central thought inspiring this group of poems (which probably all belong to the same period of exasperated sensitiveness as Pacchiarotto itself) has been described in the general introduction to this volume. For the rest, they explain themselves.

PISGAH-SIGHTS

A pair of death-bed visions, belonging to no definable period, and having no special associations. In the second series of Selections (1880) the Prologue to La Saisiaz was added to them as "Pisgah-Sights, 3."

FEARS AND SCRUPLES

A parable—all the more striking because effectively concealed until the last moment—of some of the fundamental and perennial problems of theology. The occasion of its composition is not known.

NATURAL MAGIC : MAGICAL NATURE

A pair of love-poems, similar in tone and character to those which appeared subsequently in Jocoseria, Ferishtah, and Asolando. There is a difference, easily recognizable but not easily described, between them and the poems of the Italian period; but their brightness and freshness are remarkable in a poet of sixty-four and upwards.

INTRODUCTION

BIFURCATION

A very characteristic little poem. In form it reminds one of the pair of thumb-nail sketches, similarly summed up in a single couplet, in Time's Revenges (vol. III. p. 292). In substance it is characteristic of Browning as taking a common problem, a conflict between love and duty, and placing it in a light which makes the conventional solutions questionable, if not false. It illustrates Browning's delight in approaching a subject from an unusual point of view.

NUMPHOLEPTOS

There is nothing to show the date of this poem, which in style seems rather earlier than 1876. The title (from the Greek) signifies one who is possessed by a passion for a nymph, a being of an alien, higher sphere, who exerts her domination over him without returning or being touched by his passion. Browning's commentary on the poem is given in a letter to Dr. Furnivall (Nicoll and Wise, Literary Anecdotes of the Nineteenth Century, i. 497):

"Is not the key to the meaning of the poem in its title—νυμφόληπτος [caught or entranced by a nymph], not γυναικεράστης [a woman-lover]? An allegory, that is, of an impossible ideal

object of love, accepted conventionally as such by a man who, all the while, cannot quite blind himself to the demonstrable fact that the possessor of knowledge and purity obtained without the natural consequences of obtaining them by achievement—not inheritance—such a being is imaginary, not real, a nymph and no woman; and only such an one would be ignorant of and surprised at the results of a lover's endeavour to emulate the qualities which the beloved is entitled to consider as pre-existent to earthly experience, and independent of its inevitable results.

“I had no particular woman in my mind; certainly never intended to personify wisdom, philosophy, or any other abstraction; and the orb, raying colour out of whiteness, was altogether a fancy of my own. The ‘seven spirits’ are in the Apocalypse, also in Coleridge and Byron: a common image.”

APPEARANCES : ST. MARTIN'S SUMMER

Two more love-poems, much of the same character as some of those which appeared in the original Men and Women, and are now included in Dramatic Lyrics.

HERVÉ RIEL

This fine ballad was the result of Browning's holidays at Croisic, near the mouth of the Loire, in 1866 and 1867. It bore the date, on its first appearance, of September 30, 1867. It was seen and praised by Sir J. Simeon (who died in 1870), and Mr. George Smith, the poet's publisher, endeavoured to secure it for the Cornhill Magazine; but Browning, in accordance with his usual practice, rejected the idea of publication in a periodical. In February, 1871, being anxious to contribute to the fund for the relief of the distress in Paris after the siege, he wrote to Mr. Smith, offering him the right of publishing, in the Pall Mall or Cornhill, this poem ("which I like better than most things I have done of late") for whatever sum his liberality might be disposed to give (see Browning's letter in Mrs. Orr's Life, p. 278). Mr. Smith responded with a cheque for a hundred guineas, which duly went to the distressed Parisians; and the poem appeared in the Cornhill Magazine for March, 1871. It was reprinted in the Pacchiarotto volume at Mr. Smith's particular request, and has since become one of the most popular and best known of Browning's poems. The facts upon which the ballad is based were found by Browning in the local traditions of Croisic, though they had escaped the notice of the historians of the great naval battle to which they were the sequel. Their historical truth, however, has been established by reference to the original records in Paris. In one respect Browning, by an oversight, varied the original story; for the reward which Hervé Riel asked and received was a permanent discharge, not a single day's holiday.

INTRODUCTION

A FORGIVENESS

Nothing appears to be known of the date or origin of this poem. It was selected by Browning himself in 1885 in reply to a request from

INTRODUCTION

Mr. Edmund Gosse for his choice of "four poems, of moderate length, which represent their writer fairly," as the representative of his narrative poetry (Wise, Letters of R. Browning, 2nd series, ii. 17); and most readers will approve his choice. The story (of which the setting is Spanish) is told concisely and forcibly, and the conclusion is thrillingly dramatic.

CENCIAJA

The origin of this poem is thus stated by Browning in a letter to Mr. Buxton Forman, Oct. 25, 1876 (Wise, Letters of R. Browning, i. 43):

"I got the facts from a contemporaneous account I found in a MS. volume containing the 'relation' of the Cenci affair—with other memorials of Italian crime—lent me by Sir J. Simeon, who published the Cenci narrative, with notes, in the series of the Philobiblon Society."

The title is in the nature of a pun. "Cenciaja" means "a bundle of rags," the suffix aia being, as Browning expressed it, "an accumulative yet depreciative termination," while at the same time it refers to Shelley's tragedy, The Cenci, to which it is, as it were, a footnote. The Italian proverb prefixed to it is paraphrased by Browning, "Every poor creature will be pressing into the company of his betters"; and he adds, "I used it to deprecate the notion that I intended anything of the kind."

Sir J. Simeon's article, from which Browning derived his facts, was published in vol. iv. of the papers of the Philobiblon Society (1857-8). That the poem was not written before 1871 is shown by its last line.

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI ON THE PRIVILEGE OF BURIAL

Filippo Baldinucci was the author of Notizie dei Professori del Disegno da Cimabue in qua (1681-1728), and the story which forms the basis of the present poem occurs in his account of the painter Buti, who flourished about 1600. As far as stanza xxxv Browning follows Baldinucci's narrative, the tone of which is naturally and frankly anti-Semite; but the rest of the poem is an imaginary sequel, in which the tables are turned on the Christians. Browning's sympathy with the oppressed Jews is shown more strikingly in Holy-Cross Day (vol. III. 385); the present poem is a much lighter and less dignified expression of it. It was written "while the earlier sheets were passing through the press" (Wise, Letters of R. Browning, i. 40), in other words, in the spring or early summer of 1876.

In response to criticism, Browning explained that in the misuse of the term "High Priest" (for "Rabbi") in stanza xxvi he was writing dramatically (the supposed narrator being an ignorant Tuscan), not in actual ignorance (Wise, ibid., 2nd series, ii. 61).

EPILOGUE

The Greek quotation is from Aristophanes (Plutus, 807), "and pitchers full of dark flower-

INTRODUCTION

flavoured wine"; and the reference in line 1 is, of course, to Mrs. Browning's Wine of Cyprus, stanza xxi. The poem makes part of the campaign against the critics which is the characteristic note of the Pacchiarotto volume, and so properly forms its epilogue.

LA SAISIAZ

Among the most intimate friends of Browning in London (though the acquaintanceship had its origin in Florence) was Miss Ann Egerton Smith. She was his constant companion at concerts, which, until her death, he attended on all possible occasions; and in the years 1874-77 she joined Browning and his sister in their summer holidays. The last of these was spent in a house called La Saisiaz, near Geneva, under Mt. Salève; and there, on September 14, Miss Smith died quite suddenly of heart-disease, under the circumstances described in the poem. The shock affected Browning deeply, and his emotion at once found vent in poetry. A few days before Miss Smith's death, the friends had been discussing the immortality of the soul, on which a "symposium" was then proceeding in the Nineteenth Century. Now the poet's mind naturally recurred to the subject with intensified fervour, and in less than two months the poem of La Saisiaz, which in the original edition bears at its end the date, November 9, 1877, was produced. Browning was at all times a rapid writer, and now his heart was full and his emotions stirred, so that his thoughts flowed out readily in a strong stream of verse, highly charged with feeling. The poem was published, with The Two Poets of Croisic, in the early summer of 1878.

INTRODUCTION

La Saisiaz has been quoted as evidence that Browning was not a believer in Christianity; but this is to misunderstand it. Prompted, no doubt, to some extent by the "symposium" mentioned above, he argues the question of the immortality of the soul on an a priori basis, deliberately leaving on one side the revelation of Christianity. Like Plato (also prompted thereto by the death of a beloved friend) and like many others since, he tests the doctrine of immortality on the principles of reason alone, and seeks to base on it arguments which may appeal to all reasoning persons, whatever may be their religious creed. How far he succeeds, may be seen in the poem itself: "So, I hope—no more than hope,—but hope—no less than hope." Philosophical poems are apt to suffer from the cold chill of thought, but here the poetry is charged with fresh and vivid emotion, which gives light and warmth to the reasoning. La Saisiaz is perhaps a poem to be read only when the mind is attuned to it, and, like all philosophical poems, it may suffer by the lapse of time and the changes of thought on the subject with which it deals; but to Browning's own generation it was a memorable and a helpful utterance.

INTRODUCTION

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

In this poem, which seems paired with La Saisiaz in order to relax the tension produced in the reader's mind by so highly emotional an argument on a subject of the profoundest importance, Browning was drawing (as in Hervé Riel) on the results of his researches into the local traditions of Croisic. The two poets had a real existence, though their verses were wholly forgotten long before Browning recalled them to life. The first, René Gentilhomme, was born in 1610; the second, Paul Desforgés-Maillard, flourished about 1735 (the date of the volume of poems by "the Demoiselle Malcrais de la Vigne" on which the story turns); both achieved temporary fame under the circumstances narrated by Browning; both speedily relapsed into obscurity. Browning, according to his custom, takes up the two stories, tells them as he finds them in the tradition, and then deduces somewhat unexpected morals from them.

EPILOGUE : "WHAT A PRETTY TALE YOU TOLD ME"

This epilogue, to which no title is attached, is based upon a poem in the Greek Anthology (vi. 54), by the epigrammatist of the Court of Justinian, Paulus Silentiarius. Browning has expanded its dozen lines into as many stanzas, and added his own application of it. There is no record to tell to whom (if to anyone) it was addressed.

INTRODUCTION

DRAMATIC IDYLS: FIRST SERIES

In 1878, after the publication of La Saisiaz, when the time came for the usual summer holiday, Browning once and for all abandoned the habit (hardly broken for seventeen years) of a visit to France, and, for the first time since the death of his wife, returned to Italy. On the way, he and his sister stayed for some time in a hotel at the top of the Splügen Pass, before moving on to Asolo and Venice; and here he was at work on the series of "Dramatic Idyls," which was published in the following year.

The title is not quite appropriate, for the poems are in fact narrative rather than dramatic. Some of them, such as Martin Relf, Ivàn Ivànovitch, and Ned Bratts in the first series, and Clive in the second, are dramatic in the sense that their interest lies in the representation of character in action, but they are not dramatic in form, nor even monologues such as many of the earlier "Dramatic Lyrics" or "Romances"; and the method throughout is narrative. The poet has a story to tell, and tells it, sometimes in his own words, sometimes in those of one of the actors; he is not engaged in letting a character develop itself in monologue or dialogue. The epithet "Dramatic" was probably chosen for the sake of its associations with the poet's earlier work ; while "Idyls" is a term which had been made familiar by Tennyson.

In manner, these poems break fresh ground ; for Browning's previous narrative poems were for the most part on a much larger scale, like Sordello or Red Cotton Night-Cap Country, and contained much analysis and commentary. The Idyls, on the contrary, are picturesque anecdotes, told in a swift and vivid manner which is reflected in their verse. In most cases, especially in the first series, the interest to Browning (and therefore to his readers) lies, no doubt, in the ethical problems which the stories raise ; but in others (notably Pheidippides, Echetlos, and Pan and Luna), it is merely the picturesque incident that attracts him. These, which are the most novel in manner, are also among the most beautiful and effective of the whole series, though Clive, in addition to the interest attaching to its hero, has a strikingly dramatic situation, and Ivàn Ivànovitch a poignant human thrill, which give them a high place among Browning's more popular poems.

MARTIN RELPH

This story, according to Mrs. Orr (Handbook, p. 309), who no doubt received her information from the poet himself, "embodies a vague remembrance of something read by Mr. Browning when he was himself a boy." Like Halbert and Hob and Ned Bratts, it is a study, or picture, of the workings of conscience. In the other two poems, the picture is of conscience working at a moment of crisis ; here, the crisis is past, an almost involuntary action in an instant of time, and conscience is ceaselessly at work on it during the rest of the man's life.

PHEIDIPPIDES

This is pure narrative, a versification and amplification of a story, of which part is told by Herodotus and part is a later addition. Herodotus (vi. 105) narrates how, when the Persians first invaded Attica, the Athenians sent a courier, named Pheidippides, to run to Sparta to demand aid ; how Pheidippides reached Sparta (a distance of some 120 miles) on the second day and received a dilatory answer ; and how in the course of his journey he met the god Pan in the mountains of Arcadia (not Parnes, as Browning tells it, which was not on the route between Athens and Sparta) and was charged with a message to the Athenians, reproaching them with their neglect of him, but promising them his help. Pausanias (i. 28, 4) tells the same story more briefly ; but in one of the dialogues attributed to Lucian (De lapsu in salutando, c. 2) is another story, which supplies the conclusion of the present poem : how that, after the battle of Marathon, Pheidippides was despatched to run to Athens with the news of the victory, and how, as he burst into the presence of the rulers of the city with the cry, " Rejoice, we are victorious," he dropped down dead with the word ; whence (as Browning says in ll. 113, 114) his word "Rejoice" (χαίρετε) became ever afterwards the common form of greeting among the Greeks.

INTRODUCTION

HALBERT AND HOB

The germ of this grim "idyl" also comes from Greek literature. Aristotle (Ethics, vii. 6), drily citing examples to prove that anger is a natural and spontaneous failing, briefly alludes (as though to a known story) to "the man who, being haled out by his son, bade him stop when he reached the door: for he too, he said, had haled his father just to that point." Browning has expanded this thumb-nail sketch into a picture of a very un-Hellenic character, and has added a conclusion of his own.

IVÀN IVÀNOVITCH

Ivàn Ivànovitch was one of the poems written at the top of the Splügen. The story is a common Russian one, with changed names and poetic amplification.

TRAY

Browning was always an ardent anti-vivisectionist, though he took no part in the public controversy otherwise than by the publication of this poem and of Arcades Ambo in the Asolando volume. In prose, he declared to Miss F. P. Cobbe: "I would rather submit to the worst of deaths, so far as pain goes, than have a single dog or cat tortured on pretence of sparing me a twinge or two" (quoted by Hall Griffin and Minchin, Life, p. 254).

NED BRATTS

This poem is based upon an anecdote told in Bunyan's Life and Death of Mr. Badman, concerning "one old Tod, that was hanged at Hartford" [Hertford]:

"At a summer assizes holden at Hartford, while the Judge was sitting upon the Bench, comes this old Tod into the Court, cloathed in a green suit, with his leathern girdle in his hand, his bosom open, and all in a dung sweat, as if he had run for his life; and being come in, he spake aloud as follows: 'My Lord,' said he, 'Here is the veriest rogue that breathes upon the face of the earth. I have been a thief from a child: when I was but a little one, I gave myself to rob orchards, and to do other such like wicked things, and I have continued a thief ever since. My Lord, there has not been a robbery committed this many years, within so many miles of this place, but I have been either at it or privy to it.' The Judge thought the fellow was mad, but after some conference with some of the Justices, they agreed to indict him; and so they did, of several felonious actions; to all of which he heartily confessed Guilty, and so was hanged with his wife at the same time."

Browning has connected the story with Bunyan, by transferring the scene to Bedford, during his imprisonment there, and by ascribing the old reprobate's confession to the influence of Bunyan's words and of his book ; and he has dressed up the whole with a boisterous manner of speech, suitable to Ned Bratts and his wife Tab.

INTRODUCTION

The poem was written, like Ivàn Ivànovitch, at the Splügen, in the summer of 1878.

DRAMATIC IDYLS : SECOND SERIES

The second series of Dramatic Idyls followed the first at a year's interval, in 1880. Echetlos, Mulékkeh, and especially Clive, are fully equal to the standard of their predecessors, and Pan and Luna is a charming little fancy ; but Pietro of Abano and Doctor —, which take up more than half the volume, can hardly be considered worthy of their author, though characteristic of him in certain moods.

ECHETLOS

This is a companion poem to Pheidippides, another legend connected with the battle of Marathon. The story is told by Pausanias (i. 32, 4) :

“The people of Marathon worship the men who fell in the battle, naming them heroes. . . . Now it befell, they say, that in the battle there was present a man of rustic aspect and dress, who slaughtered many of the barbarians with a plough, and vanished after the fight. When the Athenians inquired of the god, the only answer he vouchsafed was to bid them honour the hero Echetlæus” (Fraser’s translation).

The name means “the holder of the plough-

INTRODUCTION

share." In the Poekilé, or Painted Colonnade, at Athens there was a celebrated wall-painting, by Micon, of the battle of Marathon ; and in this, according to Pausanias (i. 15, 4) the most conspicuous figures were "Callimachus, who had been chosen to command the Athenians" (Browning's "Kallimachos polemarch"), "Miltiades, one of the generals" (the actual commander on the day of battle), "and a hero called Echetus."

CLIVE

In Domett's diary (quoted by Hall Griffin and Minchin, Life, p. 268), the following account of this poem is given from Browning's own mouth :

"Referring to that most vivid and thoroughly realistic narrative of Lord Clive and his duel, Browning told me he heard it first from Mrs. Jameson, soon after his marriage. Mrs. Jameson said she had it from Lord Lansdowne, to whom it had been told by Macaulay. The idea of what Clive would have done, had his antagonist (after Clive's pistol was accidentally discharged, leaving Clive at his mercy) generously given him his life, at the same time reiterating his innocence of the cheating Clive had charged him with, instead of throwing down his pistol and confessing it—all this, he said, was merely his own invention, which he had no authority for, or for attributing it to Clive himself. 'But what else,' said he, could such a man as Clive have done? He could not have reasserted the charge, unless as a calumniator, for no one would have believed a man so magnanimous could have been capable of cheating at cards."

INTRODUCTION

The duel is briefly mentioned by Macaulay, but without details ; but it is described at length in Malcolm's biography of Clive (1836). Browning (whether consciously or not is unknown) has departed in some respects from the facts as there recorded. When Clive's shot failed, his adversary first bade him ask for his life, which he did ; but when he further required him to declare that the accusation of cheating was false, Clive refused, in the manner described in the poem. His adversary thereupon threw away his pistol, declaring that Clive must be mad ; but he did not confess that the charge was a true one. Clive's declaration to the bystanders in the poem is so far in accordance with facts that he was very unwilling to allow any reference to the occurrence afterwards.

MULÉYKEH

An old Arabian story, told by Browning as a pure piece of narrative, with its moral unaltered.

PIETRO OF ABANO

Pietro of Abano (a town near Padua) was a historical personage, professor of medicine at Padua and a physician of very high repute (1246-1320). He was popularly supposed to be a magician, and narrowly escaped burning at the hands of the Inquisition by dying before he was arrested. Browning does not pretend to make more than a doggerel lilt of the legend which is here associated with him. Similar stories of a whole career being lived, in imagination or dream, in a moment of time are not uncommon in the collections of improving anecdotes which provided materials for mediæval sermons.

INTRODUCTION

DOCTOR —

This, again, is a poem in a lighter vein, not to be judged except as a jeu d'esprit. Like more than one of the poems in the succeeding volume, Jocoseria, it is derived from a Hebrew legend.

PAN AND LUNA

A delicate poetic fancy, based upon three lines of Virgil (Georg. iii. 391–393) :

“Munere sic niveo lanae, si credere dignum est,
Pan deus Arcadiae captam te, Luna, fefellit,
In nemora alta vocans ; nec tu aspernata vocantem.”

ADDITIONAL POEMS

Three poems, written in that part of Browning's life which preceded The Ring and the Book, which have not previously been included in any collected edition of his works, were printed at the end of volume III. Seven more, belonging to the later years of his life, are given here. Browning was not a prolific writer of occasional verse, and of the few such compositions which have appeared in print some, for various reasons, he certainly would not have wished to perpetuate, and should never be reprinted. Those which are printed here are at least not unworthy of memory, and include some lines which his admirers would be sorry to forget.

All of them will be found also in the Browning Society's Papers and in Nicoll and Wise's Literary Anecdotes of the Nineteenth Century, vol. i. (1895). Their original appearances will be recorded in the following notes.

“OH LOVE, LOVE !”

The first two of these poems are translations. The following lines are a translation of Euripides' Hippolytus, ll. 525-544, and were contributed by Browning to a little handbook on the Greek poet by Prof. J. P. Mahaffy, in 1879.

“THE BLIND MAN TO THE MAIDEN SAID”

These lines are a translation of a poem in a German tale entitled The Hour will Come, by Wilhelmine von Hillern. An English version of it was made by Miss Clara Bell, which appeared in 1879; and for this Browning's lines were written. His name was not attached to it, but acknowledgments are made “to the kindness of a friend.”

GOLDONI

The five remaining poems are all sonnets—the only examples of Browning's work in this form that appear among his works, with the exception of the one printed in vol. III. p. 417, and the three appended to Jochanan Hakkadosh. The sonnet was not a natural or congenial form of composition with him, and it is only in these occasional poems that he employs it.

INTRODUCTION

The origin of the Goldoni sonnet is given by himself in a letter to Dr. Furnivall of Dec. 3, 1883 (Wise, Letters of R. Browning, ii. 31):

"They are going to unveil and display here a monument erected to Goldoni, and the committee did me the honour to request a word or two for insertion in an Album to which the principal men of letters in Italy have contributed. I made a sonnet, which they please to think so well of that they preface the work with it."

Mrs. Bronson (Cornhill Magazine, Feb. 1902, p. 10) adds that the sonnet was written very rapidly, and only two or three trifling alterations were made in the original copy.

The sonnet was printed in the Pall Mall Gazette, Dec. 8, 1883.

HELEN'S TOWER

This sonnet was written as far back as 1870, but was not published until it appeared in the Pall Mall Gazette twenty days after the Goldoni poem, on Dec. 28, 1883. It was written at the invitation of the Earl of Dufferin, for the tower which he built at Clandeboye in memory of his mother, and bears the date April 26, 1870. Tennyson's lines on the same occasion are printed in his Tiresias and other Poems (1885). It is strange that Browning should not have included so fine a poem in any of his subsequent volumes.

THE FOUNDER OF THE FEAST

In 1884 Browning was prevailed on to contribute to two memorial albums. The first testifies to his love of music and to his frequent attendance at concerts which has been mentioned in the introduction to La Saisiaz. It was contributed to the Album presented to Mr. Arthur Chappell, the organiser of the Popular Concerts at St. James's Hall, in 1884, and was reprinted in The World for April 16 in that year. It is a sonnet by courtesy only, since it contains fifteen lines, a regular octet being followed by a septet in place of a sestet.

INTRODUCTION

THE NAMES

Written for the Shakspearean Show-Book published in May 1884, in connection with the Shakspearean Show held at the Albert Hall in aid of the Hospital for Women in the Fulham Road. It was reprinted in the Pall Mall Gazette for May 29.

WHY I AM A LIBERAL

Browning never took an active part in politics, and this statement of his political faith, composed in response to an invitation from Mr. Andrew Reid, and published by him in a volume with the same title issued in 1885 in support of the then waning Liberal cause, appeared only a few months before he ceased to support the official Liberal party. The principles expressed in it, however, had no reference to the temporary policies of any party, and remained his principles to the end of his life.

VOL. IX

PROLOGUE

I

O THE old wall here ! How I could pass
Life in a long Midsummer day,
My feet confined to a plot of grass,
My eyes from a wall not once away !

II

And lush and lithe do the creepers clothe Yon wall I watch, with a wealth of green
Its bald red bricks draped, nothing loth,
In lappets of tangle they laugh between.

III

Now, what is it makes pulsate the robe ?
Why tremble the sprays ? What life o'erbrims
The body,—the house, no eye can probe,— Divined as, beneath a robe, the limbs ?

IV

And there again ! But my heart may guess
Who tripped behind ; and she sang perhaps :
So, the old wall throbbed, and its life's excess
Died out and away in the leafy wraps.

Wall upon wall are between us : life
And song should away from heart to heart.
I—prison-bird, with a ruddy strife
At breast, and a lip whence storm-notes start—

VI

Hold on, hope hard in the subtle thing
That 's spirit : though cloistered fast, soar free ;
Account as wood, brick, stone, this ring
Of the rueful neighbours, and—forth to thee !

OF PACCHIAROTTO AND HOW HE WORKED IN DISTEMPER

I

QUERY : was ever a quainter
Crotchet than this of the painter
Giacomo Pacchiarotto
Who took "Reform" for his motto?

II

He, pupil of old Fungaio, 5
Is always confounded (heigho !)
With Pacchia, contemporaneous
No question, but how extraneous
In the grace of soul, the power
Of hand,—undoubted dower 10
Of Pacchia who decked (as we know, My Kirkup !) San Bernardino,
Turning the small dark Oratory
To Siena's Art-laboratory,
As he made its straitness roomy 15
And glorified its gloomy,
With Bazzi and Beccafumi.
(Another heigho for Bazzi :
How people miscall him Razzi !)

III

This Painter was of opinion 20
Our earth should be his dominion
Whose Art could correct to pattern
What Nature had slurred—the slattern !

OF PACCHIAROTTO

And since, beneath the heavens,
Things lay now at sixes and sevens, 25
Or, as he said, sopra-sotto—
Thought the painter Pacchiarotto Things wanted reforming, therefore.
“Wanted it”—ay, but wherefore?
When earth held one so ready 30
As he to step forth, stand steady
In the middle of God’s creation
And prove to demonstration
What the dark is, what the light is,
What the wrong is, what the right is, 35
What the ugly, what the beautiful,
What the restive, what the dutiful,
In Mankind profuse around him?
Man, devil as now he found him,
Would presently soar up angel 40
At the summons of such evangel,
And owe—what would Man not owe
To the painter Pacchiarotto?
Ay, look to thy laurels, Giotto!

IV

But Man, he perceived, was stubborn, 45
Grew regular brute, once cub born;
And it struck him as expedient—
Ere he tried to make obedient
The wolf, fox, bear and monkey,
By piping advice in one key— 50
That his pipe should play a prelude
To something heaven-tinged not hell-hued,
Something not harsh but docile,
Man-liquid, not Man-fossil—
Not fact, in short, but fancy. 55
By a laudable necromancy
He would conjure up ghosts—a circle

AND HOW HE WORKED IN DISTEMPER

Deprived of the means to work ill
Should his music prove distasteful
And pearls to the swine go wasteful. 60
To be rent of swine—that was hard !
With fancy he ran no hazard :
Fact might knock him o'er the mazzard.

So, the painter Pacchiarotto
Constructed himself a grotto 65
In the quarter of Stalloreggi—
As authors of note allege ye.
And on each of the whitewashed sides of it
He painted—(none far and wide so fit
As he to perform in fresco)— 70
He painted nor cried quiesco
Till he peopled its every square foot
With Man—from the Beggar barefoot
To the Noble in cap and feather :
All sorts and conditions together. 75
The Soldier in breastplate and helmet
Stood frowningly—hail fellow well met—
By the Priest armed with bell, book and candle.
Nor did he omit to handle
The Fair Sex, our brave distemperer : 80
Not merely King, Clown, Pope, Emperor—
He diversified too his Hades
Of all forms, pinched Labour and paid Ease,
With as mixed an assemblage of Ladies.

VI

Which work done, dry,—he rested him, 85
Cleaned pallet, washed brush, divested him
Of the apron that suits frescanti,
And, bonnet on ear stuck jaunty,
This hand upon hip well planted,

OF PACCHIAROTTO

That, free to wave as it wanted, 90
He addressed in a choice oration
His folk of each name and nation,
Taught its duty to every station.
The Pope was declared an arrant
Impostor at once, I warrant. 95
The Emperor—truth might tax him
With ignorance of the maxim
“Shear sheep but nowise flay them !”
And the Vulgar that obey them,
The Ruled, well-matched with the Ruling, 100
They failed not of wholesome schooling
On their knavery and their fooling.
As for Art—where ’s decorum ? Pooh-poohed it is
By Poets that plague us with lewd ditties,
And Painters that pester with nudities ! 105

VII

Now, your rater and debater
Is baulked by a mere spectator
Who simply stares and listens
Tongue tied, while eye nor glistens
Nor brow grows hot and twitchy, 110
Nor mouth, for a combat itchy,
Quivers with some convincing
Reply—that sets him wincing ?
Nay, rather—reply that furnishes
Your debater with just what burnishes 115
The crest of him, all one triumph,
As you see him rise, hear him cry “Humph !
Convinced am I ? This confutes me ?
Receive the rejoinder that suits me !
Confutation of vassal for prince meet— 120
Wherein all the powers that convince meet,
And mash my opponent to mincemeat !”

AND HOW HE WORKED IN DISTEMPER

VIII

So, off from his head flies the bonnet,
His hip loses hand planted on it,
While t' other hand, frequent in gesture, 125
Slinks modestly back beneath vesture,
As,—hop, skip and jump,—he 's along with Those weak ones he late proved so strong with !
Pope, Emperor, lo, he 's beside them,
Friendly now, who late could not abide them, 130
King, Clown, Soldier, Priest, Noble, Burgess ;
And his voice, that out-roared Boanerges,
How minikin-mildly it urges
In accents how gentled and gingered
Its word in defence of the injured ! 135
“O call him not culprit, this Pontiff !
Be hard on this Kaiser ye won't if Ye take into con-si-der-ation
What dangers attend elevation !
The Priest—who expects him to descant 140
On duty with more zeal and less cant ?
He preaches but rubbish he 's reared in.
The Soldier, grown deaf (by the mere din Of battle) to mercy, learned tippling
And what not of vice while a stripling. 145
The Lawyer—his lies are conventional.
And as for the Poor Sort—why mention all Obstructions that leave barred and bolted Access to the brains of each dolt-head ?”

IX

He ended, you wager ? Not half ! A bet ? 150
Precedence to males in the alphabet !
Still, disposed of Man's A, B, C, there 's X,
Y, Z, want assistance,—the Fair Sex !
How much may be said in excuse of Those vanities—males see no use of— 155

OF PACCHIAROTTO .

From silk shoe on heel to laced poll's-hood !
What 's their frailty beside our own falsehood ?
The boldest, most brazen of . . . trumpets,
How kind can they be to their dumb pets !
Of their charms—how are most frank, how few venal ! 160
While as for those charges of Juvenal—
Quæ nemo dixisset in toto
Nisi (ædepol) ore illoto—
He dismissed every charge with an “ Apage ! ”

X

Then, cocking (in Scotch phrase) his cap a-gee, 165
Right hand disengaged from the doublet —Like landlord, in house he had sub-let Resuming of guardianship gestion,
To call tenants' conduct in question—
Hop, skip, jump, to inside from outside 170
Of chamber, he lords, ladies, louts eyed
With such transformation of visage
As fitted the censor of this age.
No longer an advocate tepid
Of frailty, but champion intrepid 175
Of strength, not of falsehood but verity,
He, one after one, with asperity
Stripped bare all the cant-clothed abuses,
Disposed of sophistic excuses,
Forced folly each shift to abandon, 180
And left vice with no leg to stand on.
So crushing the force he exerted,
That Man at his foot lay converted !

XI

True—Man bred of paint-pot and mortar !
But why suppose folks of this sort are 185
More likely to hear and be tractable

AND HOW HE WORKED IN DISTEMPER

Than folks all alive and, in fact, able
To testify promptly by action
Their ardour, and make satisfaction
For misdeeds non verbis sed factis? 190
“With folk all alive be my practice
Henceforward! O mortar, paint-pot O,
Farewell to ye!” cried Pacchiarotto,
“Let only occasion intèrpose!”

XII

It did so: for, pat to the purpose 195
Through causes I need not examine,
There fell upon Siena a famine.
In vain did the magistrates busily
Seek succour, fetch grain out of Sicily,
Nay, throw mill and bakehouse wide open— 200
Such misery followed as no pen
Of mine shall depict ye. Faint, fainter
Waxed hope of relief: so, our painter,
Emboldened by triumph of recency,
How could he do other with decency 205
Than rush in this strait to the rescue,
Play schoolmaster, point as with fescue
To each and all slips in Man's spelling
The law of the land?—slips now telling
With monstrous effect on the city, 210
Whose magistrates moved him to pity
As, bound to read law to the letter,
They minded their hornbook no better.

XIII

I ought to have told you, at starting,
How certain, who itched to be carting 215
Abuses away clean and thorough
From Siena, both province and borough,
Had formed themselves into a company

OF PACCHIAROTTO

Whose swallow could bolt in a lump any Obstruction of scruple, provoking 220
The nicer throat's coughing and choking :
Fit Club, by as fit a name dignified
Of "Freed Ones"—"Bardotti"—which signified
"Spare-Horses" that walk by the waggon
The team has to drudge for and drag on. 225
This notable club Pacchiarotto
Had joined long since, paid scot and lot to,
As free and accepted "Bardotto."
The Bailiwick watched with no quiet eye
The outrage thus done to society, 230
And noted the advent especially
Of Pacchiarotto their fresh ally.

XIV

These Spare-Horses forthwith assembled :
Neighed words whereat citizens trembled
As oft as the chiefs, in the Square by 235
The Duomo, proposed a way whereby
The city were cured of disaster.
"Just substitute servant for master,
Make Poverty Wealth and Wealth Poverty,
Unloose Man from overt and covert tie, 240
And straight out of social confusion
True Order would spring !" Brave illusion—Aims heavenly attained by means earthy !

XV

Off to these at full speed rushed our worthy,— Brain practised and tongue no less tutored, 245
In argument's armour accoutred,— Sprang forth, mounted rostrum and essayed
Proposals like those to which "Yes" said
So glibly each personage painted
O' the wall-side wherewith you 're acquainted. 250

AND HOW HE WORKED IN DISTEMPER

He harangued on the faults of the Bailiwick :
 "Red soon were our State-candle's paly wick,
 If wealth would become but interfluous,
 Fill voids up with just the superfluous ;
 If ignorance gave way to knowledge 255
 —Not pedantry picked up at college
 From Doctors, Professors et cætera—
 (They say : 'kai ta loipa'—like better a Long Greek string of kappas, taus, lambdas, Tacked on to the tail of each damned ass)— 260
 No knowledge we want of this quality,
 But knowledge indeed—practicality
 Through insight's fine universality !
 If you shout 'Bailiffs, out on ye all ! Fie,
Thou Chief of our forces, Amalfi, 265
Who shieldest the rogue and the clotpoll !'
 If you pounce on and poke out, with what pole
 I leave ye to fancy, our Siena's Beast-litter of sloths and hyenas—"

(Whoever to scan this is ill able 270 Forgets the town's name 's a dissyllable)
 "If, this done, ye did—as ye might—place
 For once the right man in the right place,
 If you listened to me . . ."

XVI

At which last "If"

There flew at his throat like a mastiff 275
 One Spare-Horse—another and another !
 Such outbreak of tumult and pother,
 Horse-faces a-laughing and fleering,
 Horse-voices a-mocking and jeering,
 Horse-hands raised to collar the caitiff 280 Whose impudence ventured the late "If"—
 That, had not fear sent Pacchiarotto
 Off tramping, as fast as could trot toe,

OF PACCHIAROTTO

Away from the scene of discomfiture—
 Had he stood there stock-still in a dumb fit—sure 285
 Am I he had paid in his person
 Till his mother might fail to know her son,
 Though she gazed on him never so wistful,
 In the figure so tattered and tristful.
 Each mouth full of curses, each fist full 290
 Of cuffings—behold, Pacchiarotto,
 The pass which thy project has got to,
 Of trusting, nigh ashes still hot—tow!
 (The paraphrase—which I much need—is From Horace "per ignes incedis.") 295

XVII

Right and left did he dash helter-skelter
 In agonized search of a shelter.
 No purlieu so blocked and no alley
 So blind as allowed him to rally
 His spirits and see—nothing hampered 300
 His steps if he trudged and not scampered
 Up here and down there in a city
 That 's all ups and downs, more the pity
 For folk who would outrun the constable.
 At last he stopped short at the one stable 305
 And sure place of refuge that 's offered Humanity. Lately was coffered
 A corpse in its sepulchre, situate
 By St. John's Observance. "Habituate
 Thyself to the strangest of bedfellows,
 And, kicked by the live, kiss the dead fellows!" 310
 So Misery counselled the craven.
 At once he crept safely to haven
 Through a hole left unbricked in the structure.
 Ay, Misery, in have you tucked your 315
 Poor client and left him conterminous
 With—pah!—the thing fetid and verminous!

AND HOW HE WORKED IN DISTEMPER

(I gladly would spare you the detail,
But History writes what I retail.)

XVIII

Two days did he groan in his domicile : 320
“ Good Saints, set me free and I promise I ’ll
Abjure all ambition of preaching Change, whether to minds touched by teaching
—The smooth folk of fancy, mere figments
Created by plaster and pigments,— 325
Or to minds that receive with such rudeness Dissuasion from pride, greed and lewdness,
—The rough folk of fact, life’s true specimens
Of mind—‘ haud in posse sed esse mens ’
As it was, is, and shall be for ever 330
Despite of my utmost endeavour.
O live foes I thought to illumine,
Henceforth lie untroubled your gloom in !
I need my own light, every spark, as I couch with this sole friend—a carcase ! ” 335

XIX

Two days thus he maundered and rambled ;
Then, starved back to sanity, scrambled
From out his receptacle loathsome.
“ A spectre ! ”—declared upon oath some Who saw him emerge and (appalling 340
To mention) his garments a-crawling
With plagues far beyond the Egyptian.
He gained, in a state past description,
A convent of monks, the Observancy.

XX

Thus far is a fact : I reserve fancy 345
For Fancy’s more proper employment :
And now she waves wing with enjoyment,

OF PACCHIAROTTO,

To tell ye how preached the Superior
 When somewhat our painter's exterior
 Was sweetened. He needed (no mincing 350
 The matter) much soaking and rincing,
 Nay, rubbing with drugs odoriferous,
 Till, rid of his garments pestiferous
 And robed by the help of the Brotherhood
 In odds and ends,—this gown and t' other hood,— 355
 His empty inside first well-garnished,—
 He delivered a tale round, unvarnished.

XXI

“Ah, Youth!” ran the Abbot's admonishment, “Thine error scarce moves my astonishment.
 For—why shall I shrink from asserting?— 360 Myself have had hopes of converting
 The foolish to wisdom, till, sober,
 My life found its May grow October.
 I talked and I wrote, but, one morning,
 Life's Autumn bore fruit in this warning : 365
*‘Let tongue rest, and quiet thy quill be !
 Earth is earth and not heaven, and ne'er will be.’*
 Man's work is to labour and leaven—
 As best he may—earth here with heaven ;
 'T is work for work's sake that he 's needing : 370
 Let him work on and on as if speeding
 Work's end, but not dream of succeeding !
 Because if success were intended,
 Why, heaven would begin ere earth ended.
 A Spare-Horse? Be rather a thill-horse, 375
 Or—what 's the plain truth—just a mill-horse !
 Earth 's a mill where we grind and wear mufflers :
 A whip awaits shirkers and shufflers
 Who slacken their pace, sick of lugging
 At what don't advance for their tugging. 380
 Though round goes the mill, we must still post

AND HOW HE WORKED IN DISTEMPER

On and on as if moving the mill-post.
 So, grind away, mouth-wise and pen-wise,
 Do all that we can to make men wise !
 And if men prefer to be foolish, 385
 Ourselves have proved horse-like not mulish :
 Sent grist, a good sackful, to hopper,
 And worked as the Master thought proper.
 Tongue I wag, pen I ply, who am Abbot ;
 Stick thou, Son, to daub-brush and dab-pot ! 390
 But, soft ! I scratch hard on the scab hot ?
 Though cured of thy plague, there may linger
 A pimple I fray with rough finger ?
 So soon could my homily transmute
 Thy brass into gold ? Why, the man 's mute !" 395

XXII

"Ay, Father, I 'm mute with admiring
 How Nature's indulgence untiring Still bids us turn deaf ear to Reason's
 Best rhetoric—clutch at all seasons
 And hold fast to what 's proved untenable ! 400
 Thy maxim is—Man 's not amenable
 To argument : whereof by consequence—
 Thine arguments reach me : a non-sequence !
 Yet blush not discouraged, O Father !
 I stand unconverted, the rather 405
 That nowise I need a conversion.
 No live man (I cap thy assertion)
 By argument ever could take hold
 Of me. 'T was the dead thing, the clay-cold,
 Which grinned ' Art thou so in a hurry 410
That out of warm light thou must skurry
And join me down here in the dungeon
Because, above, one 's Jack and one—John,
One 's swift in the race, one—a hobbler,
One 's a crowned king, and one—a capped cobbler, 415

OF PACCHIAROTTO

*Rich and poor, sage and fool, virtuous, vicious ?
 Why complain ? Art thou so unsuspecting
 That all's for an hour of essaying
 Who's fit and who's unfit for playing His part in the after-construction* 420
*—Heaven's Piece whereof Earth's the Induction ?
 Things rarely go smooth at Rehearsal.
 Wait patient the change universal,
 And act, and let act, in existence !
 For, as thou art clapped hence or hissed hence,* 425
*Thou hast thy promotion or otherwise.
 And why must wise thou have thy brother wise
 Because in rehearsal thy cue be
 To shine by the side of a booby ?
 No polishing garnet to ruby !* 430
*All's well that ends well—through Art's magic Some end, whether comic or tragic,
 The Artist has purposed, be certain !
 Explained at the fall of the curtain—
 In showing thy wisdom at odds with* 435
*That folly : he tries men and gods with No problem for weak wits to solve meant,
 But one worth such Author's evolvment.
 So, back nor disturb play's production
 By giving thy brother instruction* 440
*To throw up his fool's-part allotted !
 Lest haply thyself prove besotted
 When stript, for thy pains, of that costume
 Of sage, which has bred the imposthume
 I prick to relieve thee of,—Vanity !'* 445

XXIII

“So, Father, behold me in sanity !
 I'm back to the palette and mahlstick :
 And as for Man—let each and all stick
 To what was prescribed them at starting !

AND HOW HE WORKED IN DISTEMPER

Once planted as fools—no departing 450
From folly one inch, sæculorum
In sæcula ! Pass me the jorum,
And push me the platter—my stomach
Retains, through its fasting, still some ache—
And then, with your kind Benedicite, 455 Good-bye ! ”

XXIV

I have told with simplicity
My tale, dropped those harsh analytics,
And tried to content you, my critics,
Who greeted my early uprising !
I knew you through all the disguising, 460
Droll dogs, as I jumped up, cried “ Heyday !
This Monday is—what else but May-day ?
And these in the drabs, blues and yellows,
Are surely the privileged fellows.
So, saltbox and bones, tongs and bellows,” 465
(I threw up the window) “ your pleasure ? ”

XXV

Then he who directed the measure—
An old friend—put leg forward nimbly,
“ We critics as sweeps out your chimbley !
Much soot to remove from your flue, sir ! 470
Who spares coal in kitchen an’t you, sir !
And neighbours complain it ’s no joke, sir,
—You ought to consume your own smoke, sir ! ”

XXVI

Ah, rogues, but my housemaid suspects you—
Is confident oft she detects you 475
In bringing more filth into my house
Than ever you found there ! I ’m pious However : ’t was God made you dingy

OF PACCHIAROTTO

And me—with no need to be stingy
 Of soap, when 't is sixpence the packet. 480
 So, dance away, boys, dust my jacket,
 Bang drum and blow fife—ay, and rattle
 Your brushes, for that 's half the battle !
 Don't trample the grass,—hocus-pocus
 With grime my Spring snowdrop and crocus,— 485
 And, what with your rattling and tinkling,
 Who knows but you give me an inkling
 How music sounds, thanks to the jangle
 Of regular drum and triangle ?
 Whereby, tap-tap, chink-chink, 't is proven 490
 I break rule as bad as Beethoven.
 "That chord now—a groan or a grunt is 't ?
 Schumann's self was no worse contrapuntist.
 No ear ! or if ear, so tough-gristled—
 He thought that he sung while he whistled ! " 495

XXVII

So, this time I whistle, not sing at all,
 My story, the largess I fling at all
 And every the rough there whose aubade
 Did its best to amuse me,—nor so bad !
 Take my thanks, pick up largess, and scamper 500
 Off free, ere your mirth gets a damper !
 You 've Monday, your one day, your fun-day,
 While mine is a year that 's all Sunday.
 I 've seen you, times—who knows how many ?—
 Dance in here, strike up, play the zany, 505
 Make mouths at the tenant, hoot warning
 You 'll find him decamped next May-morning ;
 Then scuttle away, glad to 'scape hence
 With—kicks ? no, but laughter and ha'pence !
 Mine 's freehold, by grace of the grand Lord 510
 Who lets out the ground here,—my landlord :
 To him I pay quit-rent—devotion ;

AND HOW HE WORKED IN DISTEMPER

Nor hence shall I budge, I 've a notion,
 Nay, here shall my whistling and singing
 Set all his street's echoes a-ringing 515
 Long after the last of your number
 Has ceased my front-court to encumber
 While, treading down rose and ranunculus,
 You Tommy-make-room-for-your-Uncle us !
 Troop, all of you—man or homunculus, 520
 Quick march ! for Xanthippe, my housemaid,
 If once on your pates she a souse made
 With what, pan or pot, bowl or skoramis
 First comes to her hand—things were more amiss !
 I would not for worlds be your place in— 525
 Recipient of slops from the basin !
 You, Jack-in-the-Green, leaf-and-twiggyishness
 Won't save a dry thread on your priggishness !
 While as for Quilp-Hop-o'-my-thumb there,
 Banjo-Byron that twangs the strum-strum there— 530
 He 'll think, as the pickle he curses,
 I 've discharged on his pate his own verses !
 "Dwarfs are saucy," says Dickens: so, sauced in Your own sauce, . . .¹

XXVIII

But, back to my Knight of the Pencil, 535
 Dismissed to his fresco and stencil !
 Whose story—begun with a chuckle,
 And throughout timed by raps of the knuckle,—
 To small enough purpose were studied
 If it ends with crown cracked or nose bloodied. 540
 Come, critics,—not shake hands, excuse me !
 But—say have you grudged to amuse me
 This once in the forty-and-over

¹ No, please ! For

"Who would be satirical
 On a thing so very small?"—PRINTER'S DEVIL.

OF PACCHIAROTTO

Long years since you trampled my clover
 And scared from my house-eaves each sparrow 545
 I never once harmed by that arrow
 Of song, karterotaton belos,
 (Which Pindar declares the true melos)
 I was forging and filing and finishing,
 And no whit my labours diminishing 550
 Because, though high up in a chamber
 Where none of your kidney may clamber
 Your hullabaloo would approach me?
 Was it "grammar" wherein you would "coach" me—
 You,—pacing in even that paddock 555
 Of language allotted you ad hoc,
 With a clog at your fetlocks,—you—scorners
 Of me free of all its four corners?
 Was it "clearness of words which convey thought?"
 Ay, if words never needed enswathe aught 560
 But ignorance, impudence, envy
 And malice—what word-swathe would then vie
 With yours for a clearness crystalline?
 But had you to put in one small line
 Some thought big and bouncing—as noddle 565
 Of goose, born to cackle and waddle
 And bite at man's heel as goose-wont is,
 Never felt plague its puny os frontis—
 You'd know, as you hissed, spat and sputtered,
 Clear cackle is easily uttered! 570

XXIX

Lo, I've laughed out my laugh on this mirth-day!
 Beside, at week's end, dawns my birth-day,
 That hebdome, hieron emar—
 (More things in a day than you deem are!)
 —Tei gar Apollona chrusaora 575

AND HOW HE WORKED IN DISTEMPER

Egeinato Leto. So, gray or ray
Betide me, six days hence, I 'm vexed here
By no sweep, that 's certain; till next year !
“Vexed ?”—roused from what else were insipid ease !

Leave snoring a-bed to Pheidippides !
We 'll up and work ! won't we, Euripides ?

AT THE "MERMAID"

The figure that thou here seest . . . Tut !
Was it for gentle Shakespeare put ?

B. JONSON. (Adapted.)

I

I—"NEXT Poet?" No, my hearties,
I nor am nor fain would be !
Choose your chiefs and pick your parties,
Not one soul revolt to me !
I, forsooth, sow song-sedition ?
I, a schism in verse provoke ?
I, blown up by bard's ambition,
Burst—your bubble-king? You joke.

II

Come, be grave ! The sherris mantling
Still about each mouth, mayhap,
Breeds you insight—just a scantling—
Brings me truth out—just a scrap.
Look and tell me ! Written, spoken, Here 's my life-long work : and where —Where's your warrant or my token
I 'm the dead king's son and heir ?

III

Here 's my work : does work discover—
What was rest from work—my life ?
Did I live man's hater, lover ?
Leave the world at peace, at strife ?

AT THE "MERMAID"

Call earth ugliness or beauty?
See things there in large or small?
Use to pay its Lord my duty?
Use to own a lord at all?

IV

Blank of such a record, truly 25
Here 's the work I hand, this scroll,
Yours to take or leave ; as duly,
Mine remains the unproffered soul.
So much, no whit more, my debtors—
How should one like me lay claim 30
To that largess elders, betters
Sell you cheap their souls for—fame?

V

Which of you did I enable
Once to slip inside my breast,
There to catalogue and label 35
What I like least, what love best,
Hope and fear, believe and doubt of,
Seek and shun, respect—deride?
Who has right to make a rout of Rarities he found inside? 40

VI

Rarities or, as he 'd rather,
Rubbish such as stocks his own :
Need and greed (O strange) the Father
Fashioned not for him alone !
Whence—the comfort set a-strutting, 45
Whence—the outcry "Haste, behold !
Bard's breast open wide, past shutting,
Shows what brass we took for gold !"

VII

Friends, I doubt not he 'd display you
Brass—myself call orichalc,— 50
Furnish much amusement ; pray you
Therefore, be content I baulk
Him and you, and bar my portal !
Here 's my work outside : opine
What 's inside me mean and mortal ! 55
Take your pleasure, leave me mine !

VIII

Which is—not to buy your laurel
As last king did, nothing loth.
Tale adorned and pointed moral 60
Gained him praise and pity both.
Out rushed sighs and groans by dozens,
Forth by scores oaths, curses flew :
Proving you were cater-cousins,
Kith and kindred, king and you !

IX

Whereas do I ne'er so little 65
(Thanks to sherris) leave ajar
Bosom's gate—no jot nor tittle Grow we nearer than we are.
Sinning, sorrowing, despairing,
Body-ruined, spirit-wrecked,— 70
Should I give my woes an airing,—
Where 's one plague that claims respect ?

Have you found your life distasteful ?
My life did, and does, smack sweet.
Was your youth of pleasure wasteful ? 75
Mine I saved and hold complete.

AT THE "MERMAID"

Do your joys with age diminish ?
When mine fail me, I 'll complain.
Must in death your daylight finish ?
My sun sets to rise again.

XI

What, like you, he proved—your Pilgrim—
This our world a wilderness,
Earth still grey and heaven still grim,
Not a hand there his might press,
Not a heart his own might throb to,
Men all rogues and women—say,
Dolls which boys' heads duck and bob to,
Grown folk drop or throw away ?

XII

My experience being other,
How should I contribute verse
Worthy of your king and brother ?
Balaam-like I bless, not curse.
I find earth not grey but rosy,
Heaven not grim but fair of hue.
Do I stoop ? I pluck a posy.
Do I stand and stare ? All 's blue.

XIII

Doubtless I am pushed and shoved by Rogues and fools enough : the more Good luck mine, I love, am loved by
Some few honest to the core.
Scan the near high, scout the far low !
" But the low come close : " what then ?
Simpletons ? My match is Marlowe ; Sciolists ? My mate is Ben.

Womankind—"the cat-like nature,
False and fickle, vain and weak"—
What of this sad nomenclature
Suits my tongue, if I must speak?
Does the sex invite, repulse so,
Tempt, betray, by fits and starts?
So becalm but to convulse so,
Decking heads and breaking hearts?

XV

Well may you blaspheme at fortune!
I "threw Venus" (Ben, expound!)
Never did I need importune
Her, of all the Olympian round.
Blessings on my benefactress!
Cursings suit—for aught I know—
Those who twitched her by the back tress,
Tugged and thought to turn her—so!

120

XVI

Therefore, since no leg to stand on Thus I 'm left with,—joy or grief
Be the issue,—I abandon Hope or care you name me Chief!
Chief and king and Lord's anointed,
I?—who never once have wished Death before the day appointed:
Lived and liked, not poohed and pished!

XVII

"Ah, but so I shall not enter,
Scroll in hand, the common heart—Stopped at surface: since at centre
Song should reach Welt-schmerz, world-smart!"

130

AT THE "MERMAID"

"Enter in the heart?" Its shelly Cuirass guard mine, fore and aft!
Such song "enters in the belly" 135
And is cast out in the draught."

XVIII

Back then to our sherris-brewage!
"Kingship" quotha? I shall wait—
Waive the present time: some new age . . . 140
But let fools anticipate!
Meanwhile greet me—"friend, good fellow,
Gentle Will," my merry men!
As for making Envy yellow
With "Next Poet"—(Manners, Ben!)

HOUSE

I

SHALL I sonnet-sing you about myself ?

Do I live in a house you would like to see ?
Is it scant of gear, has it store of pelf ?

“Unlock my heart with a sonnet-key ?”

II

Invite the world, as my betters have done ?

“Take notice : this building remains on view,
Its suites of reception every one,
Its private apartment and bedroom too ;

III

“For a ticket, apply to the Publisher.”

No : thanking the public, I must decline.
A peep through my window, if folk prefer ;
But, please you, no foot over threshold of mine !

IV

I have mixed with a crowd and heard free talk
In a foreign land where an earthquake chanced :
And a house stood gaping, nought to baulk
Man's eye wherever he gazed or glanced.

The whole of the frontage shaven sheer,
The inside gaped : exposed to day,
Right and wrong and common and queer,
Bare, as the palm of your hand, it lay.

HOUSE

VI

The owner ? Oh, he had been crushed, no doubt !
“ Odd tables and chairs for a man of wealth !
What a parcel of musty old books about !
He smoked,—no wonder he lost his health !

VII

“ I doubt if he bathed before he dressed.
A brasier ?—the pagan, he burned perfumes !
You see it is proved, what the neighbours guessed :
His wife and himself had separate rooms.”

VIII

Friends, the goodman of the house at least Kept house to himself till an earthquake came :
'T is the fall of its frontage permits you feast
On the inside arrangement you praise or blame.

IX

Outside should suffice for evidence :
And whoso desires to penetrate Deeper, must dive by the spirit-sense—
No optics like yours, at any rate !

X

“ Hoity toity ! A street to explore,
Your house the exception ! ‘ With this same key Shakespeare unlocked his heart, ’ once more ! ”
Did Shakespeare ? If so, the less Shakespeare he !

SHOP

I

So, friend, your shop was all your house !
Its front, astonishing the street,
Invited view from man and mouse
To what diversity of treat
Behind its glass—the single sheet !

II

What gimcracks, genuine Japanese :
Gape-jaw and goggle-eye, the frog ;
Dragons, owls, monkeys, beetles, geese ;
Some crush-nosed human-hearted dog :
Queer names, too, such a catalogue !

10

III

I thought “ And he who owns the wealth
Which blocks the window’s vastitude,
—Ah, could I peep at him by stealth
Behind his ware, pass shop, intrude
On house itself, what scenes were viewed !

15

IV

“ If wide and showy thus the shop,
What must the habitation prove ?
The true house with no name a-top—
The mansion, distant one remove,
Once get him off his traffic-groove !

“ Pictures he likes, or books perhaps ;
And as for buying most and best,
Commend me to these City chaps !
Or else he 's social, takes his rest
On Sundays, with a Lord for guest. 25

VI

“ Some suburb-palace, parked about
And gated grandly, built last year :
The four-mile walk to keep off gout ;
Or big seat sold by bankrupt peer :
But then he takes the rail, that 's clear. 30

VII

“ Or, stop ! I wager, taste selects
Some out o' the way, some all-unknown
Retreat : the neighbourhood suspects
Little that he who rambles lone Makes Rothschild tremble on his throne !” 35

VIII

Nowise ! Nor Mayfair residence
Fit to receive and entertain,— Nor Hampstead villa's kind defence
From noise and crowd, from dust and drain,—
Nor country-box was soul's domain ! 40

IX

Nowise ! At back of all that spread
Of merchandize, woe 's me, I find
A hole i' the wall where, heels by head,
The owner couched, his ware behind,
—In cupboard suited to his mind. 45

For why? He saw no use of life
But, while he drove a roaring trade,
To chuckle "Customers are rife!"
To chafe "So much hard cash outlaid
Yet zero in my profits made!" 50

XI

"This novelty costs pains, but—takes?
Cumbers my counter! Stock no more!
This article, no such great shakes, Fizzes like wildfire? Underscore
The cheap thing—thousands to the fore!" 55

XII

'T was lodging best to live most nigh (Cramp, coffinlike as crib might be)
Receipt of Custom; ear and eye
Wanted no outworld: "Hear and see
The bustle in the shop!" quoth he. 60

XIII

My fancy of a merchant-prince
Was different. Through his wares we groped
Our darkling way to—not to mince
The matter—no black den where moped
The master if we interloped! 65

XIV

Shop was shop only: household-stuff?
What did he want with comforts there?
"Walls, ceiling, floor, stay blank and rough,
So goods on sale show rich and rare!
'Sell and scud home' be shop's affair!" 70

SHOP

XV

What might he deal in? · Gems, suppose!
Since somehow business must be done
At cost of trouble,—see, he throws
You choice of jewels, everyone,
Good, better, best, star, moon and sun! 75

XVI

Which lies within your power of purse?
This ruby that would tip aright
Solomon's sceptre? Oh, your nurse
Wants simply coral, the delight
Of teething baby,—stuff to bite! 80

XVII

Howe'er your choice fell, straight you took
Your purchase, prompt your money rang
On counter,—scarce the man forsook
His study of the "Times," just swang
Till-ward his hand that stopped the clang,— 85

XVIII

Then off made buyer with a prize,
Then seller to his "Times" returned,
And so did day wear, wear, till eyes
Brightened apace, for rest was earned:
He locked door long ere candle burned. 90

XIX

And whither went he? Ask himself,
Not me! To change of scene, I think.
Once sold the ware and pursed the pelf,
Chaffer was scarce his meat and drink,
Nor all his music—money-chink. 95

SHOP

XX

Because a man has shop to mind
In time and place, since flesh must live,
Needs spirit lack all life behind,
All stray thoughts, fancies fugitive,
All loves except what trade can give ? 100

XXI

I want to know a butcher paints,
A baker rhymes for his pursuit,
Candlestick-maker much acquaints
His soul with song, or, haply mute,
Blows out his brains upon the flute ! 105

XXII

But—shop each day and all day long !
Friend, your good angel slept, your star
Suffered eclipse, fate did you wrong !
From where these sorts of treasures are,
There should our hearts be—Christ, how far ! 110

PISGAH-SIGHTS. I

I

OVER the ball of it,
Peering and prying,
How I see all of it,
Life there, outlying !
Roughness and smoothness,
Shine and defilement,
Grace and uncouthness :
One reconciliation.

Orbed as appointed,
Sister with brother
Joins, ne'er disjointed
One from the other.
All 's lend-and-borrow ;
Good, see, wants evil,
Joy demands sorrow,
Angel weds devil !

III

“ Which things must—why be ? ”
Vain our endeavour !
So shall things aye be
As they were ever.
“ Such things should so be ! ”
Sage our desistence !
Rough-smooth let globe be,
Mixed—man's existence !

PISGAH-SIGHTS

IV

Man—wise and foolish,
Lover and scorner,
Docile and mulish—
Keep each his corner !
Honey yet gall of it !
There 's the life lying,
And I see all of it,
Only, I 'm dying !

PISGAH-SIGHTS. II

I

COULD I but live again,
Twice my life over,
Would I once strive again ?
Would not I cover
Quietly all of it—
Greed and ambition—
So, from the pall of it,
Pass to fruition ?

II

“Soft !” I 'd say, “Soul mine !
Three-score and ten years,
Let the blind mole mine
Digging out deniers !
Let the dazed hawk soar,
Claim the sun's rights too !
Turf 't is thy walk 's o'er, Foliage thy flight 's to.”

III

Only a learner,
Quick one or slow one,
Just a discerner,
I would teach no one.
I am earth's native :
No rearranging it !
I be creative,
Chopping and changing it ?

PISGAH-SIGHTS

IV

March, men, my fellows !
Those who, above me,
(Distance so mellows)
Fancy you love me :
Those who, below me,
(Distance makes great so)
Free to forego me,
Fancy you hate so !

V

Praising, reviling,
Worst head and best head,
Past me defiling,
Never arrested,
Wanters, abounders,
March, in gay mixture,
Men, my surroundings !
I am the fixture.

VI

So shall I fear thee,
Mightiness yonder !
Mock-sun—more near thee,
What is to wonder ?
So shall I love thee,
Down in the dark,—lest Glowworm I prove thee,
Star that now sparklest !

FEARS AND SCRUPLES

I

HERE 's my case. Of old I used to love him
This same unseen friend, before I knew :
Dream there was none like him, none above him,—
Wake to hope and trust my dream was true.

II

Loved I not his letters full of beauty ?
Not his actions famous far and wide ?
Absent, he would know I vowed him duty ;
Present, he would find me at his side.

III

Pleasant fancy ! for I had but letters,
Only knew of actions by hearsay :
He himself was busied with my betters ;
What of that ? My turn must come some day.

IV

“Some day” proving—no day ! Here 's the puzzle.
Passed and passed my turn is. Why complain ?
He 's so busied ! If I could but muzzle People's foolish mouths that give me pain !

“Letters?” (hear them !) “You a judge of writing ?
Ask the experts !—How they shake the head
O'er these characters, your friend's inditing—
Call them forgery from A to Z !

VI

“Actions? Where ’s your certain proof” (they bother)

“He, of all you find so great and good,
He, he only, claims this, that, the other Action—claimed by men, a multitude?”

VII

I can simply wish I might refute you,
Wish my friend would,—by a word, a wink,—
Bid me stop that foolish mouth,—you brute you!
He keeps absent,—why, I cannot think.

VIII

Never mind! Though foolishness may flout me,
One thing ’s sure enough: ’t is neither frost,
No, nor fire, shall freeze or burn from out me
Thanks for truth—though falsehood, gained—though lost.

IX

All my days, I ’ll go the softlier, sadlier,
For that dream’s sake! How forget the thrill Through and through me as I thought “The gladlier Lives my friend because I love him still!”

X

Ah, but there ’s a menace someone utters!
“What and if your friend at home play tricks?
Peep at hide-and-seek behind the shutters?
Mean your eyes should pierce through solid bricks?”

FEARS AND SCRUPLES

XI

“What and if he, frowning, wake you, dreamy?
Lay on you the blame that bricks—conceal?
Say ‘*At least I saw who did not see me,
Does see now, and presently shall feel*’?”

XII

“Why, that makes your friend a monster!” say
you :
“Had his house no window? At first nod, Would you not have hailed him?” Hush, I pray
you !
What if this friend happen to be—God?

NATURAL MAGIC

I

ALL I can say is—I saw it !
The room was as bare as your hand.
I locked in the swarth little lady,—I swear,
From the head to the foot of her—well, quite as bare !
“ No Nautch shall cheat me,” said I, “ taking my stand
At this bolt which I draw !” And this bolt—I withdraw it,
And there laughs the lady, not bare, but em-bowered
With—who knows what verdure, o’erfruited, o’erflowered ?
Impossible ! Only—I saw it !

II

All I can sing is—I feel it !
This life was as blank as that room ;
I let you pass in here. Precaution, indeed ?
Walls, ceiling and floor,—not a chance for a weed !
Wide opens the entrance : where ’s cold now,
where ’s gloom ?
No May to sow seed here, no June to reveal it, Behold you enshrined in these blooms of your bringing,
These fruits of your bearing—nay, birds of your winging !
A fairy-tale ! Only—I feel it !

MAGICAL NATURE

I

FLOWER—I never fancied, jewel—I profess you !

Bright I see and soft I feel the outside of a flower.
Save but glow inside and—jewel, I should guess
you,

Dim to sight and rough to touch : the glory is the dower.

II

You, forsooth, a flower ? Nay, my love, a jewel—

Jewel at no mercy of a moment in your prime !
Time may fray the flower-face : kind be time or cruel,

Jewel, from each facet, flash your laugh at time !

BIFURCATION

WE were two lovers ; let me lie by her,
My tomb beside her tomb. On hers inscribe—
“ I loved him ; but my reason bade prefer Duty to love, reject the tempter's bribe
Of rose and lily when each path diverged,
And either I must pace to life's far end
As love should lead me, or, as duty urged,
Plod the worn causeway arm-in-arm with friend.
So, truth turned falsehood : ‘ *How I loathe a flower,
How prize the pavement !* ’ still caressed his ear—
The deafish friend's—through life's day, hour by hour,
As he laughed (coughing) ‘ Ay, it would appear ! ’
But deep within my heart of hearts there hid Ever the confidence, amends for all,
That heaven repairs what wrong earth's journey did,
When love from life-long exile comes at call.
Duty and love, one Broadway, were the best—
Who doubts ? But one or other was to choose.
I chose the darkling half, and wait the rest
In that new world where light and darkness fuse.”

Inscribe on mine—“ I loved her : love's track lay
O'er sand and pebble, as all travellers know.
Duty led through a smiling country, gay
With greensward where the rose and lily blow.
‘ Our roads are diverse : farewell, love ! ’ said she ;

BIFURCATION

*'T is duty I abide by: homely sward
And not the rock-rough picturesque for me!
Above, where both roads join, I wait reward.
Be you as constant to the path whereon
I leave you planted!'* But man needs must move,
Keep moving—whither, when the star is gone
Whereby he steps secure nor strays from love?
No stone but I was tripped by, stumbling-block
But brought me to confusion. Where I fell,
There I lay flat, if moss disguised the rock, Thence, if flint pierced, I rose and cried 'All's well!

*Duty be mine to tread in that high sphere
Where love from duty ne'er disparts, I trust,
And two halves make that whole, whereof—since here
One must suffice a man—why, this one must!'"*

Inscribe each tomb thus: then, some sage acquaint
The simple—which holds sinner, which holdssaint!

NUMPHOLEPTOS

STILL you stand, still you listen, still you smile !
Still melts your moonbeam through me, white awhile,
Softening, sweetening, till sweet and soft Increase so round this heart of mine, that oft
I could believe your moonbeam-smile has past 5
The pallid limit, lies, transformed at last
To sunlight and salvation—warms the soul
It sweetens, softens ! Would you pass that goal,
Gain love's birth at the limit's happier verge,
And, where an iridescence lurks, but urge 10
The hesitating pallor on to prime
Of dawn !—true blood-streaked, sun-warmth,
 action-time,
By heart-pulse ripened to a ruddy glow
Of gold above my clay—I scarce should know
From gold's self, thus suffused ! For gold means love. 15
What means the sad slow silver smile above
My clay but pity, pardon ?—at the best,
But acquiescence that I take my rest,
Contented to be clay, while in your heaven
The sun reserves love for the Spirit—Seven 20
Companioning God's throne they lamp before,
—Leaves earth a mute waste only wandered o'er
By that pale soft sweet disempassioned moon Which smiles me slow forgiveness ! Such the boon

NUMPHOLEPTOS

I beg? Nay, dear, submit to this—just this 25
Supreme endeavour! As my lips now kiss
Your feet, my arms convulse your shrouding robe,
My eyes, acquainted with the dust, dare probe
Your eyes above for—what, if born, would blind
Mine with redundant bliss, as flash may find 30
The inert nerve, sting awake the palsied limb,
Bid with life's ecstasy sense overbrim
And suck back death in the resurging joy—
Love, the love whole and sole without alloy!

Vainly! The promise withers! I employ 35 Lips, arms, eyes, pray the prayer which finds the word,
Make the appeal which must be felt, not heard,
And none the more is changed your calm regard:
Rather, its sweet and soft grow harsh and hard—
Forbearance, then repulsion, then disdain. 40
Avert the rest! I rise, see!—make, again
Once more, the old departure for some track
Untried yet through a world which brings me back
Ever thus fruitlessly to find your feet,
To fix your eyes, to pray the soft and sweet 45
Which smile there—take from his new pilgrimage
Your outcast, once your inmate, and assuage
With love—not placid pardon now—his thirst
For a mere drop from out the ocean erst
He drank at! Well, the quest shall be renewed. 50
Fear nothing! Though I linger, unembued
With any drop, my lips thus close. I go!
So did I leave you, I have found you so,
And doubtlessly, if fated to return,
So shall my pleading persevere and earn 55
Pardon—not love—in that same smile, I learn,
And lose the meaning of, to learn once more, Vainly!

NUMPHOLEPTOS

What fairy track do I explore ?
What magic hall return to, like the gem
Centuply-angled o'er a diadem ? 60
You dwell there, hearted ; from your midmost
home
Rays forth—through that fantastic world I roam
Ever—from centre to circumference, Shaft upon coloured shaft : this crimsons thence,
That purples out its precinct through the waste. 65
Surely I had your sanction when I faced,
Fared forth upon that untried yellow ray
Whence I retrack my steps ? They end to-day
Where they began—before your feet, beneath
Your eyes, your smile : the blade is shut in sheath, 70
Fire quenched in flint ; irradiation, late Triumphant through the distance, finds its fate,
Merged in your blank pure soul, alike the source
And tomb of that prismatic glow : divorce
Absolute, all-conclusive ! Forth I fared, 75
Treading the lambent flamelet : little cared
If now its flickering took the topaz tint,
If now my dull-caked path gave sulphury hint
Of subterranean rage—no stay nor stint
To yellow, since you sanctioned that I bathe, 80
Burnish me, soul and body, swim and swathe
In yellow license. Here I reek suffused
With crocus, saffron, orange, as I used
With scarlet, purple, every dye o' the bow
Born of the storm-cloud. As before, you show 85 Scarce recognition, no approval, some Mistrust, more wonder at a man become Monstrous in garb, nay—flesh disguised as well,
Through his adventure. Whatsoe'er befell,
I followed, wheresoe'er it wound, that vein 90
You authorized should leave your whiteness, stain
Earth's sombre stretch beyond your midmost place

NUMPHOLEPTOS

Of vantage,—trode that tinct whereof the trace
On garb and flesh repel you ! Yes, I plead
Your own permission—your command, indeed, 95
That who would worthily retain the love Must share the knowledge shrined those eyes above,
Go boldly on adventure, break through bounds
O' the quintessential whiteness that surrounds
Your feet, obtain experience of each tinge 100
That bickers forth to broaden out, impinge
Plainer his foot its pathway all distinct From every other. Ah, the wonder, linked With fear, as exploration manifests
What agency it was first tipped the crests 105
Of unnamed wildflower, soon protruding grew Portentous mid the sands, as when his hue Betrays him and the burrowing snake gleams through ;
Till, last . . . but why parade more shame and pain ?
Are not the proofs upon me ? Here again 110
I pass into your presence, I receive
Your smile of pity, pardon, and I leave . . .
No, not this last of times I leave you, mute,
Submitted to my penance, so my foot
May yet again adventure, tread, from source 115
To issue, one more ray of rays which course
Each other, at your bidding, from the sphere
Silver and sweet, their birthplace, down that drear
Dark of the world,—you promise shall return
Your pilgrim jewelled as with drops o' the urn 120
The rainbow paints from, and no smatch at all
Of ghastliness at edge of some cloud-pall Heaven cowers before, as earth awaits the fall O' the bolt and flash of doom. Who trusts your word

NUMPHOLEPTOS

Tries the adventure : and returns—absurd 125
As frightful—in that sulphur-steeped disguise
Mocking the priestly cloth-of-gold, sole prize
The arch-heretic was wont to bear away
Until he reached the burning. No, I say :
No fresh adventure ! No more seeking love 130
At end of toil, and finding, calm above
My passion, the old statuesque regard,
The sad petrific smile !

O you—less hard
And hateful than mistaken and obtuse
Unreason of a she-intelligence ! 135
You very woman with the pert pretence
To match the male achievement ! Like enough !
Ay, you were easy victors, did the rough Straightway efface itself to smooth, the gruff
Grind down and grow a whisper,—did man's truth 140
Subdue, for sake of chivalry and ruth,
Its rapier-edge to suit the bulrush-spear
Womanly falsehood fights with ! O that ear
All fact pricks rudely, that thrice-superfine
Femininity of sense, with right divine 145
To waive all process, take result stain-free
From out the very muck wherein . . .

Ah me !
The true slave's querulous outbreak ! All the rest
Be resignation ! Forth at your behest
I fare. Who knows but this—the crimson-quest— 150
May deepen to a sunrise, not decay
To that cold sad sweet smile?—which I obey.

APPEARANCES

I

AND so you found that poor room dull,
Dark, hardly to your taste, my dear?
Its features seemed unbeautiful :
But this I know—'t was there, not here,
You plighted troth to me, the word
Which—ask that poor room how it heard.

II

And this rich room obtains your praise
Unqualified,—so bright, so fair,
So all whereat perfection stays?
Ay, but remember—here, not there,
The other word was spoken ! Ask
This rich room how you dropped the mask !

ST. MARTIN'S SUMMER

I

No protesting, dearest !
Hardly kisses even !
Don't we both know how it ends ?
How the greenest leaf turns serest,
Bluest outbreak—blankest heaven, 5
Lovers—friends ?

II

You would build a mansion,
I would weave a bower
—Want the heart for enterprise.
Walls admit of no expansion : 10
Trellis-work may haply flower
Twice the size.

III

What makes glad Life's Winter ?
New buds, old blooms after.
Sad the sighing " How suspect 15
Beams would ere mid-Autumn splinter,
Roof-tree scarce support a rafter,
Walls lie wrecked ? "

IV

You are young, my princess !
I am hardly older : 20
Yet—I steal a glance behind.

ST. MARTIN'S SUMMER

Dare I tell you what convinces
Timid me that you, if bolder,
Bold—are blind?

V

Where we plan our dwelling 25
Glooms a graveyard surely!
Headstone, footstone moss may drape,—
Name, date, violets hide from spelling,—
But, though corpses rot obscurely,
Ghosts escape. 30

VI

Ghosts! O breathing Beauty,
Give my frank word pardon!
What if I—somehow, somewhere—
Pledged my soul to endless duty
Many a time and oft? Be hard on 35
Love—laid there?

VII

Nay, blame grief that 's fickle,
Time that proves a traitor,
Chance, change, all that purpose warps,—
Death who spares to thrust the sickle 40
Laid Love low, through flowers which later Shroud the corpse!

VIII

And you, my winsome lady,
Whisper with like frankness!
Lies nothing buried long ago? 45
Are yon—which shimmer mid the shady
Where moss and violet run to rankness—
Tombs or no?

ST. MARTIN'S SUMMER

IX

Who taxes you with murder ?
My hands are clean—or nearly ! 50
Love being mortal needs must pass.
Repentance ? Nothing were absurder.
Enough : we felt Love's loss severely ;
Though now—alas !

X

Love's corpse lies quiet therefore, 55
Only Love's ghost plays truant,
And warns us have in wholesome awe
Durable mansionry ; that 's wherefore
I weave but trellis-work, pursuant —Life, to law. 60

XI

The solid, not the fragile,
Tempts rain and hail and thunder.
If bower stand firm at Autumn's close,
Beyond my hope,—why, boughs were agile ;
If bower fall flat, we scarce need wonder 65
Wreathing—rose !

XII

So, truce to the protesting,
So, muffled be the kisses !
For, would we but avow the truth,
Sober is genuine joy. No jesting ! 70
Ask else Penelope, Ulysses—Old in youth !

XIII

For why should ghosts feel angered ?
Let all their interference
Be faint march-music in the air ! 75

ST. MARTIN'S SUMMER

“Up! Join the rear of us the vanguard!
Up, lovers, dead to all appearance,
Laggard pair!”

XIV

The while you clasp me closer,
The while I press you deeper, 80
As safe we chuckle,—under breath,
Yet all the slyer, the jocoser,—
“So, life can boast its day, like leap-year, Stolen from death!”

XV

Ah me—the sudden terror! 85
Hence quick—avaunt, avoid me,
You cheat, the ghostly flesh-disguised!
Nay, all the ghosts in one! Strange error!
So, 't was Death's self that clipped and coyed me,
Loved—and lied! 90

XVI

Ay, dead loves are the potent!
Like any cloud they used you,
Mere semblance you, but substance they!
Build we no mansion, weave we no tent!
Mere flesh—their spirit interfused you! 95
Hence, I say!

XVII

All theirs, none yours the glamour!
Theirs each low word that won me,
Soft look that found me Love's, and left
What else but you—the tears and clamour 100
That 's all your very own! Undone me—
Ghost-bereft!

HERVÉ RIEL

I

ON the sea and at the Hogue, sixteen hundred ninety-two,
 Did the English fight the French,—woe to France !
And, the thirty-first of May, helter-skelter through the blue,
Like a crowd of frightened porpoises a shoal of sharks pursue,
 Came crowding ship on ship to Saint-Malo on the Rance,
With the English fleet in view.

5

II

'T was the squadron that escaped, with the victor
 in full chase ;
 First and foremost of the drove, in his great ship, Damfreville ;
 Close on him fled, great and small,
 Twenty-two good ships in all ;
And they signalled to the place
“ Help the winners of a race !
 Get us guidance, give us harbour, take us
 quick—or, quicker still,
 Here 's the English can and will ! ”

HERVÉ RIEL

III

Then the pilots of the place put out brisk and leapt on board ; 15 “Why, what hope or chance have ships like these to pass ?” laughed they :
“Rocks to starboard, rocks to port, all the passage scarred and scored,— Shall the ‘Formidable’ here, with her twelve and eighty guns,
Think to make the river-mouth by the single narrow way,
Trust to enter—where ’t is ticklish for a craft of twenty tons, 20
And with flow at full beside ?
Now, ’t is slackest ebb of tide.
Reach the mooring ? Rather say,
While rock stands or water runs,
Not a ship will leave the bay !” 25

IV

Then was called a council straight.
Brief and bitter the debate :
“Here ’s the English at our heels ; would you have them take in tow
All that ’s left us of the fleet, linked together stern and bow,
For a prize to Plymouth Sound ? 30
Better run the ships aground !”
(Ended Damfreville his speech).
“Not a minute more to wait !
Let the Captains all and each Shove ashore, then blow up, burn the vessels on the beach ! 35
France must undergo her fate.

V

Give the word !” But no such word
Was ever spoke or heard ;
For up stood, for out stepped, for in struck amid all these
—A Captain ? A Lieutenant ? A Mate—first, second, third ? 40
No such man of mark, and meet
With his betters to compete !
But a simple Breton sailor pressed by Tourville
for the fleet,
A poor coasting-pilot he, Hervé Riel the Croisickese.

VI

And “What mockery or malice have we here ?”
cries Hervé Riel : 45
“Are you mad, you Malouins ? Are you cowards, fools, or rogues ?
Talk to me of rocks and shoals, me who took the soundings, tell
On my fingers every bank, every shallow, every swell
’Twixt the offing here and Grève where the river disembogues ?
Are you bought by English gold ? Is it love the lying ’s for ? 50
Morn and eve, night and day,
Have I piloted your bay,
Entered free and anchored fast at the foot of Solidor.
Burn the fleet and ruin France ? That were worse than fifty Hogues !
Sirs, they know I speak the truth ! Sirs, believe me there ’s a way ! 55
Only let me lead the line, 60

HERVÉ RIEL

Have the biggest ship to steer,
Get this 'Formidable' clear,
Make the others follow mine,
And I lead them, most and least, by a passage I know well, 60
Right to Solidor past Grève,
And there lay them safe and sound ;
And if one ship misbehave,—
—Keel so much as grate the ground, Why, I've nothing but my life,—here 's my head!"

VII

Not a minute more to wait.
"Steer us in, then, small and great !
Take the helm, lead the line, save the squadron !" cried its chief.
Captains, give the sailor place !
He is Admiral, in brief. 70
Still the north-wind by God's grace,
See the noble fellow's face
As the big ship, with a bound,
Clears the entry like a hound, Keeps the passage, as its inch of way were the wide sea's profound ! 75
See, safe thro' shoal and rock,
How they follow in a flock,
Not a ship that misbehaves, not a keel that grates
the ground,
Not a spar that comes to grief !
The peril, see, is past. 80
All are harboured to the last,
And just as Hervé Riel hollas "Anchor !" —sure
as fate,
Up the English come,—too late !
61

HERVÉ RIEL

VIII

So, the storm subsides to calm :
They see the green trees wave 85
On the heights o'erlooking Grève.
Hearts that bled are stanch'd with balm.
"Just our rapture to enhance,
Let the English rake the bay,
Gnash their teeth and glare askance 90
As they cannonade away !
'Neath rampired Solidor pleasant riding on the Rance !"
How hope succeeds despair on each Captain's countenance !
Out burst all with one accord,
"This is Paradise for Hell ! 95
Let France, let France's King
Thank the man that did the thing !"
What a shout, and all one word,
"Hervé Riel !"
As he stepped in front once more, 100
Not a symptom of surprise
In the frank blue Breton eyes,
Just the same man as before.

IX

Then said Damfreville, "My friend,
I must speak out at the end, 105
Though I find the speaking hard.
Praise is deeper than the lips :
You have saved the King his ships,
You must name your own reward.
'Faith, our sun was near eclipse ! 110 Demand whate'er you will,
France remains your debtor still.
Ask to heart's content and have ! or my name's not Damfreville."

X

Then a beam of fun outbroke
On the bearded mouth that spoke, 115
As the honest heart laughed through Those frank eyes of Breton blue :
“ Since I needs must say my say,
Since on board the duty 's done,
And from Malo Roads to Croisic Point, what is it but a run ?— 120 Since 't is ask and have, I may—
Since the others go ashore—
Come ! A good whole holiday !
Leave to go and see my wife, whom I call the Belle Aurore ! ”
That he asked and that he got,—nothing more. 125

XI

Name and deed alike are lost :
Not a pillar nor a post
In his Croisic keeps alive the feat as it befell ;
Not a head in white and black
On a single fishing-smack, 130
In memory of the man but for whom had gone to wrack
All that France saved from the fight whence England bore the bell.
Go to Paris : rank on rank
Search the heroes flung pell-mell
On the Louvre, face and flank ! 135
You shall look long enough ere you come to Hervé Riel.
So, for better and for worse,
Hervé Riel, accept my verse !
In my verse, Hervé Riel, do thou once more Save the squadron, honour France, love thy wife
the Belle Aurore ! 140

A FORGIVENESS

I AM indeed the personage you know.
As for my wife,—what happened long ago,—
You have a right to question me, as I Am bound to answer.

("Son, a fit reply!")

The monk half spoke, half ground through his clenched teeth,
At the confession-grate I knelt beneath.) 5

Thus then all happened, Father! Power and place
I had as still I have. I ran life's race,
With the whole world to see, as only strains
His strength some athlete whose prodigious gains 10
Of good appal him : happy to excess,—
Work freely done should balance happiness
Fully enjoyed ; and, since beneath my roof Housed she who made home heaven, in heaven's behoof
I went forth every day, and all day long 15
Worked for the world. Look, how the labourer's song
Cheers him ! Thus sang my soul, at each sharp throe
Of labouring flesh and blood—"She loves me so !"

A FORGIVENESS

One day, perhaps such song so knit the nerve
That work grew play and vanished. "I deserve, 20
Haply my heaven an hour before the time!"
I laughed, as silverly the clockhouse-chime Surprised me passing through the postern-gate
—Not the main entry where the menials wait
And wonder why the world's affairs allow 25
The master sudden leisure. That was how
I took the private garden-way for once.

Forth from the alcove, I saw start, ensconce
Himself behind the porphyry vase, a man.

My fancies in the natural order ran : 30
"A spy,—perhaps a foe in ambushade,—
A thief,—more like, a sweetheart of some maid
Who pitched on the alcove for tryst perhaps."

"Stand there!" I bid.

Whereat my man but wraps
His face the closelier with uplifted arm 35
Whereon the cloak lies, strikes in blind alarm
This and that pedestal as,—stretch and stoop,—
Now in, now out of sight, he thrids the group
Of statues, marble god and goddess ranged
Each side the pathway, till the gate's exchanged 40
For safety: one step thence, the street, you know!

Thus far I followed with my gaze. Then, slow,
Near on admiringly, I breathed again,
And—back to that last fancy of the train—
"A danger risked for hope of just a word 45
With—which of all my nest may be the bird
This poacher covets for her plumage, pray?
Carmen? Juana? Carmen seems too gay
For such adventure, while Juana's grave —Would scorn the folly. I applaud the knave! 50

A FORGIVENESS

He had the eye, could single from my brood
His proper fledgeling ! ”

As I turned, there stood
In face of me, my wife stone-still stone-white.
Whether one bound had brought her,—at first sight
Of what she judged the encounter, sure to be 55
Next moment, of the venturous man and me,—
Brought her to clutch and keep me from my prey :
Whether impelled because her death no day
Could come so absolutely opportune
As now at joy's height, like a year in June 60
Stayed at the fall of its first ripened rose :
Or whether hungry for my hate—who knows ?—
Eager to end an irksome lie, and taste
Our tingling true relation, hate embraced
By hate one naked moment :—anyhow 65
There stone-still stone-white stood my wife, but now
The woman who made heaven within my house.
Ay, she who faced me was my very spouse
As well as love—you are to recollect !

“ Stay ! ” she said. “ Keep at least one soul un-specked 70
With crime, that 's spotless hitherto—your own !
Kill me who court the blessing, who alone
Was, am, and shall be guilty, first to last !
The man lay helpless in the toils I cast
About him, helpless as the statue there 75
Against that strangling bell-flower's bondage : tear
Away and tread to dust the parasite,
But do the passive marble no despite !
I love him as I hate you. Kill me ! Strike
At one blow both infinitudes alike 80
Out of existence—hate and love ! Whence love ?
That 's safe inside my heart, nor will remove
For any searching of your steel, I think.

A FORGIVENESS

Whence hate ? The secret lay on lip, at brink
Of speech, in one fierce tremble to escape, 85
At every form wherein your love took shape,
At each new provocation of your kiss.
Kill me !”

We went in.

Next day after this,
I felt as if the speech might come. I spoke—Easily, after all.

“The lifted cloak 90
Was screen sufficient : I concern myself
Hardly with laying hands on who for pelf—
Whate’er the ignoble kind—may prowl and brave
Cuffing and kicking proper to a knave
Detected by my household’s vigilance. 95
Enough of such ! As for my love-romance—
I, like our good Hidalgo, rub my eyes
And wake and wonder how the film could rise
Which changed for me a barber’s basin straight Into—Mambrino’s helm ? I hesitate 100
Nowise to say—God’s sacramental cup !
Why should I blame the brass which, burnished up,
Will blaze, to all but me, as good as gold ?
To me—a warning I was overbold
In judging metals. The Hidalgo waked 105
Only to die, if I remember,—staked
His life upon the basin’s worth, and lost :
While I confess torpidity at most
In here and there a limb ; but, lame and halt,
Still should I work on, still repair my fault 110
Ere I took rest in death,—no fear at all !
Now, work—no word before the curtain fall !”

The “curtain” ? That of death on life, I meant :
My “word,” permissible in death’s event,

A FORGIVENESS

Would be—truth, soul to soul ; for, otherwise, 115
Day by day, three years long, there had to rise
And, night by night, to fall upon our stage—
Ours, doomed to public play by heritage—
Another curtain, when the world, perforce
Our critical assembly, in due course 120
Came and went, witnessing, gave praise or blame
To art-mimetic. It had spoiled the game
If, suffered to set foot behind our scene,
The world had witnessed how stage-king and queen,
Gallant and lady, but a minute since 125
Enarming each the other, would evince
No sign of recognition as they took
His way and her way to whatever nook
Waited them in the darkness either side
Of that bright stage where lately groom and bride 130
Had fired the audience to a frenzy-fit
Of sympathetic rapture—every whit Earned as the curtain fell on her and me, —Actors. Three whole years, nothing was to see
But calm and concord ; where a speech was due 135
There came the speech : when smiles were wanted
too
Smiles were as ready. In a place like mine,
Where foreign and domestic cares combine,
There 's audience every day and all day long ;
But finally the last of the whole throng 140
Who linger lets one see his back. For her—
Why, liberty and liking : I aver,
Liking and liberty ! For me—I breathed,
Let my face rest from every wrinkle wreathed
Smile-like about the mouth, unlearned my task 145
Of personation till next day bade mask,
And quietly betook me from that world
To the real world, not pageant : there unfurled

A FORGIVENESS

In work, its wings, my soul, the fretted power.
Three years I worked, each minute of each hour 150
Not claimed by acting :—work I may dispense
With talk about, since work in evidence,
Perhaps in history ; who knows or cares ?

After three years, this way, all unawares,
Our acting ended. She and I, at close 155
Of a loud night-feast, led, between two rows
Of bending male and female loyalty,
Our lord the king down staircase, while, held high
At arm's length did the twisted tapers' flare
Herald his passage from our palace, where 160
Such visiting left glory evermore.
Again the ascent in public, till at door
As we two stood by the saloon—now blank
And disencumbered of its guests—there sank
A whisper in my ear, so low and yet 165
So unmistakable !

“ I half forget
The chamber you repair to, and I want
Occasion for one short word—if you grant
That grace—within a certain room you called
Our ‘ Study,’ for you wrote there while I scrawled 170
Some paper full of faces for my sport.
That room I can remember. Just one short Word with you there, for the remembrance' sake !”

“ Follow me thither !” I replied.

We break
The gloom a little, as with guiding lamp 175
I lead the way, leave warmth and cheer, by damp
Blind disused serpentine ways afar
From where the habitable chambers are,—

A FORGIVENESS

Ascend, descend stairs tunnelled through the stone,—

Always in silence,—till I reach the lone 180

Chamber sepulchred for my very own

Out of the palace-quarry. When a boy,

Here was my fortress, stronghold from annoy,

Proof-positive of ownership ; in youth

I garnered up my gleanings here—uncouth 185

But precious relics of vain hopes, vain fears ;

Finally, this became in after years

My closet of entrenchment to withstand

Invasion of the foe on every hand—

The multifarious herd in bower and hall, 190

State-room,—rooms whatsoe'er the style, which call

On masters to be mindful that, before

Men, they must look like men and something more.

Here,—when our lord the king's bestowment ceased

To deck me on the day that, golden-fleeced, 195

I touched ambition's height,—'t was here, released

From glory (always symbolled by a chain !)

No sooner was I privileged to gain

My secret domicile than glad I flung

That last toy on the table—gazed where hung 200

On hook my father's gift, the arquebuss—

And asked myself " Shall I envisage thus

The new prize and the old prize, when I reach

Another year's experience ?—own that each

Equalled advantage—sportsman's—statesman's tool ? 205

That brought me down an eagle, this—a fool ! "

Into which room on entry, I set down

The lamp, and turning saw whose rustled gown

A FORGIVENESS

Had told me my wife followed, pace for pace.
Each of us looked the other in the face. 210
She spoke. "Since I could die now . . ."

(To explain
Why that first struck me, know—not once again
Since the adventure at the porphyry's edge
Three years before, which sundered like a wedge
Her soul from mine,—though daily, smile to smile, 215
We stood before the public,—all the while
Not once had I distinguished, in that face
I paid observance to, the faintest trace
Of feature more than requisite for eyes
To do their duty by and recognize : 220
So did I force mine to obey my will
And pry no further. There exists such skill,— Those know who need it. What physician shrinks
From needful contact with a corpse? He drinks
No plague so long as thirst for knowledge—not 225
An idler impulse—prompts inquiry. What,
And will you disbelieve in power to bid
Our spirit back to bounds, as though we chid
A child from scrutiny that 's just and right
In manhood? Sense, not soul, accomplished sight, 230 Reported daily she it was—not how Nor why a change had come to cheek and brow.)

"Since I could die now of the truth concealed,
Yet dare not, must not die—so seems revealed
The Virgin's mind to me—for death means peace, 235
Wherein no lawful part have I, whose lease
Of life and punishment the truth avowed
May haply lengthen,—let me push the shroud Away, that steals to muffle ere is just My penance-fire in snow! I dare—I must 240
Live, by avowal of the truth—this truth—

A FORGIVENESS

I loved you ! Thanks for the fresh serpent's tooth
That, by a prompt new pang more exquisite
Than all preceding torture, proves me right !
I loved you yet I lost you ! May I go 245
Burn to the ashes, now my shame you know ? ”

I think there never was such—how express ?—
Horror coquetting with voluptuousness,
As in those arms of Eastern workmanship—
Yataghan, kandjar, things that rend and rip, 250
Gash rough, slash smooth, help hate so many ways,
Yet ever keep a beauty that betrays
Love still at work with the artificer
Throughout his quaint devising. Why prefer,
Except for love's sake, that a blade should writhe 255
And bicker like a flame ?—now play the scythe
As if some broad neck tempted,—now contract
And needle off into a fineness lacked
For just that puncture which the heart demands ?
Then, such adornment ! Wherefore need our hands 260
Enclose not ivory alone, nor gold Roughened for use, but jewels ? Nay, behold !
Fancy my favourite—which I seem to grasp
While I describe the luxury. No asp
Is diapered more delicate round throat 265
Than this below the handle ! These denote —These mazy lines meandering, to end
Only in flesh they open—what intend
They else but water-purlings—pale contrast
With the life-crimson where they blend at last ? 270
And mark the handle's dim pellucid green,
Carved, the hard jadestone, as you pinch a bean,
Into a sort of parrot-bird ! He pecks
A grape-bunch ; his two eyes are ruby-specks
Pure from the mine : seen this way,—glassy blank, 275
But turn them,—lo the inmost fire, that shrank

A FORGIVENESS

From sparkling, sends a red dart right to aim !
Why did I choose such toys ? Perhaps the game
Of peaceful men is warlike, just as men
War-wearied get amusement from that pen 280
And paper we grow sick of—statesfolk tired
Of merely (when such measures are required)
Dealing out doom to people by three words,
A signature and seal : we play with swords
Suggestive of quick process. That is how 285
I came to like the toys described you now,
Store of which glittered on the walls and strewed
The table, even, while my wife pursued
Her purpose to its ending. “ Now you know
This shame, my three years' torture, let me go, 290
Burn to the very ashes ! You—I lost, Yet you—I loved ! ”

The thing I pity most
In men is—action prompted by surprise
Of anger : men ? nay, bulls—whose onset lies
At instance of the firework and the goad ! 295 Once the foe prostrate,—trampling once bestowed,— Prompt follows placability, regret,
Atonement. Trust me, blood-warmth never yet Betokened strong will ! As no leap of pulse Pricked me, that first time, so did none convulse 300
My veins at this occasion for resolve.
Had that devolved which did not then devolve
Upon me, I had done—what now to do
Was quietly apparent.

“ Tell me who
The man was, crouching by the porphyry vase ! ” 305
“ No, never ! All was folly in his case,
All guilt in mine. I tempted, he complied.”

A FORGIVENESS

“And yet you loved me?”

“Loved you. Double-dyed
In folly and in guilt, I thought you gave
Your heart and soul away from me to slave 310
At statecraft. Since my right in you seemed lost,
I stung myself to teach you, to your cost,
What you rejected could be prized beyond Life, heaven, by the first fool I threw a fond Look on, a fatal word to.”

“And you still 315
Love me? Do I conjecture well or ill?”

“Conjecture—well or ill! I had three years
To spend in learning you.”

“We both are peers
In knowledge, therefore: since three years are spent Ere thus much of yourself I learn—who went 320
Back to the house, that day, and brought my mind
To bear upon your action, uncombined
Motive from motive, till the dross, deprived
Of every purer particle, survived
At last in native simple hideousness, 325
Utter contemptibility, nor less Nor more. Contemptibility—exempt
How could I, from its proper due—contempt?
I have too much despised you to divert
My life from its set course by help or hurt 330
Of your all-despicable life—perturb
The calm, I work in, by—men’s mouths to curb,
Which at such news were clamorous enough—
Men’s eyes to shut before my broidered stuff
With the huge hole there, my emblazoned wall 335
Blank where a scutcheon hung,—by, worse than all,
Each day’s procession, my paraded life
Robbed and impoverished through the wanting wife

A FORGIVENESS

—Now that my life (which means—my work) was grown

Riches indeed ! Once, just this worth alone 340
Seemed work to have, that profit gained thereby
Of good and praise would—how rewardingly !—
Fall at your feet,—a crown I hoped to cast
Before your love, my love should crown at last.
No love remaining to cast crown before, 345
My love stopped work now : but contempt the more

Impelled me task as ever head and hand,
Because the very fiends weave ropes of sand
Rather than taste pure hell in idleness.
Therefore I kept my memory down by stress 350
Of daily work I had no mind to stay
For the world's wonder at the wife away.

Oh, it was easy all of it, believe,
For I despised you ! But your words retrieve Importantly the past. No hate assumed 355
The mask of love at any time ! There gloomed
A moment when love took hate's semblance, urged
By causes you declare ; but love's self purged Away a fancied wrong I did both loves

—Yours and my own : by no hate's help, it proves, 360
Purgation was attempted. Then, you rise
High by how many a grade ! I did despise—
I do but hate you. Let hate's punishment Replace contempt's ! First step to which ascent—Write down your own words I re-utter you ! 365

*'I loved my husband and I hated—who
He was, I took up as my first chance, mere Mud-ball to fling and make love foul with !'* Here Lies paper !”

“ Would my blood for ink suffice !”

“ It may : this minion from a land of spice, 370

A FORGIVENESS

Silk, feather—every bird of jewelled breast—
This poignard's beauty, ne'er so lightly prest Above your heart there . . .”

“ Thus ? ”

“ It flows, I see.
Dip there the point and write ! ”

“ Dictate to me !
Nay, I remember.”

And she wrote the words. 375
I read them. Then—“ Since love, in you, affords License for hate, in me, to quench (I say)
Contempt—why, hate itself has passed away
In vengeance—foreign to contempt. Depart Peacefully to that death which Eastern art 380
Imbued this weapon with, if tales be true !
Love will succeed to hate. I pardon you—Dead in our chamber ! ”

True as truth the tale.
She died ere morning ; then, I saw how pale
Her cheek was ere it wore day's paint-disguise, 385
And what a hollow darkened 'neath her eyes,
Now that I used my own. She sleeps, as erst Beloved, in this your church : ay, yours !

Immersed
In thought so deeply, Father ? Sad, perhaps ?
For whose sake, hers or mine or his who wraps 390
—Still plain I seem to see !—about his head
The idle cloak,—about his heart (instead Of cuirass) some fond hope he may elude
My vengeance in the cloister's solitude ?
Hardly, I think ! As little helped his brow 395
The cloak then, Father—as your grate helps now !

CENCIAJA

Ogni cencio vuol entrare in bucato.—Italian Proverb.

MAY I print, Shelley, how it came to pass
That when your Beatrice seemed—by lapse
Of many a long month since her sentence fell—
Assured of pardon for the parricide,—
By intercession of staunch friends, or, say, 5
By certain pricks of conscience in the Pope
Conniver at Francesco Cenci's guilt,— Suddenly all things changed and Clement grew
"Stern," as you state, "nor to be moved nor bent,
But said these three words coldly 'She must die'"; 10
Subjoining 'Pardon? Paolo Santa Croce
Murdered his mother also yestereve,
And he is fled: she shall not flee at least!'
—So, to the letter, sentence was fulfilled?
Shelley, may I condense verbosity 15
That lies before me, into some few words
Of English, and illustrate your superb
Achievement by a rescued anecdote,
No great things, only new and true beside?
As if some mere familiar of a house 20
Should venture to accost the group at gaze
Before its Titian, famed the wide world through,
And supplement such pictured masterpiece
By whisper "Searching in the archives here,
I found the reason of the Lady's fate, 25
And how by accident it came to pass

CENCIAJA

She wears the halo and displays the palm :
Who, haply, else had never suffered—no,
Nor graced our gallery, by consequence.”
Who loved the work would like the little news : 30
Who lauds your poem lends an ear to me
Relating how the penalty was paid
By one Marchese dell’ Oriolo, called Onofrio Santa Croce otherwise,
For his complicity in matricide 35
With Paolo his own brother,—he whose crime And flight induced “ those three words—She must die.”

Thus I unroll you then the manuscript.

“ God’s justice ”—(of the multiplicity
Of such communications extant still, 40
Recording, each, injustice done by God
In person of his Vicar-upon-earth, Scarce one but leads off to the self-same tune)—
“ God’s justice, tardy though it prove perchance,
Rests never on the track until it reach 45
Delinquency. In proof I cite the case Of Paolo Santa Croce.”

Many times
The youngster,—having been importunate
That Marchesine Costanza, who remained
His widowed mother, should supplant the heir 50
Her elder son, and substitute himself
In sole possession of her faculty,—
And meeting just as often with rebuff,— Blinded by so exorbitant a lust
Of gold, the youngster straightway tasked his wits, 55
Casting about to kill the lady—thus.

He first, to cover his iniquity,

CENCIAJA

Writes to Onofrio Santa Croce, then Authoritative lord, acquainting him
Their mother was contamination—wrought 60
Like hell-fire in the beauty of their House
By dissoluteness and abandonment
Of soul and body to impure delight.
Moreover, since she suffered from disease,
Those symptoms which her death made manifest 65
Hydroptic, he affirmed were fruits of sin
About to bring confusion and disgrace
Upon the ancient lineage and high fame
O' the family, when published. Duty bound,
He asked his brother—what a son should do? 70

Which when Marchese dell' Oriolo heard
By letter, being absent at his land
Oriolo, he made answer, this, no more :
“ It must behove a son,—things haply so,—
To act as honour prompts a cavalier 75
And son, perform his duty to all three,
Mother and brothers ”—here advice broke off.

By which advice informed and fortified,
As he professed himself—since bound by birth
To hear God's voice in primogeniture— 80
Paolo, who kept his mother company
In her domain Subiaco, straightway dared
His whole enormity of enterprise
And, falling on her, stabbed the lady dead ;
Whose death demonstrated her innocence, 85
And happened,—by the way,—since Jesus Christ
Died to save man, just sixteen hundred years.
Costanza was of aspect beautiful Exceedingly, and seemed, although in age
Sixty about, to far surpass her peers 90
The coëtaneous dames, in youth and grace.

CENCIAJA

Done the misdeed, its author takes to flight,
Foiling thereby the justice of the world :
Not God's however,—God, be sure, knows well
The way to clutch a culprit. Witness here ! 95
The present sinner, when he least expects,
Snug-cornered somewhere i' the Basilicate,
Stumbles upon his death by violence.
A man of blood assaults a man of blood
And slays him somehow. This was afterward : 100
Enough, he promptly met with his deserts,
And, ending thus, permits we end with him,
And push forthwith to this important point—
His matricide fell out, of all the days,
Precisely when the law-procedure closed 105
Respecting Count Francesco Cenci's death
Chargeable on his daughter, sons and wife.
“Thus patricide was matched with matricide,”
A poet not inelegantly rhymed :
Nay, fratricide—those Princes Massimi !— 110
Which so disturbed the spirit of the Pope
That all the likelihood Rome entertained
Of Beatrice's pardon vanished straight,
And she endured the piteous death.

Now see
The sequel—what effect commandment had 115
For strict inquiry into this last case,
When Cardinal Aldobrandini (great
His efficacy—nephew to the Pope)
Was bidden crush—ay, though his very hand
Got soil i' the act—crime spawning everywhere ! 120
Because, when all endeavour had been used
To catch the aforesaid Paolo, all in vain—
“Make perquisition” quoth our Eminence, “Throughout his now deserted domicile !
Ransack the palace, roof and floor, to find 125

CENCIAJA

If haply any scrap of writing, hid
In nook or corner, may convict—who knows?—
Brother Onofrio of intelligence
With brother Paolo, as in brotherhood
Is but too likely : crime spawns everywhere.” 130

And, every cranny searched accordingly,
There comes to light—O lynx-eyed Cardinal!—
Onofrio’s unconsidered writing-scrap,
The letter in reply to Paolo’s prayer,
The word of counsel that—things proving so, 135
Paolo should act the proper knightly part,
And do as was incumbent on a son,
A brother—and a man of birth, be sure !

Whereat immediately the officers
Proceeded to arrest Onofrio—found 140
At foot-ball, child’s play, unaware of harm,
Safe with his friends, the Orsini, at their seat
Monte Giordano ; as he left the house
He came upon the watch in wait for him
Set by the Barigel,—was caught and caged. 145

News of which capture being, that same hour,
Conveyed to Rome, forthwith our Eminence Commands Taverna, Governor and Judge,
To have the process in especial care,
Be, first to last, not only president 150
In person, but inquisitor as well,
Nor trust the by-work to a substitute :
Bids him not, squeamish, keep the bench, but scrub
The floor of Justice, so to speak,—go try
His best in prison with the criminal : 155
Promising, as reward for by-work done
Fairly on all-fours, that, success obtained
And crime avowed, or such connivency

CENCIAJA

With crime as should procure a decent death—
Himself will humbly beg—which means, procure— 160
The Hat and Purple from his relative
The Pope, and so repay a diligence
Which, meritorious in the Cenci-case,
Mounts plainly here to Purple and the Hat.

Whereupon did my lord the Governor 165
So masterfully exercise the task
Enjoined him, that he, day by day, and week
By week, and month by month, from first to last Toiled for the prize : now, punctual at his place,
Played Judge, and now, assiduous at his post, 170
Inquisitor—pressed cushion and scoured plank,
Early and late. Noon's fervour and night's chill, Nought moved whom morn would, purpling,
make amends !

So that observers laughed as, many a day,
He left home, in July when day is flame, 175
Posted to Tordinona-prison, plunged Into a vault where daylong night is ice,
There passed his eight hours on a stretch, content,
Examining Onofrio : all the stress
Of all examination steadily 180
Converging into one pin-point,—he pushed Tentative now of head and now of heart.
As when the nuthatch taps and tries the nut
This side and that side till the kernel sound,—
So did he press the sole and single point 185
—What was the very meaning of the phrase
'Do as beseems an honoured cavalier' ?

Which one persistent question-torture,—plied
Day by day, week by week, and month by month,
Morn, noon and night,—fatigued away a mind 190
Grown imbecile by darkness, solitude,

CENCIAJA

And one vivacious memory gnawing there
As when a corpse is confined with a snake :
—Fatigued Onofrio into what might seem Admission that perchance his judgment groped 195
So blindly, feeling for an issue—ought
With semblance of an issue from the toils
Cast of a sudden round feet late so free,
He possibly might have envisaged, scarce
Recoiled from—even were the issue death 200
—Even her death whose life was death and worse !
Always provided that the charge of crime,
Each jot and tittle of the charge, were true.
In such a sense, belike, he might advise
His brother to expurgate crime with . . . well, 205
With blood, if blood must follow on 'the course
Taken as might beseem a cavalier.'

Whereupon process ended, and report
Was made without a minute of delay
To Clement who, because of those two crimes 210
O' the Massimi and Cenci flagrant late,
Must needs impatiently desire result.

Result obtained, he bade the Governor Summon the Congregation and despatch.
Summons made, sentence passed accordingly 215
—Death by beheading. When his death-decree
Was intimated to Onofrio, all Man could do—that did he to save himself.
'T was much, the having gained for his defence
The Advocate o' the Poor, with natural help 220
Of many noble friendly persons fain
To disengage a man of family,
So young too, from his grim entanglement :
But Cardinal Aldobrandini ruled
There must be no diversion of the law. 225

CENCIAJA

Justice is justice, and the magistrate
Bears not the sword in vain. Who sins must die.

So, the Marchese had his head cut off,
With Rome to see, a concourse infinite,
In Place Saint Angelo beside the Bridge : 230
Where, demonstrating magnanimity
Adequate to his birth and breed,—poor boy !—
He made the people the accustomed speech,
Exhorted them to true faith, honest works,
And special good behaviour as regards 235
A parent of no matter what the sex,
Bidding each son take warning from himself.
Truly, it was considered in the boy
Stark staring lunacy, no less, to snap
So plain a bait, be hooked and hauled ashore 240
By such an angler as the Cardinal !
Why make confession of his privy
To Paolo's enterprise? Mere sealing lips—
Or, better, saying "When I counselled him
'To do as might beseem a cavalier,' 245
What could I mean but 'Hide our parent's shame
As Christian ought, by aid of Holy Church !
Bury it in a convent—ay, beneath
Enough dotation to prevent its ghost From troubling earth !'" Mere saying thus,—'t is plain, 250
Not only were his life the recompense,
But he had manifestly proved himself
True Christian, and in lieu of punishment
Got praise of all men. So the populace.

Anyhow, when the Pope made promise good 255
(That of Aldobrandini, near and dear)
And gave Taverna, who had toiled so much,
A Cardinal's equipment, some such word

CENCIAJA

As this from mouth to ear went saucily :
"Taverna's cap is dyed in what he drew 260
From Santa Croce's veins !" So joked the world.

I add : Onofrio left one child behind,
A daughter named Valeria, dowered with grace
Abundantly of soul and body, doomed
To life the shorter for her father's fate. 265
By death of her, the Marquisate returned
To that Orsini House from whence it came :
Oriolo having passed as donative
To Santa Croce from their ancestors.

And no word more ? By all means ! Would you know 270
The authoritative answer, when folk urged
"What made Aldobrandini, hound-like staunch, Hunt out of life a harmless simpleton ?"
The answer was—"Hatred implacable,
By reason they were rivals in their love." 275
The Cardinal's desire was to a dame
Whose favour was Onofrio's. Pricked with pride,
The simpleton must ostentatiously
Display a ring, the Cardinal's love-gift,
Given to Onofrio as the lady's gage ; 280
Which ring on finger, as he put forth hand
To draw a tapestry, the Cardinal
Saw and knew, gift and owner, old and young ;
Whereon a fury entered him—the fire
He quenched with what could quench fire only—blood. 285
Nay, more : "there want not who affirm to boot,
The unwise boy, a certain festal eve,
Feigned ignorance of who the wight might be
That pressed too closely on him with a crowd.
He struck the Cardinal a blow : and then, 290

CENCIAJA

To put a face upon the incident,
Dared next day, smug as ever, go pay court
I' the Cardinal's antechamber. Mark and mend,
Ye youth, by this example how may greed
Vainglorious operate in worldly souls!" 295

So ends the chronicler, beginning with
"God's justice, tardy though it prove perchance, Rests never till it reach delinquency."
Ay, or how otherwise had come to pass
That Victor rules, this present year, in Rome? 300

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI ON THE PRIVILEGE OF BURIAL

A REMINISCENCE OF A.D. 1676

I

“No, boy, we must not”—so began
My Uncle (he ’s with God long since)
A-petting me, the good old man !
“We must not”—and he seemed to wince,
And lost that laugh whereto had grown 5
His chuckle at my piece of news,
How cleverly I aimed my stone—
“I fear we must not pelt the Jews !

II

“When I was young indeed,—ah, faith
Was young and strong in Florence too ! 10
We Christians never dreamed of scathe
Because we cursed or kicked the crew.
But now—well, well ! The olive-crops
Weighed double then, and Arno’s pranks
Would always spare religious shops 15
Whenever he o’erflowed his banks !

III

“I ’ll tell you”—and his eye regained
Its twinkle—“tell you something choice !
Something may help you keep unstained
Your honest zeal to stop the voice 20

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI

Of unbelief with stone-throw—spite
Of laws, which modern fools enact,
That we must suffer Jews in sight
Go wholly unmolested ! Fact !

IV

“ There was, then, in my youth, and yet 25
Is, by our San Frediano, just Below the Blessed Olivet,
A wayside ground wherein they thrust
Their dead,—these Jews,—the more our shame !
Except that, so they will but die, 30
Christians perchance incur no blame
In giving hogs a hoist to sty.

V

“ There, anyhow, Jews stow away
Their dead ; and,—such their insolence,— Slink at odd times to sing and pray 35
As Christians do—all make-pretence !—
Which wickedness they perpetrate
Because they think no Christians see.
They reckoned here, at any rate,
Without their host : ha, ha, he, he ! 40

VI

“ For, what should join their plot of ground
But a good Farmer's Christian field ?
The Jews had hedged their corner round
With bramble-bush to keep concealed
Their doings : for the public road 45
Ran betwixt this their ground and that
The Farmer's, where he ploughed and sowed,
Grew corn for barn and grapes for vat.

ON THE PRIVILEGE OF BURIAL

VII

“ So, properly to guard his store
And gall the unbelievers too, 50
He builds a shrine and, what is more,
Procures a painter whom I knew,
One Buti (he 's with God) to paint
A holy picture there—no less Than Virgin Mary free from taint 55
Borne to the sky by angels : yes !

VIII

“ Which shrine he fixed,—who says him nay ?—
A-facing with its picture-side
Not, as you 'd think, the public way,
But just where sought these hounds to hide 60
Their carrion from that very truth
Of Mary's triumph : not a hound
Could act his mummeries uncouth
But Mary shamed the pack all round !

IX

“ Now, if it was amusing, judge ! 65
—To see the company arrive,
Each Jew intent to end his trudge
And take his pleasure (though alive)
With all his Jewish kith and kin
Below ground, have his venom out, 70
Sharpen his wits for next day's sin,
Curse Christians, and so home, no doubt !

X

“ Whereas, each phyz upturned beholds
Mary, I warrant, soaring brave !
And in a trice, beneath the folds 75
Of filthy garb which gowns each knave,

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI

Down drops it—there to hide grimace,
Contortion of the mouth and nose
At finding Mary in the place
They 'd keep for Pilate, I suppose !

80

XI

“ At last, they will not brook—not they !—
Longer such outrage on their tribe :
So, in some hole and corner, lay
Their heads together—how to bribe
The meritorious Farmer's self
To straight undo his work, restore
Their chance to meet and muse on pelf—
Pretending sorrow, as before !

XII

“ Forthwith, a posse, if you please,
Of Rabbi This and Rabbi That Almost go down upon their knees
To get him lay the picture flat.
The spokesman, eighty years of age,
Grey as a badger, with a goat's
Not only beard but bleat, 'gins wage War with our Mary. Thus he dotes :—

90

XIII

“ *Friends, grant a grace ! How Hebrews toil Through life in Florence—why relate
To those who lay the burden, spoil
Our paths of peace ? We bear our fate.
But when with life the long toil ends,
Why must you—the expression craves
Pardon, but truth compels me, friends !—
Why must you plague us in our graves ?*

100

ON THE PRIVILEGE OF BURIAL

XIV

*“ ‘ Thoughtlessly plague, I would believe !
For how can you—the lords of ease
By nurture, birthright—e’en conceive
Our luxury to lie with trees
And turf,—the cricket and the bird
Left for our last companionship :
No harsh deed, no unkindly word,
No frowning brow nor scornful lip !*

105
110

XV

*“ ‘ Death’s luxury, we now rehearse
While, living, through your streets we fare
And take your hatred : nothing worse
Have we, once dead and safe, to bear !
So we refresh our souls, fulfil
Our works, our daily tasks ; and thus Gather you grain—earth’s harvest—still
The wheat for you, the straw for us.*

120

XVI

*“ ‘ ‘ What flouting in a face, what harm,
In just a lady borne from bier
By boys’ heads, wings for leg and arm ? ‘
You question. Friends, the harm is here—
That just when our last sigh is heaved,
And we would fain thank God and you
For labour done and peace achieved,
Back comes the Past in full review !*

XVII

*“ ‘ At sight of just that simple flag, Starts the foe-feeling serpent-like
From slumber. Leave it lulled, nor drag—
Though fangless—forth, what needs must strike*

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI

*When stricken sore, though stroke be vain Against the mailed oppressor ! Give Play to our fancy that we gain 135
Life's rights when once we cease to live !*

XVIII

*" ' Thus much to courtesy, to kind,
To conscience ! Now to Florence folk !
There 's core beneath this apple-rind,
Beneath this white-of-egg there 's yolk ! 140
Beneath this prayer to courtesy,
Kind, conscience—there 's a sum to pouch !
How many ducats down will buy
Our shame's removal, sirs ? Avouch !*

XIX

*" ' Removal, not destruction, sirs ! 145
Just turn your picture ! Let it front
The public path ! Or memory errs,
Or that same public path is wont
To witness many a chance befall
Of lust, theft, bloodshed—sins enough, 150
Wherein our Hebrew part is small.
Convert yourselves ! '—he cut up rough.*

XX

*" Look you, how soon a service paid
Religion yields the servant fruit !
A prompt reply our Farmer made 155
So following : ' Sirs, to grant your suit
Involves much danger ! How ? Transpose
Our Lady ? Stop the chastisement,
All for your good, herself bestows ?
What wonder if I grudge consent ? 160*

ON THE PRIVILEGE OF BURIAL

XXI

“ ‘—Yet grant it; since, what cash I take
Is so much saved from wicked use.
We know you! And, for Mary's sake,
A hundred ducats shall induce Concession to your prayer. One day
Suffices: Master Buti's brush
Turns Mary round the other way,
And deluges your side with slush.

XXII

“ ‘Down with the ducats therefore!’ Dump,
Dump, dump it falls, each counted piece,
Hard gold. Then out of door they stump,
These dogs, each brisk as with new lease
Of life, I warrant,—glad he 'll die
Henceforward just as he may choose,
Be buried and in clover lie!
Well said Esaias—‘stiff-necked Jews!’

170
175

XXIII

“ Off posts without a minute's loss
Our Farmer, once the cash in poke
And summons Buti—ere its gloss
Have time to fade from off the joke—
To chop and change his work, undo
The done side, make the side, now blank, Recipient of our Lady—who,
Displaced thus, had these dogs to thank!

180

XXIV

“ Now, boy, you 're hardly to instruct
In technicalities of Art!
My nephew's childhood sure has sucked
Along with mother's-milk some part 185

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI

Of painter's-practice—learned, at least,
How expeditiously is plied 190
A work in fresco—never ceased
When once begun—a day, each side.

XXV

“So, Buti—(he 's with God)—begins :
First covers up the shrine all round
With hoarding ; then, as like as twins, 195
Paints, t' other side the burial-ground,
New Mary, every point the same ;
Next, sluices over, as agreed,
The old ; and last—but, spoil the game
By telling you ? Not I, indeed ! 200

XXVI

“Well, ere the week was half at end,
Out came the object of this zeal,
This fine alacrity to spend
Hard money for mere dead men's weal !
How think you ? That old spokesman Jew 205
Was High Priest, and he had a wife
As old, and she was dying too,
And wished to end in peace her life !

XXVII

“And he must humour dying whims,
And soothe her with the idle hope 210
They'd say their prayers and sing their hymns
As if her husband were the Pope !
And she did die—believing just
This privilege was purchased ! Dead
In comfort through her foolish trust ! 215
'Stiff-necked ones,' well Esaias said !

ON THE PRIVILEGE OF BURIAL

XXVIII

“So, Sabbath morning, out of gate
And on to way, what sees our arch
Good Farmer? Why, they hoist their freight—
The corpse—on shoulder, and so, march! 220
‘Now for it, Buti!’ In the nick
Of time ’t is pully-haully, hence
With hoarding! O’er the wayside quick
There ’s Mary plain in evidence!

“And here ’s the convoy halting: right! 225
O they are bent on howling psalms
And growling prayers, when opposite!
And yet they glance, for all their qualms,
Approve that promptitude of his,
The Farmer’s—duly at his post 230
To take due thanks from every phyzy, Sour smirk—nay, surly smile almost!

XXX

“Then earthward drops each brow again;
The solemn task ’s resumed; they reach
Their holy field—the unholy train: 235
Enter its precinct, all and each,
Wrapt somehow in their godless rites;
Till, rites at end, up-waking, lo
They lift their faces! What delights
The mourners as they turn to go? 240

XXXI

“Ha, ha, he, he! On just the side
They drew their purse-strings to make quit
Of Mary,—Christ the crucified
Fronted them now—these biters bit!

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI

Never was such a hiss and snort, 245
Such screwing nose and shooting lip !
Their purchase—honey in report—
Proved gall and verjuice at first sip !

XXXII

“ Out they break, on they bustle, where,
A-top of wall, the Farmer waits 250
With Buti : never fun so rare !
The Farmer has the best : he rates
The rascal, as the old High Priest
Takes on himself to sermonize—
Nay, sneer ‘ We Jews supposed, at least, 255
Theft was a crime in Christian eyes !’

XXXIII

“ ‘ Theft ? ’ cries the Farmer. ‘ Eat your words !
Show me what constitutes a breach
Of faith in aught was said or heard !
I promised you in plainest speech 260
I ’d take the thing you count disgrace
And put it here—and here ’t is put !
Did you suppose I ’d leave the place
Blank, therefore, just your rage to glut ?

XXXIV

“ ‘ I guess you dared not stipulate 265
For such a damned impertinence !
So, quick, my greybeard, out of gate
And in at Ghetto ! Haste you hence !
As long as I have house and land,
To spite you irreligious chaps 270
Here shall the Crucifixion stand—
Unless you down with cash, perhaps !’

ON THE PRIVILEGE OF BURIAL

XXXV

“ So snickered he and Buti both.
The Jews said nothing, interchanged
A glance or two, renewed their oath 275
To keep ears stopped and hearts estranged
From grace, for all our Church can do ;
Then off they scuttle : sullen jog
Homewards, against our Church to brew
Fresh mischief in their synagogue. 280

XXXVI

“ But next day—see what happened, boy !
See why I bid you have a care
How you pelt Jews ! The knaves employ Such methods of revenge, forbear
No outrage on our faith, when free 285
To wreak their malice ! Here they took So base a method—plague o’ me
If I record it in my Book !

XXXVII

“ For, next day, while the Farmer sat
Laughing with Buti, in his shop, 290
At their successful joke,—rat-tat,— Door opens, and they ’re like to drop Down to the floor as in there stalks
A six-feet-high herculean-built
Young he-Jew with a beard that baulks 295
Description. ‘Help ere blood be spilt !’

XXXVIII

—“ Screamed Buti : for he recognized Whom but the son, no less no more,
Of that High Priest his work surprised
So pleasantly the day before ! 300

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI

Son of the mother, then, whereof
The bier he lent a shoulder to,
And made the moans about, dared scoff
At sober Christian grief—the Jew !

XXXIX

“ ‘ *Sirs, I salute you ! Never rise !
No apprehension !* ’ (Buti, white
And trembling like a tub of size,
Had tried to smuggle out of sight
The picture’s self—the thing in oils,
You know, from which a fresco’s dashed
Which courage speeds while caution spoils) ‘ Stay and be praised, sir, unabashed ! ”

305

XL

“ ‘ *Praised,—ay, and paid too : for I come
To buy that very work of yours.
My poor abode, which boasts—well, some Few specimens of Art, secures Haply, a masterpiece indeed
If I should find my humble means Suffice the outlay. So, proceed !
Propose—ere prudence intervenes !* ’ ”

XLI

“ On Buti, cowering like a child,
These words descended from aloft,
In tone so ominously mild,
With smile terrifically soft
To that degree—could Buti dare (Poor fellow) use his brains, think twice ?
He asked, thus taken unaware,
No more than just the proper price ! ”

325

XLII

“ ‘Done!’ cries the monster. ‘*I disburse
Forthwith your moderate demand.*’ 330
*Count on my custom—if no worse
Your future work be, understand,
Than this I carry off! No aid!
My arm, sir, lacks nor bone nor thews:
The burden’s easy, and we’re made,* 335
Easy or hard, to bear—we Jews!’

XLIII

“Crossing himself at such escape,
Buti by turns the money eyes
And, timidly, the stalwart shape
Now moving doorwards; but, more wise, 340
The Farmer,—who, though dumb, this while
Had watched advantage,—straight conceived
A reason for that tone and smile
So mild and soft! The Jew—believed!

XLIV

“Mary in triumph borne to deck 345
A Hebrew household! Pictured where
No one was used to bend the neck
In praise or bow the knee in prayer!
Borne to that domicile by whom?
The son of the High Priest! Through what? 350
An insult done his mother’s tomb!
Saul changed to Paul—the case came pat!

XLV

“ ‘Stay, dog-Jew . . . gentle sir, that is!
Resolve me! Can it be, she crowned,—
Mary, by miracle,—Oh bliss!— 355
My present to your burial ground?’

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI

*Certain, a ray of light has burst :
Your veil of darkness ! Had you else,
Only for Mary's sake, unpursed
So much hard money ? Tell—oh, tell 's !* 360

XLVI

*“ Round—like a serpent that we took
For worm and trod on—turns his bulk
About the Jew. First dreadful look Sends Buti in a trice to skulk
Out of sight somewhere, safe—alack !
But our good Farmer faith made bold :
And firm (with Florence at his back)
He stood, while gruff the gutturals rolled—* 365

XLVII

*“ ‘ Ay, sir, a miracle was worked,
By quite another power, I trow,
Than ever yet in canvas lurked,
Or you would scarcely face me now !
A certain impulse did suggest
A certain grasp with this right-hand,
Which probably had put to rest
Our quarrel,—thus your throat once spanned !* 370 375

XLVIII

*“ ‘ But I remembered me, subdued That impulse, and you face me still !
And soon a philosophic mood Succeeding (hear it, if you will !)
Has altogether changed my views Concerning Art. Blind prejudice !
Well may you Christians tax us Jews
With scrupulosity too nice !* 380

ON THE PRIVILEGE OF BURIAL

XLIX

“ ‘ For, don't I see,—let's issue join !— Whenever I'm allowed pollute
(I—and my little bag of coin)
Some Christian palace of repute,—
Don't I see stuck up everywhere
Abundant proof that cultured taste
Has Beauty for its only care,
And upon Truth no thought to waste ?

385

L

“ ‘ Jew, since it must be, take in pledge
 Of payment ‘—so a Cardinal
Has sighed to me as if a wedge Entered his heart—’ this best of all My treasures ! ‘ Leda, Ganymede
Or Antiope : swan, eagle, ape,
(Or what's the beast of what's the breed)
And Jupiter in every shape !

395
400

LI

“ ‘ Whereat if I presume to ask
 ‘ But, Eminence, though Titian's whisk
 Of brush have well performed its task,
 How comes it these false godships frisk
 In presence of—what yonder frame
 Pretends to image ? Surely, odd
 It seems, you let confront The Name
 Each beast the heathen called his god ! ‘

405

LII

“ ‘ Benignant smiles me pity straight
The Cardinal. ’ ’T is Truth, we prize !
 Art's the sole question in debate !
 These subjects are so many lies.

410

FILIPPO BALDINUCCI

We treat them with a proper scorn
When we turn lies—called gods forsooth—
To lies' fit use, now Christ is born. 415
Drawing and colouring are Truth.

LIII

“ ‘ Think you I honour lies so much
As scruple to parade the charms
Of Leda—Titian, every touch—
Because the thing within her arms 420
Means Jupiter who had the praise
And prayer of a benighted world ?
He would have mine too, if, in days
Of light, I kept the canvas furled ! ‘

LIV

“ ‘ So ending, with some easy gibe.
What power has logic ! I, at once,
Acknowledged error in our tribe
So squeamish that, when friends ensconce
A pretty picture in its niche
To do us honour, deck our graves, 430
We fret and fume and have an itch
To strangle folk—ungrateful knaves !

LV

“ ‘ No, sir ! Be sure that—what 's its style,
Your picture ?—shall possess ungrudged
A place among my rank and file 435
Of Ledas and what not—be judged
Just as a picture ! and (because I fear me much I scarce have bought A Titian) Master Buti's flaws
Found there, will have the laugh flaws ought ! ‘ 440

ON THE PRIVILEGE OF BURIAL

LV1

“So, with a scowl, it darkens door—
This bulk—no longer ! Buti makes Prompt glad re-entry ; there 's a score
Of oaths, as the good Farmer wakes
From what must needs have been a trance, 445
Or he had struck (he swears) to ground
The bold bad mouth that dared advance
Such doctrine the reverse of sound !

LVII

“Was magic here ? Most like ! For, since,
Somehow our city's faith grows still 450
More and more lukewarm, and our Prince
Or loses heart or wants the will
To check increase of cold. 'T is 'Live
And let live ! Languidly repress
The Dissident ! In short,—contrive 455 Christians must bear with Jews : no less !'

LVIII

“The end seems, any Israelite
Wants any picture,—pishes, poohs,
Purchases, hangs it full in sight
In any chamber he may choose ! 460
In Christ's crown, one more thorn we rue !
In Mary's bosom, one more sword !
No, boy, you must not pelt a Jew !
O Lord, how long ? How long, O Lord ?”

EPILOGUE

*μεστοι . . .
οι δ' ἀμφορῆς οἶνου μέλανος ἀνθοσμίου.*

I

“THE poets pour us wine—”
Said the dearest poet I ever knew,
Dearest and greatest and best to me.
You clamour athirst for poetry—
We pour. “But when shall a vintage be”— 5
You cry—“strong grape, squeezed gold from screw,
Yet sweet juice, flavoured flowery-fine?
That were indeed the wine!”

II

One pours your cup—stark strength,
Meat for a man; and you eye the pulp 10
Strained, turbid still, from the viscous blood
Of the snaky bough: and you grumble “Good!
For it swells resolve, breeds hardihood;
Despatch it, then, in a single gulp!”
So, down, with a wry face, goes at length 15
The liquor: stuff for strength.

III

One pours your cup—sheer sweet,
The fragrant fumes of a year condensed:
Suspicion of all that's ripe or rathe,
From the bud on branch to the grass in swathe. 20

EPILOGUE

"We suck mere milk of the seasons," saith
A curl of each nostril—"dew, dispensed
Nowise for nerving man to feat :
Boys sip such honeyed sweet !"

IV

And thus who wants wine strong, 25
Waves each sweet smell of the year away ;
Who likes to swoon as the sweets suffuse
His brain with a mixture of beams and dews Turned syrupy drink—rough strength eschews :
"What though in our veins your wine-stock stay ? 30
The lack of the bloom does our palate wrong.
Give us wine sweet, not strong !"

V

Yet wine is—some affirm—
Prime wine is found in the world somewhere,
Of potable strength with sweet to match. 35
You double your heart its dose, yet catch—
As the draught descends—a violet-smatch,
Softness—however it came there,
Through drops expressed by the fire and worm :
Strong sweet wine—some affirm. 40

VI

Body and bouquet both ?
'T is easy to ticket a bottle so ;
But what was the case in the cask, my friends ?
Cask ? Nay, the vat—where the maker mends 45
His strong with his sweet (you suppose) and blends
His rough with his smooth, till none can know
How it comes you may tipple, nothing loth,
Body and bouquet both.

VII

"You" being just—the world.
No poets—who turn, themselves, the winch 50
Of the press; no critics—I 'll even say,
(Being flustered and easy of faith to-day)
Who for love of the work have learned the way
Till themselves produce home-made, at a pinch:
No! You are the world, and wine ne'er purled 55
Except to please the world!

VIII

"For, oh the common heart!
And, ah the irremissible sin
Of poets who please themselves, not us!
Strong wine yet sweet wine pouring thus, 60
How please still—Pindar and Æschylus!—
Drink—dipt into by the bearded chin Alike and the bloomy lip—no part Denied the common heart!

IX

"And might we get such grace, 65
And did you moderns but stock our vault
With the true half-brand'y half-attar-gul,
How would seniors indulge at a hearty pull
While juniors tossed off their thimbleful!
Our Shakespeare and Milton escaped your fault, 70
So, they reign supreme o'er the weaker race
That wants the ancient grace!"

X

If I paid myself with words
(As the French say well) I were dupe indeed!
I were found in belief that you quaffed and bowsed 75
At your Shakespeare the whole day long, caroused

EPILOGUE

In your Milton pottle-deep nor drowsed
A moment of night—toped on, took heed
Of nothing like modern cream-and-curds.
Pay me with deeds, not words !

80

XI

For—see your cellarage !
There are forty barrels with Shakespeare's brand.
Some five or six are abroach : the rest
Stand spigoted, fauceted. Try and test
What yourselves call best of the very best !
How comes it that still untouched they stand ?
Why don't you try tap, advance a stage
With the rest in cellarage ?

85

XII

For—see your cellarage !
There are four big butts of Milton's brew.
How comes it you make old drips and drops
Do duty, and there devotion stops ?
Leave such an abyss of malt and hops
Embellied in butts which bungs still glue ?
You hate your bard ! A fig for your rage !
Free him from cellarage !

90

95

XIII

'T is said I brew stiff drink,
But the deuce a flavour of grape is there.
Hardly a May-go-down, 't is just A sort of a gruff Go-down-it-must—
No Merry-go-down, no gracious gust Commingles the racy with Springtide's rare !
"What wonder," say you "that we cough, and blink
At Autumn's heady drink ?"

100

EPILOGUE

XIV

Is it a fancy, friends ? 105
Mighty and mellow are never mixed,
Though mighty and mellow be born at once.
Sweet for the future,—strong for the nonce !
Stuff you should stow away, ensconce
In the deep and dark, to be found fast-fixed 110
At the century's close : such time strength spends
A-sweetening for my friends !

XV

And then—why, what you quaff
With a smack of lip and a cluck of tongue,
Is leakage and leavings—just what haps 115
From the tun some learned taster taps
With a promise “ Prepare your watery chaps !
Here 's properest wine for old and young !
Dispute its perfection—you make us laugh !
Have faith, give thanks, but—quaff ! ” 120

XVI

Leakage, I say, or—worse—
Leavings suffice pot-valiant souls.
Somebody, brimful, long ago,
Frothed flagon he drained to the dregs ; and lo,
Down whisker and beard what an overflow ! 125
Lick spilth that has trickled from classic jowls,
Sup the single scene, sip the only verse—
Old wine, not new and worse !

XVII

I grant you : worse by much !
Renounce that new where you never gained 130
One glow at heart, one gleam at head,
And stick to the warrant of age instead !

EPILOGUE

No dwarf's-lap ! Fatten, by giants fed !

You fatten, with oceans of drink undrained ?

You feed—who would choke did a cobweb smutch 135
The Age you love so much ?

XVIII

A mine 's beneath a moor :

Acres of moor roof fathoms of mine

Which diamonds dot where you please to dig ;

Yet who plies spade for the bright and big ? 140

Your product is—truffles, you hunt with a pig !

Since bright-and-big, when a man would dine,

Suits badly : and therefore the Koh-i-noor

May sleep in mine 'neath moor !

XIX

Wine, pulse in might from me ! 145

It may never emerge in must from vat,

Never fill cask nor furnish can,

Never end sweet, which strong began—

God's gift to gladden the heart of man ;

But spirit 's at proof, I promise that ! 150

No sparing of juice spoils what should be

Fit brewage—mine for me.

XX

Man's thoughts and loves and hates !

Earth is my vineyard, these grew there :

From grape of the ground, I made or marred 155

My vintage ; easy the task or hard,

Who set it—his praise be my reward !

Earth's yield ! Who yearn for the Dark Blue

Sea's,

Let them “ lay, pray, bray ”—the addle-pates !

Mine be Man's thoughts, loves, hates ! 160

EPILOGUE

XXI

But someone says "Good Sir!"
('T is a worthy versed in what concerns
The making such labour turn out well)
"You don't suppose that the nosegay-smell
Needs always come from the grape? Each bell 165
At your foot, each bud that your culture spurns,
The very cowslip would act like myrrh
On the stiffest brew—good Sir!"

XXII

"Cowslips, abundant birth
O'er meadow and hillside, vineyard too, 170
—Like a schoolboy's scrawlings in and out Distasteful lesson-book—all about Greece and Rome, victory and rout—
Love-verses instead of such vain ado!
So, fancies frolic it o'er the earth 175
Where thoughts have rightlier birth.

XXIII

"Nay, thoughtlings they themselves:
Loves, hates—in little and less and least!
Thoughts? 'What is a man beside a mount!'
Loves? 'Absent—poor lovers the minutes count!' 180
Hates? 'Fie—Pope's letters to Martha Blount!'
These furnish a wine for a children's-feast:
Insidious to man, they suit the elves
Like thoughts, loves, hates themselves."

XXIV

And, friends, beyond dispute 185
I too have the cowslips dewy and dear.
Punctual as Springtide forth peep they:
I leave them to make my meadow gay.

EPILOGUE

But I ought to pluck and impound them, eh ?
Not let them alone, but deftly shear 190
And shred and reduce to—what may suit
Children, beyond dispute ?

XXV

And, here 's May-month, all bloom,
All bounty : what if I sacrifice ?
If I out with shears and shear, nor stop 195
Shearing till prostrate, lo, the crop ?
And will you prefer it to ginger-pop
When I 've made you wine of the memories
Which leave as bare as a churchyard tomb
My meadow, late all bloom ? 200

XXVI

Nay, what ingratitude
Should I hesitate to amuse the wits
That have pulled so long at my flask, nor grudged
The headache that paid their pains, nor budged
From bunghole before they sighed and judged 205
“ Too rough for our taste, to-day, befits
The racy and right when the years conclude ! ”
Out on ingratitude !

XXVII

Grateful or ingrate—none,
No cowslip of all my fairy crew 210
Shall help to concoct what makes you wink
And goes to your head till you think you think !
I like them alive : the printer's ink
Would sensibly tell on the perfume too.
I may use up my nettles, ere I 've done ; 215
But of cowslips—friends get none !

EPILOGUE

XXVIII

Don't nettles make a broth

Wholesome for blood grown lazy and thick?

Maws out of sorts make mouths out of taste.

My Thirty-four Port—no need to waste

220

On a tongue that 's fur and a palate—paste!

A magnum for friends who are sound! The sick—

I 'll posset and cosset them, nothing loth,

Henceforward with nettle-broth!

LA SAISIAZ

I

GOOD, to forgive ;
Best, to forget !
Living, we fret ;
Dying, we live.
Fretless and free,
Soul, clap thy pinion !
Earth have dominion,
Body, o'er thee !

II

Wander at will,
Day after day,— Wander away, Wandering still—
Soul that canst soar !
Body may slumber :
Body shall cumber
Soul-flight no more.

III

Waft of soul's wing !
What lies above ?
Sunshine and Love,
Skyblue and Spring !
Body hides—where ?
Ferns of all feather,
Mosses and heather,
Yours be the care !

LA SAISIAZ

1878

A. E. S. SEPTEMBER 14, 1877

DARED and done : at last I stand upon the summit,
Dear and True !
Singly dared and done ; the climbing both of us were bound to do.
Petty feat and yet prodigious : every side my glance was bent
O'er the grandeur and the beauty lavished through the whole ascent.
Ledge by ledge, out broke new marvels, now minute and now immense : 5
Earth's most exquisite disclosure, heaven's own
God in evidence !
And no berry in its hiding, no blue space in its outspread,
Pleaded to escape my footstep, challenged my emerging head,
(As I climbed or paused from climbing, now
o'erbranched by shrub and tree, Now built round by rock and boulder, now at just a turn set free, 10
Stationed face to face with—Nature ? rather with Infinitude)
—No revelation of them all, as singly I my path pursued,

LA SAISIAZ

But a bitter touched its sweetness; for the thought stung "Even so
Both of us had loved and wondered just the same,
five days ago!"
Five short days, sufficient hardly to entice, from out its den 15
Splintered in the slab, this pink perfection of the cyclamen;
Scarce enough to heal and coat with amber gum
the sloe-tree's gash, Bronze the clustered wilding apple, redden ripe
the mountain-ash:
Yet of might to place between us—Oh the barrier!
Yon Profound
Shrinks beside it, proves a pin-point: barrier this,
without a bound! 20
Boundless though it be, I reach you: somehow seem to have you here —Who are there. Yes, there you dwell now, plain the four low walls appear;
Those are vineyards they enclose from; and the little spire which points
—That's Collonge, henceforth your dwelling.
All the same, howe'er disjoints
Past from present, no less certain you are here,
not there: have dared, 25
Done the feat of mountain-climbing,—five days since, we both prepared Daring, doing, arm in arm, if other help should haply fail.
For you asked, as forth we sallied to see sunset
from the vale,
"Why not try for once the mountain,—take a foretaste, snatch by stealth Sight and sound, some unconsidered fragment of the hoarded wealth? 30

LA SAISIAZ

Six weeks at its base, yet never once have we together won Sight or sound by honest climbing : let us two have dared and done
Just so much of twilight journey as may prove tomorrow's jaunt
Not the only mode of wayfare—wheeled to reach the eagle's haunt ! ”
So, we turned from the low grass-path you were pleased to call “ your own , ” 35
Set our faces to the rose-bloom o'er the summit's front of stone
Where Salève obtains, from Jura and the sunken sun she hides,
Due return of blushing “ Good Night , ” rosy as a borne-off bride's,
For his masculine “ Good Morrow ” when, with sunrise still in hold,
Gay he hails her, and, magnific, thrilled her black length burns to gold. 40
Up and up we went, how careless—nay, how joyous ! All was new,
All was strange. “ Call progress toilsome ? that were just insulting you !
How the trees must temper noontide ! Ah, the thicket's sudden break !
What will be the morning glory, when at dusk
thus gleams the lake ?
Light by light puts forth Geneva : what a land—
and, of the land, 45
Can there be a lovelier station than this spot where now we stand ?
Is it late, and wrong to linger ? True, to-morrow makes amends.
Toilsome progress ? child's play, call it—specially when one descends !

LA SAISIAZ

There, the dread descent is over—hardly our adventure, though!
Take the vale where late we left it, pace the grass-
-path, 'mine,' you know!
Proud completion of achievement!" And we paced it, praising still That soft tread on velvet verdure as it wound through hill and hill;
And at very end there met us, coming from Collonge, the pair
—All our people of the Chalet—two, enough and none to spare.
So, we made for home together, and we reached
it as the stars
One by one came lamping—chiefly that prepotency of Mars—
And your last word was "I owe you this enjoyment!"—met with "Nay:
With yourself it rests to have a month of morrows
like to-day!"
Then the meal, with talk and laughter, and the news of that rare nook
Yet untroubled by the tourist, touched on by no
travel-book,
All the same—though latent—patent, hybrid birth of land and sea,
And (our travelled friend assured you)—if such miracle might be—Comparable for completeness of both blessings—
all around Nature, and, inside her circle, safety from world's sight and sound—Comparable to our Saisiaz. "Hold it fast and guard it well!
Go and see and vouch for certain, then come back and never tell

LA SAISIAZ

Living soul but us ; and haply, prove our sky
from cloud as clear,
There may we four meet, praise fortune just as now, another year ! ”

Thus you charged him on departure : not without the final charge

“ Mind to-morrow's early meeting ! We must leave our journey marge 70

Ample for the wayside wonders : there 's the stoppage at the inn

Three-parts up the mountain, where the hardships of the track begin ;

There 's the convent worth a visit ; but, the triumph crowning all—

There 's Salève's own platform facing glory which strikes greatness small,

—Blanc, supreme above his earth-brood, needles
red and white and green, 75

Horns of silver, fangs of crystal set on edge in his demesne.

So, some three weeks since, we saw them : so,
to-morrow we intend

You shall see them likewise ; therefore Good Night till to-morrow, friend ! ”

Last, the nothings that extinguish embers of a vivid day :

“ What might be the Marshal's next move, what Gambetta's counter-play ? ” 80

Till the landing on the staircase saw escape the latest spark :

“ Sleep you well ! ” “ Sleep but as well, you ! ”
—lazy love quenched, all was dark.

Nothing dark next day at sundawn ! Up I rose and forth I fared :

LA SAISIAZ

Took my plunge within the bath-pool, pacified
the watch-dog scared, Saw proceed the transmutation—Jura's black to one gold glow, 85
Trode your level path that let me drink the morning deep and slow,
Reached the little quarry—ravage recompensed
by shrub and fern—
Till the overflowing ardours told me time was for return.
So, return I did, and gaily. But, for once, from no far mound Waved salute a tall white figure. "Has her sleep been so profound? 90
Foresight, rather, prudent saving strength for day's expenditure!
Ay, the chamber-window's open : out and on the terrace, sure !"

No, the terrace showed no figure, tall, white,
leaning through the wreaths,
Tangle-twine of leaf and bloom that intercept the air one breathes,
Interpose between one's love and Nature's loving,
hill and dale 95
Down to where the blue lake's wrinkle marks the river's inrush pale
—Mazy Arve : whereon no vessel but goes sliding white and plain,
Not a steamboat pants from harbour but one hears pulsate amain, Past the city's congregated peace of homes and pomp of spires
—Man's mild protest that there's something more than Nature, man requires, 100

LA SAISIAZ

And that, useful as is Nature to attract the tourist's foot,

Quiet slow sure money-making proves the matter's very root,—

Need for body,—while the spirit also needs a comfort reached

By no help of lake or mountain, but the texts
whence Calvin preached.

“Here 's the veil withdrawn from landscape : up to Jura and beyond,

All awaits us ranged and ready ; yet she violates the bond,

Neither leans nor looks nor listens : why is this ?”
A turn of eye

Took the whole sole answer, gave the undisputed reason “why !”

This dread way you had your summons ! No
premonitory touch,

As you talked and laughed ('t is told me) scarce
a minute ere the clutch

Captured you in cold forever. Cold ? nay, warm you were as life

When I raised you, while the others used, in passionate poor strife,

All the means that seemed to promise any aid,
and all in vain.

Gone you were, and I shall never see that earnest face again

Grow transparent, grow transfigured with the sudden light that leapt,

At the first word's provocation, from the heartdeeps where it slept.

Therefore, paying piteous duty, what seemed
You have we consigned

LA SAISIAZ

Peacefully to—what I think were, of all earth-beds, to your mind
Most the choice for quiet, yonder : low walls stop
the vines' approach,
Lovingly Salève protects you ; village-sports will ne'er encroach 120
On the stranger lady's silence, whom friends bore
so kind and well
Thither "just for love's sake,"—such their own word was : and who can tell ?
You supposed that few or none had known and loved you in the world :
May be ! flower that's full-blown tempts the butterfly, not flower that 's furred.
But more learned sense unlocked you, loosed the sheath and let expand 125
Bud to bell and outspread flower-shape at the least warm touch of hand
—Maybe, throb of heart, beneath which,—quickening farther than it knew,— Treasure oft was disembosomed, scent all strange and unguessed hue.
Disembosomed, re-embosomed,—must one memory suffice,
Prove I knew an Alpine-rose which all beside named Edelweiss ? 130

Rare thing, red or white, you rest now : two days slumbered through ; and since
One day more will see me rid of this same scene
whereat I wince, Tetchy at all sights and sounds and pettish at each idle charm
Proffered me who pace now singly where we two went arm in arm,—

LA SAISIAZ

I have turned upon my weakness : asked " And what, forsooth, prevents 135
That, this latest day allowed me, I fulfil of her intents
One she had the most at heart—that we should thus again survey
From Salève Mont Blanc together ? " Therefore,
—dared and done to-day
Climbing,—here I stand : but you—where ?

If a spirit of the place

Broke the silence, bade me question, promised answer,—what disgrace 140
Did I stipulate " Provided answer suit my hopes, not fears ! "
Would I shrink to learn my life-time's limit—days, weeks, months or years ?
Would I shirk assurance on each point whereat I can but guess—
" Does the soul survive the body ? Is there God's self, no or yes ? "
If I know my mood, 't were constant—come in whatsoe'er uncouth 145
Shape it should, nay, formidable—so the answer were but truth.

Well, and wherefore shall it daunt me, when 't is
I myself am tasked,
When, by weakness weakness questioned, weakly
answers—weakly asked ?
Weakness never needs be falseness : truth is truth
in each degree
—Thunderpealed by God to Nature, whispered
by my soul to me. 150
Nay, the weakness turns to strength and triumphs
in a truth beyond :

LA SAISIAZ

"Mine is but man's truest answer—how were it did God respond?"

I shall no more dare to mimic such response in futile speech,

Pass off human lisp as echo of the sphere-song
out of reach,

Than,—because it well may happen yonder, where the far snows blanch

Mute Mont Blanc, that who stands near them sees and hears an avalanche,—

I shall pick a clod and throw,—cry "Such the sight and such the sound!"

What though I nor see nor hear them? Others do, the proofs abound!"

Can I make my eye an eagle's, sharpen ear to recognize

Sound o'er league and league of silence? Can I know, who but surmise?

If I dared no self-deception when, a week since,
I and you

Walked and talked along the grass-path, passing lightly in review

What seemed hits and what seemed misses in a certain fence-play,—strife

Sundry minds of mark engaged in "On the Soul and Future Life,"—

If I ventured estimating what was come of parried thrust,

Subtle stroke, and, rightly, wrongly, estimating could be just

—Just, though life so seemed abundant in the form
which moved by mine,

I might well have played at feigning, fooling,— laughed "What need opine

Pleasure must succeed to pleasure, else past pleasure turns to pain,

LA SAISIAZ

And this first life claims a second, else I count its good no gain?"—170
Much less have I heart to palter when the matter to decide Now becomes "Was ending ending once and always, when you died?"
Did the face, the form I lifted as it lay, reveal the loss
Not alone of life but soul? A tribute to yon flowers and moss,
What of you remains beside? A memory! Easy to attest175
"Certainly from out the world that one believes who knew her best Such was good in her, such fair, which fair and good were great perchance
Had but fortune favoured, bidden each shy faculty advance;
After all—who knows another? Only as I know,
I speak."
So much of you lives within me while I live my year or week.180
Then my fellow takes the tale up, not unwilling to aver Duly in his turn "I knew him best of all, as he knew her:
Such he was, and such he was not, and such other might have been
But that somehow every actor, somewhere in this earthly scene, Fails." And so both memories dwindle, yours and mine together linked,185
Till there is but left for comfort, when the last spark proves extinct,
This—that somewhere new existence led by men and women new

LA SAISIAZ

Possibly attains perfection coveted by me and
you ;
While ourselves, the only witness to what work
our life evolved,
Only to ourselves proposing problems proper to be solved 190
By ourselves alone,—who working ne'er shall know if work bear fruit
Others reap and garner, heedless how produced by stalk and root,—
We who, darkling, timed the day's birth,— struggling, testified to peace,— Earned, by dint of failure, triumph,—we, creative thought, must cease
In created word, thought's echo, due to impulse long since sped ! 195 Why repine? There's ever someone lives although ourselves be dead !

Well, what signifies repugnance? Truth is truth
howe'er it strike.
Fair or foul the lot apportioned life on earth, we bear alike.
Stalwart body idly yoked to stunted spirit, powers,
that fain
Else would soar, condemned to grovel, groundlings through the fleshly chain,— 200 Help that hinders, hindrance proved but help disguised when all too late,— Hindrance is the fact acknowledged, howsoe'er explained as Fate,
Fortune, Providence : we bear, own life a burthen
more or less.
Life thus owned unhappy, is there supplemental happiness

LA SAISIAZ

Possible and probable in life to come? or must we count 205
Life a curse and not a blessing, summed-up in its whole amount,
Help and hindrance, joy and sorrow?
Why should I want courage here?
I will ask and have an answer,—with no favour,
with no fear,—
From myself. How much, how little, do I inwardly believe True that controverted doctrine? Is it fact to which I cleave, 210
Is it fancy I but cherish, when I take upon my lips
Phrase the solemn Tuscan fashioned, and declare the soul's eclipse
Not the soul's extinction? take his "I believe and I declare—
Certain am I—from this life I pass into a better, there
Where that lady lives of whom enamoured was my soul"—where this 215
Other lady, my companion dear and true, she also is?

I have questioned and am answered. Question, answer presuppose
Two points: that the thing itself which questions,
answers,—is, it knows;
As it also knows the thing perceived outside itself,
—a force
Actual ere its own beginning, operative through its course, 220
Unaffected by its end,—that this thing likewise needs must be;
Call this—God, then, call that—soul, and both—
the only facts for me.

LA SAISIAZ

Prove them facts? that they o'erpass my power of proving, proves them such :

Fact it is I know I know not something which is fact as much.

What before caused all the causes, what effect of all effects

Haply follows,—these are fancy. Ask the rush
if it suspects

225

Whence and how the stream which floats it had a rise, and where and how

Falls or flows on still! What answer makes the rush except that now

Certainly it floats and is, and, no less certain than itself,

Is the everyway external stream that now through shoal and shelf

230

Floats it onward, leaves it—may be—wrecked at last, or lands on shore

There to root again and grow and flourish stable evermore.

—May be! mere surmise not knowledge : much conjecture styled belief,

What the rush conceives the stream means through the voyage blind and brief.

Why, because I doubtless am, shall I as doubtless be? "Because 235

God seems good and wise." Yet under this our life's apparent laws

Reigns a wrong which, righted once, would give quite other laws to life.

"He seems potent." Potent here, then : why are right and wrong at strife?

Has in life the wrong the better? Happily life ends so soon!

Right predominates in life? Then why two lives and double boon?

240

LA SAISIAZ

“Anyhow, we want it : wherefore want ?” Because, without the want,
Life, now human, would be brutish : just that hope, however scant,
Makes the actual life worth leading ; take the hope therein away,
All we have to do is surely not endure another
day.

This life has its hopes for this life, hopes that promise joy : life done—
Out of all the hopes, how many had complete 245 fulfilment ? none.

“But the soul is not the body :” and the breath
is not the flute ;
Both together make the music : either marred and all is mute.

Truce to such old sad contention whence, according as we shape
Most of hope or most of fear, we issue in a half-escape : 250

“We believe” is sighed. I take the cup of comfort proffered thus,
Taste and try each soft ingredient, sweet infusion,
and discuss

What their blending may accomplish for the cure
of doubt, till—slow, Sorrowful, but how decided ! needs must I o'er-turn it—so !

Cause before, effect behind me—blanks ! The midway point I am, 255 Caused, itself—itself efficient : in that narrow space must cram

All experience—out of which there crowds conjecture manifold,
But, as knowledge, this comes only—things may be as I behold,

LA SAISIAZ

Or may not be, but, without me and above me, things there are ;
I myself am what I know not—ignorance which proves no bar
To the knowledge that I am, and, since I am, ²⁶⁰ can recognize
What to me is pain and pleasure : this is sure,
the rest—surmise.
If my fellows are or are not, what may please them and what pain,— Mere surmise : my own experience—that is knowledge, once again !

I have lived, then, done and suffered, loved and hated, learnt and taught ²⁶⁵
This—there is no reconciling wisdom with a world distraught,
Goodness with triumphant evil, power with failure in the aim,
If—(to my own sense, remember ! though none other feel the same !)—
If you bar me from assuming earth to be a pupil's
place,
And life, time,—with all their chances, changes,
—just probation-space, ²⁷⁰
Mine, for me. But those apparent other mortals —theirs, for them ?
Knowledge stands on my experience : all outside its narrow hem,
Free surmise may sport and welcome ! Pleasures, pains affect mankind
Just as they affect myself ? Why, here 's my neighbour colour-blind, Eyes like mine to all appearance : “green as grass” do I affirm ? ²⁷⁵

LA SAISIAZ

“Red as grass” he contradicts me : which employs the proper term ?
Were we two the earth's sole tenants, with no third for referee,
How should I distinguish ? Just so, God must judge 'twixt man and me.
To each mortal peradventure earth becomes a new machine,
Pain and pleasure no more tally in our sense than red and green ; 280
Still, without what seems such mortal's pleasure, pain, my life were lost —Life, my whole sole chance to prove—although at man's apparent cost—
What is beauteous and what ugly, right to strive for, right to shun,
Fit to help and fit to hinder,—prove my forces everyone,
Good and evil,—learn life's lesson, hate of evil, love of good, 285
As 't is set me, understand so much as may be understood—Solve the problem : “From thine apprehended scheme of things, deduce
Praise or blame of its contriver, shown a niggard or profuse
In each good or evil issue ! nor miscalculate alike
Counting one the other in the final balance, which to strike, 290
Soul was born and life allotted : ay, the show of things unfurled
For thy summing-up and judgment,—thine, no other mortal's world !”

What though fancy scarce may grapple with the complex and immense

LA SAISIAZ

—“ His own world for every mortal ? ” Postulate omnipotence !
Limit power, and simple grows the complex :
shrunk to atom size, 295
That which loomed immense to fancy low before my reason lies,—
I survey it and pronounce it work like other work : success
Here and there, the workman’s glory,—here and there, his shame no less, Failure as conspicuous. Taunt not “ Human work ape work divine ? ”
As the power, expect performance ! God’s be God’s as mine is mine ! 300
God whose power made man and made man’s wants, and made, to meet those wants, Heaven and earth which, through the body, prove the spirit’s ministrants, Excellently all,—did He lack power or was the will in fault
When He let blue heaven be shrouded o’er by vapours of the vault, Gay earth drop her garlands shrivelled at the first infecting breath 305
Of the serpent pains which herald, swarming in,
the dragon death ?
What, no way but this that man may learn and lay to heart how rife Life were with delights would only death allow their taste to life ?
Must the rose sigh “ Pluck—I perish ! ” must the eve weep “ Gaze—I fade ! ”
—Every sweet warn “ ’Ware my bitter ! ” every shine bid “ Wait my shade ” ? 310 Can we love but on condition, that the thing we love must die ?

LA SAISIAZ

Needs there groan a world in anguish just to teach us sympathy—

Multitudinously wretched that we, wretched too, may guess

What a preferable state were universal happiness?

Hardly do I so conceive the outcome of that power which went

To the making of the worm there in yon clod its tenement,

315

Any more than I distinguish aught of that which,
wise and good,

Framed the leaf, its plain of pasture, dropped the dew, its fineless food.

Nay, were fancy fact, were earth and all it holds illusion mere,

Only a machine for teaching love and hate and hope and fear

320

To myself, the sole existence, single truth mid falsehood,—well !

If the harsh throes of the prelude die not off into the swell

Of that perfect piece they sting me to become a-strain for,—if

Roughness of the long rock-clamber lead not to the last of cliff,

First of level country where is sward my pilgrim-foot can prize,—

325

Plainlier ! if this life's conception new life fail to realize,—

Though earth burst and proved a bubble glassing hues of hell, one huge

Reflex of the devil's doings—God's work by no subterfuge—

(So death's kindly touch informed me as it broke the glamour, gave

LA SAISIAZ

Soul and body both release from life's long nightmare in the grave) 330 Still,—with no more Nature, no more Man as riddle to be read,
Only my own joys and sorrows now to reckon real instead,—
I must say—or choke in silence—“Howsoever came my fate,
Sorrow did and joy did nowise,—life well weighed,
—preponderate.”
By necessity ordained thus? I shall bear as best
I can ; 335
By a cause all-good, all-wise, all-potent? No, as I am man !
Such were God : and was it goodness that the good within my range
Or had evil in admixture or grew evil's self by change?
Wisdom—that becoming wise meant making slow and sure advance
From a knowledge proved in error to acknowledged ignorance? 340
Power? 't is just the main assumption reason most revolts at ! power Unavailing for bestowment on its creature of an hour,
Man, of so much proper action rightly aimed and reaching aim,
So much passion,—no defect there, no excess, but still the same,—
As what constitutes existence, pure perfection
bright as brief 345
For yon worm, man's fellow-creature, on yon happier world—its leaf!
No, as I am man, I mourn the poverty I must impute :

LA SAISIAZ

Goodness, wisdom, power, all bounded, each a human attribute !

But, O world outspread beneath me ! only for myself I speak,
Nowise dare to play the spokesman for my brothers
strong and weak, 350
Full and empty, wise and foolish, good and bad,
in every age,
Every clime, I turn my eyes from, as in one or other stage
Of a torture writhe they, Job-like couched on dung and crazed with blains
—Wherefore ? whereto ? ask the whirlwind what the dread voice thence explains !
I shall "vindicate no way of God's to man," nor stand apart, 355
"Laugh, be candid !" while I watch it traversing
the human heart.
Traversed heart must tell its story uncommented on : no less Mine results in "Only grant a second life, I acquiesce
In this present life as failure, count misfortune's worst assaults
Triumph, not defeat, assured that loss so much the more exalts 360 Gain about to be. For at what moment did I so advance
Near to knowledge as when frustrate of escape from ignorance ?
Did not beauty prove most precious when its opposite obtained
Rule, and truth seem more than ever potent because falsehood reigned ?

LA SAISIAZ

While for love—Oh how but, losing love, does whoso loves succeed 365
By the death-pang to the birth-throe—learning
what is love indeed?
Only grant my soul may carry high through death
her cup unspilled,
Brimming though it be with knowledge, life's loss
drop by drop distilled,
I shall boast it mine—the balsam, bless each kindly wrench that wrung
From life's tree its inmost virtue, tapped the root whence pleasure sprung, 370 Barked the bole, and broke the bough, and bruised the berry, left all grace Ashes in death's stern alembic, loosed elixir in its place !

Witness, Dear and True, how little I was 'ware of —not your worth
—That I knew, my heart assures me—but of what a shade on earth
Would the passage from my presence of the tall white figure throw 375
O'er the ways we walked together ! Somewhat narrow, somewhat slow
Used to seem the ways, the walking : narrow ways are well to tread
When there 's moss beneath the footstep, honeysuckle overhead :
Walking slow to beating bosom surest solace soonest gives,
Liberates the brain o'erloaded—best of all restoratives. 380
Nay, do I forget the open vast where soon or late converged

LA SAISIAZ

Ways though winding?—world-wide heaven-high sea where music slept or surged
As the angel had ascendant, and Beethoven's Titan mace Smote the immense to storm, Mozart would by a finger's lifting chase?
Yes, I knew—but not with knowledge such as thrills me while I view 385 Yonder precinct which henceforward holds and hides the Dear and True.
Grant me (once again) assurance we shall each meet each some day,
Walk—but with how bold a footstep! on a way
—but what a way!
—Worst were best, defeat were triumph, utter loss were utmost gain.
Can it be, and must, and will it?

Silence! Out of fact's domain, 390
Just surmise prepared to mutter hope, and also fear
—dispute
Fact's inexorable ruling "Outside fact, surmise be mute!"
Well!

Ay, well and best, if fact's self I may force
the answer from!
'T is surmise I stop the mouth of. Not above in yonder dome
All a rapture with its rose-glow,—not around,
where pile and peak 395
Strainingly await the sun's fall,—not beneath,
where crickets creak,
Birds assemble for their bed-time, soft the tree-top swell subsides,—
No, nor yet within my deepest sentient self the knowledge hides.

LA SAISIAZ

Aspiration, reminiscence, plausibilities of trust
—Now the ready “Man were wronged else,”
now the rash “and God unjust”— 400 None of these I need. Take thou, my soul, thy solitary stand,
Umpire to the champions Fancy, Reason, as on either hand
Amicable war they wage and play the foe in thy behoof!
Fancy thrust and Reason parry! Thine the prize who stand aloof.

FANCY

I concede the thing refused: henceforth no certainty more plain 405
Than this mere surmise that after body dies soul lives again.
Two, the only facts acknowledged late, are now increased to three—
God is, and the soul is, and, as certain, after death shall be.
Put this third to use in life, the time for using fact!

REASON

I do :
Find it promises advantage, coupled with the other
two. 410
Life to come will be improvement on the life that 's now; destroy Body's thwartings, there 's no longer screen betwixt soul and soul's joy.
Why should we expect new hindrance, novel tether? In this first Life, I see the good of evil, why our world began at worst :

LA SAISIAZ

Since time means amelioration, tardily enough displayed, 415
Yet a mainly onward moving, never wholly retrograde.
We know more though we know little, we grow stronger though still weak,
Partly see though all too purblind, stammer though we cannot speak.
There is no such grudge in God as scared the ancient Greek, no fresh Substitute of trap for dragnet, once a breakage in the mesh. 420
Dragons were, and serpents are, and blindworms will be : ne'er emerged
Any new-created python for man's plague since earth was purged.
Failing proof, then, of invented trouble to replace the old,
O'er this life the next presents advantage much and manifold :
Which advantage—in the absence of a fourth and farther fact 425
Now conceivably surmised, of harm to follow from the act—
I pronounce for man's obtaining at this moment.
Why delay ?
Is he happy ? happiness will change : anticipate the day !
Is he sad ? there 's ready refuge : of all sadness death 's prompt cure !
Is he both, in mingled measure ? cease a burthen to endure ! 430
Pains with sorry compensations, pleasures stinted
in the dole,
Power that sinks and pettiness that soars, all halved
and nothing whole,

LA SAISIAZ

Idle hopes that lure man onward, forced back by as idle fears—
What a load he stumbles under through his glad sad seventy years,
When a touch sets right the turmoil, lifts his spirit
where, flesh-freed, 435 Knowledge shall be rightly named so, all that seems be truth indeed !
Grant his forces no accession, nay, no faculty's increase,
Only let what now exists continue, let him prove in peace
Power whereof the interrupted unperfected play enticed
Man through darkness, which to lighten any spark of hope sufficed,—
What shall then deter his dying out of darkness 440 into light ?
Death itself perchance, brief pain that 's pang,
condensed and infinite ?
But at worst, he needs must brave it one day,
while, at best, he laughs—
Drops a drop within his chalice, sleep not death his science quaffs !
Any moment claims more courage when, by crossing cold and gloom, 445 Manfully man quits discomfort, makes for the provided room
Where the old friends want their fellow, where the new acquaintance wait, Probably for talk assembled, possibly to sup in state !
I affirm and re-affirm it therefore : only make as plain
As that man now lives, that, after dying, man will live again,— 450

LA SAISIAZ

Make as plain the absence, also, of a law to contravene
Voluntary passage from this life to that by change of scene,—
And I bid him—at suspicion of first cloud athwart
his sky,
Flower's departure, frost's arrival—never hesitate,
but die !

FANCY

Then I double my concession : grant, along with new life sure, 455
This same law found lacking now : ordain that,
whether rich or poor
Present life is judged in aught man counts advantage—be it hope,
Be it fear that brightens, blackens most or least his horoscope,—
He, by absolute compulsion such as made him live at all,
Go on living to the fated end of life whate'er befall. 460
What though, as on earth he darkling grovels,
man descry the sphere,
Next life's—call it, heaven of freedom, close above
and crystal-clear ?
He shall find—say, hell to punish who in aught
curtails the term,
Fain would act the butterfly before he has played out the worm.
God, soul, earth, heaven, hell,—five facts now :
what is to desiderate ? 465

REASON

Nothing ! Henceforth man's existence bows to the monition "Wait !

LA SAISIAZ

Take the joys and bear the sorrows—neither with extreme concern !

Living here means nescience simply : 't is next life that helps to learn.

Shut those eyes, next life will open,—stop those ears, next life will teach

Hearing's office,—close those lips, next life will give the power of speech !

Or, if action more amuse thee than the passive attitude,

Bravely bustle through thy being, busy thee for ill or good,

Reap this life's success or failure ! Soon shall things be unperplexed

And the right and wrong, now tangled, lie unravelled in the next."

470

FANCY

Not so fast ! Still more concession ! not alone do
I declare

Life must needs be borne,—I also will that man become aware

Life has worth incalculable, every moment that he spends

So much gain or loss for that next life which on this life depends.

Good, done here, be there rewarded,—evil, worked here, there amerced !

Six facts now, and all established, plain to man
the last as first.

475

480

REASON

There was good and evil, then, defined to man by this decree ?

Was—for at its promulgation both alike have ceased to be.

LA SAISIAZ

Prior to this last announcement "Certainly as God exists,
As He made man's soul, as soul is quenchless by
the deathly mists,
Yet is, all the same, forbidden premature escape from time 485
To eternity's provided purer air and brighter clime,—
Just so certainly depends it on the use to which man turns
Earth, the good or evil done there, whether after death he earns
Life eternal,—heaven, the phrase be, or eternal death,—say, hell.
As his deeds, so proves his portion, doing ill or doing well!" 490
—Prior to this last announcement, earth was man's probation-place :
Liberty of doing evil gave his doing good a
grace ;
Once lay down the law, with Nature's simple
"Such effects succeed
Causes such, and heaven or hell depends upon man's earthly deed
Just as surely as depends the straight or else the crooked line 495
On his making point meet point or with or else
without incline,"—
Thenceforth neither good nor evil does man, doing what he must.
Lay but down that law as stringent "Wouldst thou live again, be just!"
As this other "Wouldst thou live now, regularly draw thy breath!
For, suspend the operation, straight law's breach results in death—" 500

LA SAISIAZ

And (provided always, man, addressed this mode, be sound and sane)
Prompt and absolute obedience, never doubt, will law obtain !
Tell not me " Look round us ! nothing each side
but acknowledged law,
Now styled God's—now, Nature's edict ! " Where's obedience without flaw Paid to either ? What 's the adage rife in man's mouth ? Why, " The best 505
I both see and praise, the worst I follow "—which,
despite professed Seeing, praising, all the same he follows, since he disbelieves
In the heart of him that edict which for truth his head receives.
There's evading and persuading and much making law amends
Somehow, there 's the nice distinction 'twixt fast foes and faulty friends, 510
—Any consequence except inevitable death when
" Die,
Whoso breaks our law ! " they publish, God and Nature equally.
Law that 's kept or broken—subject to man's will and pleasure ! Whence ?
How comes law to bear eluding ? Not because of impotence :
Certain laws exist already which to hear means to obey ; 515
Therefore not without a purpose these man must,
while those man may Keep and, for the keeping, haply gain approval and reward.
Break through this last superstructure, all is empty air—no sword

LA SAISIAZ

Firm like my first fact to stand on "God there is, and soul there is,"
And soul's earthly life-allotment: wherein, by hypothesis, 520
Soul is bound to pass probation, prove its powers, and exercise Sense and thought on fact, and then, from fact educing fit surmise,
Ask itself, and of itself have solely answer,
"Does the scope
Earth affords of fact to judge by warrant future fear or hope?"

Thus have we come back full circle: fancy's
footsteps one by one 525 Go their round conducting reason to the point where they begun,
Left where we were left so lately, Dear and True! When, half a week
Since, we walked and talked and thus I told you,
how suffused a cheek
You had turned me had I sudden brought the blush into the smile
By some word like "Idly argued! you know better all the while!" 530
Now, from me—Oh not a blush but, how much more, a joyous glow, Laugh triumphant, would it strike did your
"Yes, better I do know"
Break, my warrant for assurance! which assurance may not be
If, supplanting hope, assurance needs must change this life to me.
So, I hope—no more than hope, but hope—no less than hope, because 535

LA SAISIAZ

I can fathom, by no plumb-line sunk in life's apparent laws,
 How I may in any instance fix where change should meetly fall
 Nor involve, by one revisal, abrogation of them all :
 —Which again involves as utter change in life
 thus law-released,
 Whence the good of goodness vanished when the ill of evil ceased. 540
 Whereas, life and laws apparent re-instated,—all
 we know,
 All we know not,—o'er our heaven again cloud
 closes, until, lo—
 Hope the arrowy, just as constant, comes to pierce its gloom, compelled
 By a power and by a purpose which, if no one else beheld,
 I behold in life, so—hope !

Sad summing-up of all to say ! 545
Athanasius contra mundum, why should he hope more than they ?
 So are men made notwithstanding, such magnetic virtue darts
 From each head their fancy haloes to their un-resisting hearts !

Here I stand, methinks a stone's throw from yon village I this morn Traversed for the sake of looking one last look at its forlorn 550
 Tenement's ignoble fortune : through a crevice,
 plain its floor
 Piled with provender for cattle, while a dungheap blocked the door.

LA SAISIAZ

In that squalid Bossex, under that obscene red roof, arose,
Like a fiery flying serpent from its egg, a soul—
Rousseau's.
Turn thence ! Is it Diodati joins the glimmer of the lake ?
There I plucked a leaf, one week since,—ivy, 555
plucked for Byron's sake.
Famed unfortunates ! And yet, because of that phosphoric fame
Swathing blackness' self with brightness till putridity looked flame,
All the world was witched : and wherefore ?
what could lie beneath, allure Heart of man to let corruption serve man's head
as cynosure ?
Was the magic in the dictum "All that 's good 560
is gone and past ;
Bad and worse still grows the present, and the worst of all comes last :
Which believe—for I believe it ?" So preached one his gospel-news ;
While melodious moaned the other "Dying day with dolphin-hues !
Storm, for loveliness and darkness like a woman's eye ! Ye mounts
Where I climb to 'scape my fellow, and thou sea 565
wherein he counts
Not one inch of vile dominion ! What were your especial worth Failed ye to enforce the maxim 'Of all objects found on earth
Man is meanest, much too honoured when compared with—what by odds Beats him—any dog : so, let him go a-howling to his gods !' 570

LA SAISIAZ

Which believe—for I believe it! "such the comfort man received

Sadly since perforce he must: for why? the famous bard believed!

Fame! Then, give me fame, a moment! As I gather at a glance

Human glory after glory vivifying yon expanse,
Let me grasp them all together, hold on high and brandish well

Beacon-like above the rapt world ready, whether heaven or hell 575

Send the dazzling summons earthward, to submit itself the same,

Take on trust the hope or else despair flashed full on face by—Fame!

Thanks, thou pine-tree of Makistos, wide thy giant torch I wave!

Know ye whence I plucked the pillar, late with sky for architrave? 580

This the trunk, the central solid Knowledge, kindled core, began

Tugging earth-deeps, trying heaven-heights, rooted yonder at Lausanne.

This which flits and spits, the aspic,—sparkles in and out the boughs

Now, and now condensed, the python, coiling round and round allows

Scarce the bole its due effulgence, dulled by flake on flake of Wit— 585

Laughter so bejewels Learning,—what but Ferney nourished it?

Nay, nor fear—since every resin feeds the flame—that I dispense

With yon Bossex terebinth-tree's all-explosive Eloquence:

LA SAISIAZ

No, be sure! nor, any more than thy resplendency, Jean-Jacques, Dare I want thine, Diodati! What though monkeys and macaques 590
Gibber "Byron"? Byron's ivy rears a branch beyond the crew, Green for ever, no deciduous trash macaques and monkeys chew!
As Rousseau, then, eloquent, as Byron prime in poet's power,— Detonations, fulgurations, smiles—the rainbow, tears—the shower,— Lo, I lift the coruscating marvel—Fame! and, famed, declare 595
—Learned for the nonce as Gibbon, witty as wit's self Voltaire . . .
O the sorriest of conclusions to whatever man of sense
Mid the millions stands the unit, takes no flare for evidence!
Yet the millions have their portion, live their calm or troublous day,
Find significance in fireworks: so, by help of mine, they may 600
Confidently lay to heart and lock in head their life long—this:
"He there with the brand flamboyant, broad o'er night's forlorn abyss, Crowned by prose and verse; and wielding, with Wit's bauble, Learning's rod . . .
Well? Why, he at least believed in Soul, was very sure of God.

LA SAISIAZ

So the poor smile played, that evening : pallid smile long since extinct 605
Here in London's mid-November ! Not so loosely thoughts were linked,
Six weeks since as I, descending in the sunset
from Salève,
Found the chain, I seemed to forge there, flawless till it reached your grave,—
Not so filmy was the texture, but I bore it in my breast
Safe thus far. And since I found a something in me would not rest 610
Till I, link by link, unravelled any tangle of the chain,
—Here it lies, for much or little ! I have lived all o'er again
That last pregnant hour : I saved it, just as I could save a root Disinterred for re-interment when the time best helps to shoot.
Life is stocked with germs of torpid life ; but may
I never wake 615
Those of mine whose resurrection could not be without earthquake !
Rest all such, unraised forever ! Be this, sad yet sweet, the sole Memory evoked from slumber ! Least part this :
then what the whole ?

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

I

SUCH a starved bank of moss
Till, that May-morn,
Blue ran the flash across :
Violets were born !

II

Sky—what a scowl of cloud
Till, near and far,
Ray on ray split the shroud
Splendid, a star !

III

World—how it walled about Life with disgrace
Till God's own smile came out
That was thy face !

I

"FAME!" Yes, I said it and you read it. First,
Praise the good log-fire! Winter howls without.
Crowd closer, let us! Ha, the secret nursed
Inside yon hollow, crusted roundabout
With copper where the clamp was,—how the burst ;
Vindicates flame the stealthy feeder! Spout
Thy splendidest—a minute and no more?
So soon again all sobered as before?

II

Nay, for I need to see your face! One stroke
Adroitly dealt, and lo, the pomp revealed! 10
Fire in his pandemonium, heart of oak Palatial, where he wrought the works concealed Beneath the solid-seeming roof I broke,
As redly up and out and off they reeled
Like disconcerted imps, those thousand sparks 15
From fire's slow tunnelling of vaults and arcs!

III

Up, out, and off, see! Were you never used,—
You now, in childish days or rather nights,—
As I was, to watch sparks fly? not amused
By that old nurse-taught game which gave the sprites

20

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Each one his title and career,—confused
Belief 't was all long over with the flights
From earth to heaven of hero, sage and bard,
And bade them once more strive for Fame's award?

IV

New long bright life ! and happy chance befell— 25
That I know—when some prematurely lost
Child of disaster bore away the bell
From some too-pampered son of fortune, crossed Never before my chimney broke the spell !
Octogenarian Keats gave up the ghost, 30
While—never mind Who was it cumbered earth—
Sank stifled, span-long brightness, in the birth.

V

Well, try a variation of the game !
Our log is old ship-timber, broken bulk.
There 's sea-brine spirits up the brimstone flame, 35
That crimson-curly spiral proves the hulk
Was saturate with—ask the chloride's name
From somebody who knows ! I shall not sulk
If yonder greenish tonguelet licked from brass
Its life, I thought was fed on copperas. 40

VI

Anyhow, there they flutter ! What may be
The style and prowess of that purple one ?
Who is the hero other eyes shall see Than yours and mine ? That yellow, deep to dun—
Conjecture how the sage glows, whom not we 45
But those unborn are to get warmth by ! Son
O' the coal,—as Job and Hebrew name a spark,—
What bard, in thy red soaring, scares the dark ?

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

VII

Oh and the lesser lights, the dearer still
That they elude a vulgar eye, give ours 50
The glimpse repaying astronomic skill
Which searched sky deeper, passed those patent powers
Constellate proudly,—swords, scrolls, harps, that fill
The vulgar eye to surfeit,—found best flowers
Hid deepest in the dark,—named unplucked grace 55
Of soul, ungathered beauty, form or face !

VIII

Up with thee, mouldering ash men never knew,
But I know ! flash thou forth, and figure bold,
Calm and columnar as yon flame I view !
Oh and I bid thee,—to whom fortune doled 60
Scantly all other gifts out—bicker blue,
Beauty for all to see, zinc's uncontrolled Flake-brilliance ! Not my fault if these were shown,
Grandeur and beauty both, to me alone.

IX

No ! as the first was boy's play, this proves mere 65 Stripling's amusement : manhood's sport be grave !
Choose rather sparkles quenched in mid career,
Their boldness and their brightness could not save
(In some old night of time on some lone drear Sea-coast, monopolized by crag or cave) 70
—Save from ignoble exit into smoke,
Silence, oblivion, all death-damps that choke !

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

X

Launched by our ship-wood, float we, once adrift
In fancy to that land-strip waters wash,
We both know well ! Where uncouth tribes made shift

75

Long since to just keep life in, billows dash
Nigh over folk who shudder at each lift
Of the old tyrant tempest's whirlwind-lash,
Though they have built the serviceable town
Tempests but tease now, billows drench, notdrown.

80

XI

Croisic, the spit of sandy rock which juts
Spitefully northward, bears nor tree nor shrub
To tempt the ocean, show what Guérande shuts Behind her, past wild Batz whose Saxons grub
The ground for crystals grown where ocean gluts
Their promontory's breadth with salt : all stub
Of rock and stretch of sand, the land's last strife
To rescue a poor remnant for dear life.

85

XII

And what life ! Here was, from the world to choose,
The Druids' chosen chief of homes : they reared
—Only their women,—mid the slush and ooze
Of yon low islet,—to their sun, revered
In strangest disguise,—a temple. May-dawn dew Saw the old structure levelled ; when there peered May's earliest eve-star, high and wide once more
Up towered the new pile perfect as before :

90

XIII

Seeing that priestesses—and all were such—Unbuilt and then rebuilt it every May,
Each alike helping—well, if not too much !
For, mid their eagerness to outstrip day

100

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

And get work done, if any loosed her clutch
And let a single stone drop, straight a prey
Herself fell, torn to pieces, limb from limb,
By sisters in full chorus glad and grim.

XIV

And still so much remains of that grey cult, 105
That even now, of nights, do women steal
To the sole Menhir standing, and insult
The antagonistic church-spire by appeal
To power discrowned in vain, since each adult
Believes the gruesome thing she clasps may heal 110
Whatever plague no priestly help can cure :
Kiss but the cold stone, the event is sure !

XV

Nay more : on May-morns, that primeval rite
Of temple-building, with its punishment
For rash precipitation, lingers, spite 115
Of all remonstrance ; vainly are they shent,
Those girls who form a ring and, dressed in white, Dance round it, till some sister's strength be spent :
Touch but the Menhir, straight the rest turn roughs
From gentles, fall on her with fisticuffs. 120

XVI

Oh and, for their part, boys from door to door
Sing unintelligible words to tunes
As obsolete : "scraps of Druidic lore,"
Sigh scholars, as each pale man importunes
Vainly the mumbling to speak plain once more. 125
Enough of this old worship, rounds and runes !
They serve my purpose, which is but to show
Croisic to-day and Croisic long ago.

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

XVII

What have we sailed to see, then, wafted there
By fancy from the log that ends its days 130
Of much adventure 'neath skies foul or fair,
On waters rough or smooth, in this good blaze
We two crouch round so closely, bidding care Keep outside with the snow-storm ? Something says
“ Fit time for story-telling ! ” I begin— 135
Why not at Croisic, port we first put in ?

XVIII

Anywhere serves : for point me out the place
Wherever man has made himself a home,
And there I find the story of our race
In little, just at Croisic as at Rome. 140
What matters the degree ? the kind I trace.
Druids their temple, Christians have their dome :
So with mankind ; and Croisic, I 'll engage,
With Rome yields sort for sort, in age for age.

XIX

No doubt, men vastly differ : and we need 145
Some strange exceptional benevolence
Of nature's sunshine to develop seed
So well, in the less-favoured clime, that thence
We may discern how shrub means tree indeed
Though dwarfed till scarcely shrub in evidence. 150
Man in the ice-house or the hot-house ranks
With beasts or gods : stove-forced, give warmth the thanks !

XX

While, is there any ice-checked ? Such shall learn
I am thankworthy, who propose to slake
His thirst for tasting how it feels to turn 155
Cedar from hyssop-on-the-wall. I wake

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

No memories of what is harsh and stern
In ancient Croisic-nature, much less rake
The ashes of her last warmth till out leaps
Live Hervé Riel, the single spark she keeps. 160

XXI

Take these two, see, each outbreak,—spirt and
spirt
Of fire from our brave billet's either edge
Which—call maternal Croisic ocean-girt !
These two shall thoroughly redeem my pledge.
One flames fierce gules, its feebler rival—vert, 165
Heralds would tell you : heroes, I allege,
They both were : soldiers, sailors, statesmen,
priests,
Lawyers, physicians—guess what gods or beasts !

XXII

None of them all, but—poets, if you please !
“What, even there, endowed with knack of rhyme, 170
Did two among the aborigines
Of that rough region pass the ungracious time
Suiting, to rumble-tumble of the sea's,
The songs forbidden a serener clime ?
Or had they universal audience—that 's 175
To say, the folk of Croisic, ay and Batz ? ”

XXIII

Open your ears ! Each poet in his day
Had such a mighty moment of success
As pinnacled him straight, in full display,
For the whole world to worship—nothing less ! 180
Was not the whole polite world Paris, pray ?
And did not Paris, for one moment—yes,
Worship these poet-flames, our red and green,
One at a time, a century between ?

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

XXIV

And yet you never heard their names ! Assist, 185
Clio, Historic Muse, while I record
Great deeds ! Let fact, not fancy, break the mist
And bid each sun emerge, in turn play lord
Of day, one moment ! Hear the annalist
Tell a strange story, true to the least word ! 190
At Croisic, sixteen hundred years and ten Since Christ, forth flamed yon liquid ruby, then.

XXV

Know him henceforth as René Gentilhomme
—Appropriate appellation ! noble birth
And knightly blazon, the device wherefrom 195
Was “Better do than say” ! In Croisic’s dearth
Why prison his career while Christendom
Lay open to reward acknowledged worth ?
He therefore left it at the proper age
And got to be the Prince of Condé’s page. 200

XXVI

Which Prince of Condé, whom men called “The Duke,”
—Failing the king, his cousin, of an heir,
(As one might hold would hap, without rebuke,
Since Anne of Austria, all the world was ’ware,
Twenty-three years long sterile, scarce could look 205
For issue)—failing Louis of so rare
A godsend, it was natural the Prince Should hear men call him “Next King” too, nor wince.

XXVII

Now, as this reasonable hope, by growth
Of years, nay, tens of years, looked plump almost 210
To bursting,—would the brothers, childless both,
Louis and Gaston, give but up the ghost—

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Condé, called "Duke" and "Next King," nothing loth

Awaited his appointment to the post,
And wiled away the time, as best he might, 215
Till Providence should settle things aright.

XXVIII

So, at a certain pleasure-house, withdrawn
From cities where a whisper breeds offence,
He sat him down to watch the streak of dawn
Testify to first stir of Providence ; 220
And, since dull country life makes courtiers yawn,
There wanted not a poet to dispense Song's remedy for spleen-fits all and some,
Which poet was Page René Gentilhomme.

XXIX

A poet born and bred, his very sire 225
A poet also, author of a piece
Printed and published, "Ladies—their attire" :
Therefore the son, just born at his decease,
Was bound to keep alive the sacred fire,
And kept it, yielding moderate increase 230
Of songs and sonnets, madrigals, and much Rhyming thought poetry and praised as such.

XXX

Rubbish unutterable (bear in mind !),
Rubbish not wholly without value, though,
Being to compliment the Duke designed 235
And bring the complimenter credit so,— Pleasure with profit happily combined.
Thus René Gentilhomme rhymed, rhymed till
—lo,
This happened, as he sat in an alcove
Elaborating rhyme for "love"—not "dove." 240

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

XXXI

He was alone : silence and solitude
Befit the votary of the Muse. Around,
Nature—not our new picturesque and rude,
But trim tree-cinctured stately garden-ground—
Breathed polish and politeness. All-imbued 245
With these, he sat absorbed in one profound Excogitation “Were it best to hint
Or boldly boast ‘She loves me,—Araminte’?”

XXXII

When suddenly flashed lightning, searing sight
Almost, so close to eyes ; then, quick on flash, 250
Followed the thunder, splitting earth downright
Where René sat a-rhyming : with huge crash
Of marble into atoms infinite—
Marble which, stately, dared the world to dash
The stone-thing proud, high-pillared, from its place : 255
One flash, and dust was all that lay at base.

XXXIII

So, when the horrible confusion loosed
Its wrappage round his senses, and, with breath, Seeing and hearing by degrees induced Conviction what he felt was life, not death— 260
His fluttered faculties came back to roost
One after one, as fowls do : ay, beneath,
About his very feet there, lay in dust
Earthly presumption paid by heaven’s disgust.

XXXIV

For, what might be the thunder-smitten thing 265
But, pillared high and proud, in marble guise,
A ducal crown—which meant “Now Duke : Next, King” ?
Since such the Prince was, not in his own eyes

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Alone, but all the world's. Pebble from sling Prostrates a giant ; so can pulverize 270
Marble pretension—how much more, make moult
A peacock-prince his plume—God's thunderbolt.

XXXV

That was enough for René, that first fact Thus flashed into him. Up he looked : all blue
And bright the sky above ; earth firm, compact 275
Beneath his footing, lay apparent too ;
Opposite stood the pillar : nothing lacked
There, but the Duke's crown : see, its fragments strew
The earth,—about his feet lie atoms fine
Where he sat nursing late his fourteenth line ! 280

XXXVI

So, for the moment, all the universe
Being abolished, all 'twixt God and him,— Earth's praise or blame, its blessing or its curse,
Of one and the same value,—to the brim
Flooded with truth for better or for worse,— 285
He pounces on the writing-paper, prim,
Keeping its place on table : not a dint
Nor speck had damaged "Ode to Araminte."

XXXVII

And over the neat crowquill calligraph
His pen goes blotting, blurring, as an ox 290
Tramples a flower-bed in a garden,—laugh
You may !—so does not he, whose quick heart knocks
Audibly at his breast : an epitaph
On earth's break-up, amid the falling rocks,
He might be penning in a wild dismay, 295
Caught with his work half-done on Judgment Day.

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

XXXVIII

And what is it so terribly he pens,
Ruining "Cupid, Venus, wile and smile, Hearts, darts," and all his day's divinior mens
Judged necessary to a perfect style? 300
Little reck's René, with a breast to cleanse,
Of Rhadamanthine law that reigned erewhile :
Brimful of truth, truth's outburst will convince (Style or no style) who bears truth's brunt—the Prince.

XXXIX

"Condé, called 'Duke,' be called just 'Duke,' not more 305
To life's end ! 'Next King' thou forsooth wilt be ?
Ay, when this bauble, as it decked before
Thy pillar, shall again, for France to see,
Take its proud station there ! Let France adore
No longer an illusive mock-sun—thee— 310
But keep her homage for Sol's self, about
To rise and put pretenders to the rout !

XL

"What? France so God-abandoned that her root
Regal, though many a Spring it gave no sign, Lacks power to make the bole, now branchless, shoot 315
Greenly as ever? Nature, though benign, Thwarts ever the ambitious and astute.
In store for such is punishment condign :
Sure as thy Duke's crown to the earth was hurled,
So sure, next year, a Dauphin glads the world !" 320

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

XLI

Which penned—some forty lines to this effect—
Our René folds his paper, marches brave
Back to the mansion, luminous, erect,
Triumphant, an emancipated slave.
There stands the Prince. “How now? My Duke’s crown wrecked? 325
What may this mean?” The answer René gave
Was—handing him the verses, with the due Incline of body: “Sir, God’s word to you!”

XLII

The Prince read, paled, was silent; all around,
The courtier-company, to whom he passed 330
The paper, read, in equal silence bound.
René grew also by degrees aghast
At his own fit of courage—palely found
Way of retreat from that pale presence: classed
Once more among the cony-kind. “Oh, son, 335
It is a feeble folk!” saith Solomon.

XLIII

Vainly he apprehended evil: since,
When, at the year’s end, even as foretold,
Forth came the Dauphin who discrowned the Prince
Of that long-craved mere visionary gold, 340
’T was no fit time for envy to evince
Malice, be sure! The timidest grew bold:
Of all that courtier-company not one
But left the semblance for the actual sun.

XLIV

And all sorts and conditions that stood by 345
At René’s burning moment, bright escape
Of soul, bore witness to the prophecy.
Which witness took the customary shape

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Of verse ; a score of poets in full cry Hailed the inspired one. Nantes and Tours agape, 350
Soon Paris caught the infection ; gaining strength,
How could it fail to reach the Court at length ?

LV

“ O poet ! ” smiled King Louis, “ and besides,
O prophet ! Sure, by miracle announced,
My babe will prove a prodigy. Who chides 355 Henceforth the unchilded monarch shall be trounced
For irreligion : since the fool derides
Plain miracle by which this prophet pounced
Exactly on the moment I should lift
Like Simeon, in my arms, a babe, ‘ God’s gift ! ’ 360

LVI

“ So call the boy ! and call this bard and seer
By a new title ! him I raise to rank
Of ‘ Royal Poet : ’ poet without peer !
Whose fellows only have themselves to thank
If humbly they must follow in the rear 365
My René. He’s the master : they must clank
Their chains of song, confessed his slaves ; for why ?
They poetize, while he can prophesy ! ”

LVII

So said, so done ; our René rose august,
“ The Royal Poet ; ” straightway put in type 370
His poem-prophecy, and (fair and just Procedure) added,—now that time was ripe
For proving friends did well his word to trust,—
Those attestations, tuned to lyre or pipe,
Which friends broke out with when he dared foretell 375
The Dauphin’s birth : friends trusted, and did well.

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

XLVIII

Moreover he got painted by Du Pré,
Engraved by Daret also, and prefixed
The portrait to his book : a crown of bay
Circled his brows, with rose and myrtle mixed ; 380
And Latin verses, lovely in their way,
Described him as "the biforked hill betwixt :
Since he hath scaled Parnassus at one jump,
Joining the Delphic quill and Getic trump."

XLIX

Whereof came . . . What, it lasts, our spirt, thus long 385
—The red fire ? That's the reason must excuse
My letting flicker René's prophet-song
No longer ; for its pertinacious hues
Must fade before its fellow joins the throng
Of sparks departed up the chimney, dues 390
To dark oblivion. At the word, it winks, Rallies, relapses, dwindles, deathward sinks !

L

So does our poet. All this burst of fame,
Fury of favour, Royal Poetship, Prophetship, book, verse, picture—thereof came 395
—Nothing ! That's why I would not let outstrip
Red his green rival flamelet : just the same Ending in smoke waits both ! In vain we rip
The past, no further faintest trace remains
Of René to reward our pious pains. 400

LI

Somebody saw a portrait framed and glazed
At Croisic. "Who may be this glorified Mortal unheard-of hitherto ?" amazed
That person asked the owner by his side,

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Who proved as ignorant. The question raised 405
Provoked inquiry ; key by key was tried
On Croisic's portrait-puzzle, till back flew
The wards at one key's touch, which key was—Who ?

LII

The other famous poet ! Wait thy turn,
Thou green, our red's competitor ! Enough 410
Just now to note 't was he that itched to learn (A hundred years ago) how fate could puff
Heaven-high (a hundred years before) then spurn
To suds so big a bubble in some huff :
Since green too found red's portrait,—having heard 415
Hitherto of red's rare self not one word.

LIII

And he with zeal addressed him to the task
Of hunting out, by all and any means,
—Who might the brilliant bard be, born to bask
Butterfly-like in shine which kings and queens 420
And baby-dauphins shed ? Much need to ask !
Is fame so fickle that what perks and preens
The eyed wing, one imperial minute, dips
Next sudden moment into blind eclipse ?

LIV

After a vast expenditure of pains, 425
Our second poet found the prize he sought :
Urged in his search by something that restrains
From undue triumph famed ones who have fought,
Or simply, poetizing, taxed their brains :
Something that tells such—dear is triumph 430 bought
If it means only basking in the midst
Of fame's brief sunshine, as thou, René, didst.

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

LV

For, what did searching find at last but this?
Quoth somebody "I somehow somewhere seem
To think I heard one old De Chevaye is 435
Or was possessed of René's works!" which gleam
Of light from out the dark proved not amiss
To track, by correspondence on the theme;
And soon the twilight broadened into day,
For thus to question answered De Chevaye. 440

LVI

"True it is, I did once possess the works
You want account of—works—to call them
so,—
Comprised in one small book: the volume lurks
(Some fifty leaves in duodecimo)
'Neath certain ashes which my soul it irks 445
Still to remember, because long ago
That and my other rare shelf-occupants
Perished by burning of my house at Nantes.

LVII

"Yet of that book one strange particular Still stays in mind with me"—and thereupon 450 Followed the story. "Few the poems are;
The book was two-thirds filled up with this one,
And sundry witnesses from near and far
That here at least was prophesying done
By prophet, so as to preclude all doubt, 455
Before the thing he prophesied about."

LVIII

That's all he knew, and all the poet learned,
And all that you and I are like to hear
Of René; since not only book is burned
But memory extinguished,—nay, I fear, 460

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Portrait is gone too : nowhere I discerned
A trace of it at Croisic. "Must a tear Needs fall for that?" you smile. "How fortune fares
With such a mediocrity, who cares?"

LIX

Well, I care—intimately care to have 465
Experience how a human creature felt
In after-life, who bore the burden grave
Of certainly believing God had dealt
For once directly with him : did not rave
—A maniac, did not find his reason melt 470
—An idiot, but went on, in peace or strife,
The world's way, lived an ordinary life.

LX

How many problems that one fact would solve !
An ordinary soul, no more, no less,
About whose life earth's common sights revolve, 475
On whom is brought to bear, by thunder-stress,
This fact—God tasks him, and will not absolve
Task's negligent performer ! Can you guess
How such a soul,—the task performed to point,— Goes back to life nor finds things out of joint ? 480

LXI

Does he stand stock-like henceforth ? or proceed
Dizzily, yet with course straightforward still,
Down-trampling vulgar hindrance ?—as the reed
Is crushed beneath its tramp when that blind will Hatched in some old-world beast's brain bids it speed 485
Where the sun wants brute-presence to fulfil Life's purpose in a new far zone, ere ice
Enwomb the pasture-track its fortalice.

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

LXII

I think no such direct plain truth consists With actual sense and thought and what they take 490
To be the solid walls of life : mere mists—
How such would, at that truth's first piercing, break
Into the nullity they are !—slight lists
Wherein the puppet-champions wage, for sake
Of some mock-mistress, mimic war : laid low 495
At trumpet-blast, there's shown the world, one foe !

LXIII

No, we must play the pageant out, observe
The tourney-regulations, and regard Success—to meet the blunted spear nor swerve,
Failure—to break no bones yet fall on sword ; 500
Must prove we have—not courage ? well then,— nerve !
And, at the day's end, boast the crown's award—
Be warranted as promising to wield
Weapons, no sham, in a true battle-field.

LXIV

Meantime, our simulated thunderclaps 505
Which tell us counterfeited truths—these same Are—sound, when music storms the soul, perhaps ?
—Sight, beauty, every dart of every aim That touches just, then seems, by strange re-lapse,
To fall effectless from the soul it came 510
As if to fix its own, but simply smote
And startled to vague beauty more remote ?

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

LXV

So do we gain enough—yet not too much—Acquaintance with that outer element
Wherein there 's operation (call it such !) 515
Quite of another kind than we the pent
On earth are proper to receive. Our hutch Lights up at the least chink : let roof be rent—
How inmates huddle, blinded at first spasm,
Cognizant of the sun's self through the chasm ! 520

LXVI

Therefore, who knows if this our René's quick Subsidence from as sudden noise and glare
Into oblivion was impolitic ?
No doubt his soul became at once aware
That, after prophecy, the rhyming-trick 525
Is poor employment : human praises scare
Rather than soothe ears all a-tingle yet
With tones few hear and live, but none forget.

LXVII

There 's our first famous poet. Step thou forth
Second consummate songster ! See, the tongue 530
Of fire that typifies thee, owns thy worth
In yellow, purple mixed its green among,
No pure and simple resin from the North,
But composite with virtues that belong
To Southern culture ! Love not more than hate 535 Helped to a blaze . . . But I anticipate.

LXVIII

Prepare to witness a combustion rich
And riotously splendid, far beyond Poor René's lambent little streamer which Only played candle to a Court grown fond 540

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

By baby-birth : this soared to such a pitch,
Alternately such colours doffed and donned,
That when I say it dazzled Paris—please
Know that it brought Voltaire upon his knees !

LXIX

Who did it, was a dapper gentleman, 545
Paul Desforges Maillard, Croisickese by birth, Whose birth that century ended which began
By similar bestowment on our earth
Of the aforesaid René. Cease to scan
The ways of Providence! See Croisic's dearth— 550
Not Paris in its plenitude—suffice
To furnish France with her best poet twice !

LXX

Till he was thirty years of age, the vein
Poetic yielded rhyme by drops and spirts :
In verses of society had lain 555
His talent chiefly ; but the Muse asserts Privilege most by treating with disdain
Epics the bard mouths out, or odes he blurts
Spasmodically forth. Have people time
And patience nowadays for thought in rhyme ? 560

LXXI

So, his achievements were the quatrain's inch
Of homage, or at most the sonnet's ell
Of admiration : welded lines with clinch
Of ending word and word, to every belle
In Croisic's bounds ; these, brisk as any finch, 565
He twittered till his fame had reached as well Guérande as Batz ; but there fame stopped, for—curse
On fortune—outside lay the universe !

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

LXXII

That 's Paris. Well,—why not break bounds, and send

Song onward till it echo at the gates 570
Of Paris whither all ambitions tend,

And end too, seeing that success there sates
The soul which hungers most for fame? Why spend

A minute in deciding, while, by Fate's
Decree, there happens to be just the prize 575
Proposed there, suiting souls that poetize?

LXXIII

A prize indeed, the Academy's own self Proposes to what bard shall best indite
A piece describing how, through shoal and shelf,
The Art of Navigation, steered aright, 580
Has, in our last king's reign,—the lucky elf,— Reached, one may say, Perfection's haven quite,
And there cast anchor. At a glance one sees
The subject's crowd of capabilities!

LXXIV

Neptune and Amphitrité! Thetis, who 585
Is either Tethys or as good—both tag!
Triton can shove along a vessel too:

It's Virgil! Then the winds that blow or lag,—
De Maille, Vendôme, Vermandois! Toulouse blew
Longest, we reckon: he must puff the flag 590
To fullest outflare; while our lacking nymph
Be Anne of Austria, Regent o'er the lymph!

LXXV

Promised, performed! Since irritabilis gens
Holds of the feverish impotence that strives
To stay an itch by prompt resource to pen's 595
Scratching itself on paper; placid lives,

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Leisurely works mark the divinior mens :

Bees brood above the honey in their hives ;
Gnats are the busy bustlers. Splash and scrawl,— Completed lay thy piece, swift penman Paul ! 600

LXXVI

To Paris with the product ! This despatched,
One had to wait the Forty's slow and sure Verdict, as best one might. Our penman scratched Away perforce the itch that knows no cure
But daily paper-friction : more than matched 605
His first feat by a second—tribute pure
And heartfelt to the Forty when their voice
Should peal with one accord "Be Paul our choice!"

LXXVII

Scratch, scratch went much laudation of that sane
And sound Tribunal, delegates august 610
Of Phœbus and the Muses' sacred train—
Whom every poetaster tries to thrust
From where, high-throned, they dominate the Seine :
Fruitless endeavour,—fail it shall and must !
Whereof in witness have not one and all 615
The Forty voices pealed "Our choice be Paul" ?

LXXVIII

Thus Paul discounted his applause. Alack
For human expectation ! Scarcely ink
Was dry when, lo, the perfect piece came back Rejected, shamed ! Some other poet's clink 620
"Thetis and Tethys" had seduced the pack
Of pedants to declare perfection's pink
A singularly poor production. "Whew !
The Forty are stark fools, I always knew."

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

LXXIX

First fury over (for Paul's race—to-wit,
Brain-vibrios—wriggle clear of protoplasm 625
Into minute life that 's one fury-fit),
“These fools shall find a bard's enthusiasm
Comports with what should counterbalance it—
Some knowledge of the world! No doubt, orgasm 630
Effects the birth of verse which, born, demands
Prosaic ministration, swaddling-bands!

LXXX

“Verse must be cared for at this early stage, Handled, nay dandled even. I should play
Their game indeed if, till it grew of age, 635
I meekly let these dotards frown away
My bantling from the rightful heritage
Of smiles and kisses! Let the public say
If it be worthy praises or rebukes,
My poem, from these Forty old perukes!” 640

LXXXI

So, by a friend, who boasts himself in grace
With no less than the Chevalier La Roque,— Eminent in those days for pride of place,
Seeing he had it in his power to block
The way or smooth the road to all the race 645
Of literators trudging up to knock
At Fame's exalted temple-door—for why?
He edited the Paris “Mercury” :—

LXXXII

By this friend's help the Chevalier receives Paul's poem, prefaced by the due appeal 650
To Cæsar from the Jews. As duly heaves
A sigh the Chevalier, about to deal

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

With case so customary—turns the leaves,
Finds nothing there to borrow, beg or steal—
Then brightens up the critic's brow deep-lined. 655
"The thing may be so cleverly declined!"

LXXXIII

Down to desk, out with paper, up with quill,
Dip and indite! "Sir, gratitude immense
For this true draught from the Pierian rill!
Our Academic clodpoles must be dense 660 Indeed to stand unirrigated still.
No less, we critics dare not give offence
To grandees like the Forty: while we mock
We grin and bear. So, here's your piece! La Roque."

LXXXIV

"There now!" cries Paul: "the fellow can't avoid 665
Confessing that my piece deserves the palm;
And yet he dares not grant me space enjoyed
By every scribbler he permits embalm
His crambo in the Journal's corner! Cloyed
With stuff like theirs, no wonder if a qualm 670
Be caused by verse like mine: though that's no cause
For his defrauding me of just applause.

LXXXV

"Aha, he fears the Forty, this poltroon?
First let him fear me! Change smooth speech to rough!
I'll speak my mind out, show the fellow soon 675
Who is the foe to dread: insist enough
On my own merits till, as clear as noon,
He sees I am no man to take rebuff
As patiently as scribblers may and must!
Quick to the onslaught, out sword, cut and thrust!" 680

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

LXXXVI

And thereupon a fierce epistle flings
Its challenge in the critic's face. Alack !
Our bard mistakes his man ! The gauntlet rings
On brazen visor proof against attack.
Prompt from his editorial throne up springs 685
The insulted magnate, and his mace falls, thwack,
On Paul's devoted brainpan,—quite away
From common courtesies of fencing-play !

LXXXVII

“Sir, will you have the truth? This piece of yours
Is simply execrable past belief. 690
I shrank from saying so ; but, since nought cures
Conceit but truth, truth's at your service! Brief,
Just so long as ‘The Mercury’ endures,
So long are you excluded by its Chief
From corner, nay, from cranny ! Play the cock 695
O' the roost, henceforth, at Croisic !” wrote La Roque.

LXXXVIII

Paul yellowed, whitened, as his wrath from red Waxed incandescent. Now, this man of rhyme
Was merely foolish, faulty in the head
Not heart of him : conceit's a venial crime. 700
“Oh by no means malicious !” cousins said :
Fussily feeble,—harmless all the time,
Piddling at so-called satire—well-advised,
He held in most awe whom he satirized.

LXXXIX

Accordingly his kith and kin—removed 705
From emulation of the poet's gift
By power and will—these rather liked, nay, loved
The man who gave his family a lift

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Out of the Croisic level ; “disapproved Satire so trenchant.” Thus our poet sniffed 710
Home-incense, though too churlish to unlock
“The Mercury’s” box of ointment was La Roque.

XC

But when Paul’s visage grew from red to white,
And from his lips a sort of mumbling fell
Of who was to be kicked,—“And serve him right”— 715
A gay voice interposed—“did kicking well Answer the purpose ! Only—if I might Suggest as much—a far more potent spell
Lies in another kind of treatment. Oh,
Women are ready at resource, you know ! 720

XCI

“Talent should minister to genius ! Good :
The proper and superior smile returns.
Hear me with patience ! Have you understood
The only method whereby genius earns 725
Fit guerdon nowadays ? In knightly mood
You entered lists with visor up ; one learns
Too late that, had you mounted Roland’s crest, ‘Room !’ they had roared—La Roque with all the rest !

XCII

“Why did you first of all transmit your piece
To those same priggish Forty unprepared 730
Whether to rank you with the swans or geese
By friendly intervention ? If they dared Count you a cackler,—wonders never cease !
I think it still more wondrous that you bared
Your brow (my earlier image) as if praise 735
Were gained by simple fighting nowadays !

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

XCIII

“Your next step showed a touch of the true means Whereby desert is crowned : not force but wile
Came to the rescue. ‘Get behind the scenes!’

Your friend advised : he writes, sets forth your style

740

And title, to such purpose intervenes

That you get velvet-compliment three-pile ;
And, though ‘The Mercury’ said ‘nay,’ nor stock
Nor stone did his refusal prove La Roque.

XCIV

“Why must you needs revert to the high hand, 745 Imperative procedure—what you call

‘Taking on merit your exclusive stand’ ?

Stand, with a vengeance! Soon you went to wall,
You and your merit ! Only fools command

When folk are free to disobey them, Paul ! 750

You’ve learnt your lesson, found out what’s o’clock,
By this uncivil answer of La Roque.

XCV

“Now let me counsel ! Lay this piece on shelf —Masterpiece though it be! From out your desk

Hand me some lighter sample, verse the elf 755

Cupid inspired you with, no god grotesque
Presiding o’er the Navy ! I myself

Hand-write what’s legible yet picturesque ;
I’ll copy fair and femininely frock

Your poem masculine that courts La Roque ! 760

XCVI

“Deïdamia he—Achilles thou !

Ha, ha, these ancient stories come so apt !

My sex, my youth, my rank I next avow

In a neat prayer for kind perusal. Sapped

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

I see the walls which stand so stoutly now ! 765
I see the toils about the game entrapped
By honest cunning ! Chains of lady's-smock,
Not thorn and thistle, tether fast La Roque !"

XCVII

Now, who might be the speaker sweet and arch
That laughed above Paul's shoulder as it heaved 770
With the indignant heart ?—bade steal a march
And not continue charging ? Who conceived
This plan which set our Paul, like pea you parch
On fire-shovel, skipping, of a load relieved,
From arm-chair moodiness to escritoire 775
Sacred to Phœbus and the tuneful choir ?

XCVIII

Who but Paul's sister ! named of course like him
"Desforges" ; but, mark you, in those days a queer Custom obtained,—who knows whence grew the whim ?—
That people could not read their title clear 780
To reverence till their own true names, made dim
By daily mouthing, pleased to disappear,
Replaced by brand-new bright ones : Arouet,
For instance, grew Voltaire ; Desforges—Malcrais.

XCIX

"Demoiselle Malcrais de la Vigne"—because 785
The family possessed at Brederac
A vineyard,—few grapes, many hips-and-haws,—
Still a nice Breton name. As breast and back
Of this vivacious beauty gleamed through gauze,
So did her sprightly nature nowise lack 790
Lustre when draped, the fashionable way,
In "Malcrais de la Vigne"—more short, "Malcrais."

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

C

Out from Paul's escritoire behold escape
The hoarded treasure! verse falls thick and fast,
Sonnets and songs of every size and shape. 795
The lady ponders on her prize; at last Selects one which—Oh angel and yet ape!—
Her malice thinks is probably surpassed
In badness by no fellow of the flock,
Copies it fair, and "Now for my La Roque!" 800

CI

So, to him goes, with the neat manuscript,
The soft petitionary letter. "Grant
A fledgeling novice that with wing unclipt
She soar her little circuit, habitant
Of an old manor; buried in which crypt, 805
How can the youthful châtelaine but pant
For disemprisonment by one ad hoc Appointed 'Mercury's' Editor, La Roque?"

CII

'T was an epistle that might move the Turk!
More certainly it moved our middle-aged 810
Pen-driver drudging at his weary work,
Raked the old ashes up and disengaged
The sparks of gallantry which always lurk
Somehow in literary breasts, assuaged
In no degree by compliments on style; 815
Are Forty wagging beards worth one girl's smile?

CIII

In trips the lady's poem, takes its place
Of honour in the gratified Gazette,
With due acknowledgment of power and grace;
Prognostication, too, that higher yet 820

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

The Breton Muse will soar: fresh youth, high race,
Beauty and wealth have amicably met
That Demoiselle Malcrais may fill the chair Left vacant by the loss of Deshoulières.

CIV

“There!” cried the lively lady. “Who was right— 825
You in the dumps, or I the merry maid
Who know a trick or two can baffle spite Tenfold the force of this old fool’s? Afraid
Of Editor La Roque? But come! next flight Shall outsoar—Deshoulières alone? My blade, 830
Sappho herself shall you confess outstript!
Quick, Paul, another dose of manuscript!”

CV

And so, once well a-foot, advanced the game:
More and more verses, corresponding gush
On gush of praise, till everywhere acclaim 835
Rose to the pitch of uproar. “Sappho? Tush!
Sure ‘Malcrais on her Parrot’ puts to shame
Deshoulières’ pastoral, clay not worth a rush
Beside this find of treasure, gold in crock, Unearthed in Brittany,—nay, ask La Roque!” 840

CVI

Such was the Paris tribute. “Yes,” you sneer, “Ninnies stock Noodledom, but folk more sage Resist contagious folly, never fear!”
Do they? Permit me to detach one page
From the huge Album which from far and near 845
Poetic praises blackened in a rage
Of rapture! and that page shall be—who stares
Confounded now, I ask you?—just Voltaire’s!

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

CVII

Ay, sharpest shrewdest steel that ever stabbed
To death Imposture through the armour-joints ! 850
How did it happen that gross Humbug grabbed Thy weapons, gouged thine eyes out? Fate appoints
That pride shall have a fall, or I had blabbed
Hardly that Humbug, whom thy soul aoints,
Could thus cross-buttock thee caught unawares, 855
And dismalest of tumbles proved—Voltaire's !

CVIII

See his epistle extant yet, wherewith
"Henri" in verse and "Charles" in prose he sent
To do her suit and service ! Here 's the pith
Of half a dozen stanzas—stones which went 860
To build that simulated monolith—
Sham love in due degree with homage blent
As sham—which in the vast of volumes scares
The traveller still : "That stucco-heap—Vol-taire's ?"

CIX

"Oh thou, whose clarion-voice has overflown 865
The wilds to startle Paris that 's one ear !
Thou who such strange capacity hast shown
For joining all that 's grand with all that 's
dear,
Knowledge with power to please—Deshoulières
grown
Learned as Dacier in thy person ! mere 870
Weak fruit of idle hours, these crabs of mine
I dare lay at thy feet, O Muse divine !

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

CX

"Charles was my taskwork only ; Henri trod
My hero erst ; and now, my heroine—she Shall be thyself ! True—is it true, great God ? 875
Certainly love henceforward must not be !
Yet all the crowd of Fine Arts fail—how odd !—
Tried turn by turn, to fill a void in me !
There 's no replacing love with these, alas !
Yet all I can I do to prove no ass. 880

CXI

"I labour to amuse my freedom ; but Should any sweet young creature slavery preach,
And—borrowing thy vivacious charm, the slut!—
Make me, in thy engaging words, a speech,
Soon should I see myself in prison shut 885
With all imaginable pleasure." Reach
The washhand-basin for admirers ! There 's
A stomach-moving tribute—and Voltaire's !

CXII

Suppose it a fantastic billet-doux,
Adulatory flourish, not worth frown ! 890
What say you to the Fathers of Trévoux ?
These in their Dictionary have her down
Under the heading "Author" : "Malcrais, too,
Is 'Author' of much verse that claims renown." While Jean-Baptiste Rousseau . . . but why proceed ? 895
Enough of this—something too much, indeed !

CXIII

At last La Roque, unwilling to be left Behindhand in the rivalry, broke bounds
Of figurative passion ; hilt and heft, Plunged his huge downright love through what surrounds 900

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

The literary female bosom ; ~~rest~~

Away its veil of coy reserve with "Zounds !
I love thee, Breton Beauty ! All 's no use !
Body and soul I love,—the big word 's loose !"

CXIV

He's greatest now and to de-struc-ti-on 905
Nearest. Attend the solemn word I quote,
O Paul ! There 's no pause at per-fec-ti-on.
Thus knolls thy knell the Doctor's bronzed throat !

Greatness a period hath, no sta-ti-on !
Better and truer verse none ever wrote 910
(Despite the antique outstretched a-i-on)
Than thou, revered and magisterial Donne !

CXV

Flat on his face, La Roque, and,—pressed to heart
His dexter hand,—Voltaire with bended knee !
Paul sat and sucked-in triumph ; just apart 915
Leaned over him his sister. "Well !" smirks he,
And "Well ?" she answers, smiling—woman's art
To let a man's own mouth, not hers, decree
What shall be next move which decides the game :
Success ? She said so. Failure ? His the blame. 920

CXVI

"Well !" this time forth affirmatively comes With smack of lip, and long-drawn sigh through teeth
Close clenched o'er satisfaction, as the gums
Were tickled by a sweetmeat teased beneath Palate by lubricating tongue : "Well ! crumbs 925
Of comfort these, undoubtedly ! no death
Likely from famine at Fame's feast ! 't is clear
I may put claim in for my pittance, Dear !

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

CXVII

“La Roque, Voltaire, my lovers ! Then disguise
Has served its turn, grows idle ; let it drop ! 930
I shall to Paris, flaunt there in men’s eyes
My proper manly garb and mount a-top
The pedestal that waits me, take the prize Awarded Hercules. He threw a sop
To Cerberus who let him pass, you know, 935
Then, following, licked his heels : exactly so !

CXVIII

“I like the prospect—their astonishment,
Confusion : wounded vanity, no doubt,
Mixed motives ; how I see the brows quick bent !
‘What, sir, yourself, none other, brought about 940
This change of estimation ? Phœbus sent His shafts as from Diana ?’ Critic pout
Turns courtier smile : ‘Lo, him we took for her !
Pleasant mistake ! You bear no malice, sir ?’

CXIX

“Eh, my Diana ?” But Diana kept 945
Smilingly silent with fixed needle-sharp
Much-meaning eyes that seemed to intercept Paul’s very thoughts ere they had time to warp
From earnest into sport the words they leapt
To life with—changed as when maltreated harp 950
Renders in tinkle what some player-prig
Means for a grave tune though it proves a jig.

CXX

“What, Paul, and are my pains thus thrown away,
My lessons end in loss ?” at length fall slow
The pitying syllables, her lips allay 955
The satire of by keeping in full flow,

Above their coral reef, bright smiles at play :

“Can it be, Paul thus fails to rightly know
And altogether estimate applause
As just so many asinine hee-haws ?

960

CXXI

“I thought to show you ” . . . “Show me,” Paul in-broke,

“My poetry is rubbish, and the world
That rings with my renown a sorry joke !

What fairer test of worth than that, form furled,
I entered the arena ? Yet you croak

965

Just as if Phoebé and not Phoebus hurled
The dart and struck the Python ! What, he crawls Humbly in dust before your feet, not Paul's ?

CXXII

“Nay, 't is no laughing matter though absurd
If there 's an end of honesty on earth !

970

La Roque sends letters, lying every word !

Voltaire makes verse, and of himself makes mirth
To the remotest age ! Rousseau 's the third

Who, driven to despair amid such dearth

Of people that want praising, finds no one 975

More fit to praise than Paul the simpleton !

CXXIII

“Somebody says—if a man writes at all

It is to show the writer's kith and kin

He was unjustly thought a natural ;

And truly, sister, I have yet to win

980

Your favourable word, it seems, for Paul

Whose poetry you count not worth a pin,

Though well enough esteemed by these Voltaires,

Rousseaus and suchlike : let them quack, who cares ? ”

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

CXXIV

“—To Paris with you, Paul! Not one word’s waste 985
Further : my scrupulosity was vain !
Go triumph ! Be my foolish fears effaced
From memory’s record ! Go, to come again
With glory crowned,—by sister re-embraced,
Cured of that strange delusion of her brain 990
Which led her to suspect that Paris gloats
On male limbs mostly when in petticoats !”

CXXV

So laughed her last word, with the little touch
Of malice proper to the outraged pride
Of any artist in a work too much 995
Shorn of its merits. “ By all means be tried
The opposite procedure ! Cast your crutch Away, no longer crippled, nor divide
The credit of your march to the World’s Fair
With sister Cherry-cheeks who helped you there !” 1000

CXXVI

Crippled, forsooth ! what courser sprightlier pranced
Paris-ward than did Paul ? Nay, dreams lent wings :
He flew, or seemed to fly, by dreams entranced.
Dreams ? wide-awake realities : no things
Dreamed merely were the missives that advanced 1005
The claim of Malcrais to consort with kings Crowned by Apollo—not to say with queens Cinctured by Venus for Idalian scenes.

CXXVII

Soon he arrives, forthwith is found before
The outer gate of glory. Bold tic-toc 1010
Announces there ’s a giant at the door.
“ Ay, sir, here dwells the Chevalier La Roque.”

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

“Lackey! Malcrais,—mind, no word less nor more!—

Desires his presence. I’ve unearthed the brock :

Now, to transfix him !” There stands Paul erect, 1015
Inched out his uttermost, for more effect.

CXXVIII

A bustling entrance : “Idol of my flame !

Can it be that my heart attains at last

Its longing? that you stand, the very same

As in my visions? . . . Ha! hey, how?” aghast 1020 Stops short the rapture. “Oh, my boy’s to blame !

You merely are the messenger ! Too fast

My fancy rushed to a conclusion. Pooh !

Well, sir, the lady’s substitute is—who ?”

CXXIX

Then Paul’s smirk grows inordinate. “Shake hands !

1025

Friendship not love awaits you, master mine,

Though nor Malcrais nor any mistress stands

To meet your ardour ! So, you don’t divine

Who wrote the verses wherewith ring the land’s

Whole length and breadth? Just he whereof no line

1030

Had ever leave to blot your Journal—eh?

Paul Desforges Maillard—otherwise Malcrais !”

CXXX

And there the two stood, stare confronting smirk,

Awhile uncertain which should yield the pas.

In vain the Chevalier beat brain for quirk

1035

To help in this conjuncture ; at length “Bah !

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Boh ! Since I 've made myself a fool, why shirk
The punishment of folly ? Ha, ha, ha,
Let me return your handshake ! " Comic sock
For tragic buskin prompt thus changed La Roque. 1040

CXXXI

" I 'm nobody—a wren-like journalist ;
You 've flown at higher game and winged your bird,
The golden eagle ! That 's the grand acquist !
Voltaire's sly Muse, the tiger-cat, has purred
Prettily round your feet ; but if she missed 1045
Priority of stroking, soon were stirred
The dormant spit-fire. To Voltaire ! away,
Paul Desforges Maillard, otherwise Malcrais ! "

CXXXII

Whereupon, arm in arm, and head in air,
The two begin their journey. Need I say, 1050
La Roque had felt the talon of Voltaire,
Had a long-standing little debt to pay,
And pounced, you may depend, on such a rare
Occasion for its due discharge ? So, gay
And grenadier-like, marching to assault, 1055
They reach the enemy's abode, there halt.

CXXXIII

" I 'll be announcer ! " quoth La Roque : " I know, Better than you, perhaps, my Breton bard,
How to procure an audience ! He 's not slow
To smell a rat, this scamp Voltaire ! Discard 1060
The petticoats too soon,—you 'll never show
Your haut-de-chausses and all they 've made or marred
In your true person. Here 's his servant. Pray,
Will the great man see Demoiselle Malcrais ? "

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

CXXXIV

Now, the great man was also, no whit less, 1065
The man of self-respect,—more great man he !
And bowed to social usage, dressed the dress,
And decorated to the fit degree
His person ; 't was enough to bear the stress
Of battle in the field, without, when free 1070
From outside foes, inviting friends' attack
By—sword in hand? No,—ill-made coat on back !

CXXXV

And, since the announcement of his visitor
Surprised him at his toilet,—never glass
Had such solicitation ! “ Black, now—or 1075
Brown be the killing wig to wear? Alas,
Where's the rouge gone, this cheek were better for
A tender touch of? Melted to a mass,
All my pomatum ! There's at all events
A devil—for he's got among my scents !” 1080

CXXXVI

So, “barbered ten times o'er,” as Antony
Paced to his Cleopatra, did at last Voltaire proceed to the fair presence : high
In colour, proud in port, as if a blast
Of trumpet bade the world “Take note ! draws 1085 nigh
To Beauty, Power ! Behold the Iconoclast,
The Poet, the Philosopher, the Rod
Of iron for imposture ! Ah my God !”

CXXXVII

For there stands smirking Paul, and—what lights fierce
The situation as with sulphur flash— 1090

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

There grinning stands La Roque ! No carte-and-tierce

Observes the grinning fencer, but, full dash
From breast to shoulderblade, the thrusts trans-pierce

That armour against which so idly clash
The swords of priests and pedants ! Victors there, 1095
Two smirk and grin who have befooled—Voltaire !

CXXXVIII

A moment's horror ; then quick turn-about
On high-heeled shoe,—flurry of ruffles, flounce
Of wig-ties and of coat-tails,—and so out Of door banged wrathfully behind, goes—bounce—

1100

Voltaire in tragic exit ! vows, no doubt,
Vengeance upon the couple. Did he trounce Either, in point of fact ? His anger's flash Subsided if a culprit craved his cash.

CXXXIX

As for La Roque, he having laughed his laugh 1105
To heart's content,—the joke defunct at once,
Dead in the birth, you see,—its epitaph

Was sober earnest. “ Well, sir, for the nonce,
You 've gained the laurel ; never hope to graff

A second sprig of triumph there ! Ensconce 1110 Yourself again at Croisic : let it be Enough you mastered both Voltaire and—me !

CXL

“ Don't linger here in Paris to parade
Your victory, and have the very boys
Point at you ! ‘ There's the little mouse which made 1115
Believe those two big lions that its noise,

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Nibbling away behind the hedge, conveyed Intelligence that—portent which destroys
All courage in the lion's heart, with horn
That 's fable—there lay couched the unicorn !' 1120

CXLI

“Beware us, now we 've found who fooled us !
Quick

To cover ! ‘In proportion to men's fright,
Expect their fright's revenge !’ quoth politic Old Macchiavelli. As for me,—all 's right :
I 'm but a journalist. But no pin's prick 1125

The tooth leaves when Voltaire is roused to bite !
So, keep your counsel, I advise ! Adieu !
Good journey ! Ha, ha, ha, Malcrais was—you !”

CXLII

“—Yes, I 'm Malcrais, and somebody beside,
You snickering monkey !” thus winds up the tale 1130
Our hero, safe at home, to that black-eyed Cherry-cheeked sister, as she soothes the pale Mortified poet. “Let their worst be tried,
I'm their match henceforth—very man and male !
Don't talk to me of knocking-under ! man 1135
And male must end what petticoats began !

CXLIII

“How woman-like it is to apprehend
The world will eat its words ! why, words transfixed
To stone, they stare at you in print,—at end,
Each writer's style and title ! Choose betwixt 1140 Fool and knave for his name, who should intend
To perpetrate a baseness so unmixed
With prospect of advantage ! What is writ
Is writ : they 've praised me, there 's an end of it.

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

CXLIV

"No, Dear, allow me ! I shall print these same 1145
Pieces, with no omitted line, as Paul's.
Malcrais no longer, let me see folk blame
What they—praised simply ?—placed on pedestals,
Each piece a statue in the House of Fame !
Fast will they stand there, though their presence
galls 1150
The envious crew : such show their teeth, perhaps
And snarl, but never bite ! I know the chaps !"

CXLV

Oh Paul, oh piteously deluded ! Pace
Thy sad sterility of Croisic flats,
Watch, from their southern edge, the foamy race 1155
Of high-tide as it heaves the drowning mats
Of yellow-berried web-growth from their place,
The rock-ridge, when, rolling as far as Batz,
One broadside crashes on it, and the crags,
That needle under, stream with weedy rags ! 1160

CXLVI

Or, if thou wilt, at inland Bergerac,
Rude heritage but recognized domain,
Do as two here are doing : make hearth crack
With logs until thy chimney roar again
Jolly with fire-glow ! Let its angle lack 1165
No grace of Cherry-cheeks thy sister, fain
To do a sister's office and laugh smooth
Thy corrugated brow—that scowls forsooth !

CXLVII

Wherefore ? Who does not know how these La Roques,
Voltaires, can say and unsay, praise and blame, 1170

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Prove black white, white black, play at paradox
And, when they seem to lose it, win the game?
Care not thou what this badger, and that fox,
His fellow in rascality, call "fame!"
Fiddlepin's end! Thou hadst it,—quack, quack, quack!
Have quietude from geese at Bergerac!

1175

CXLVIII

Quietude! For, be very sure of this!
A twelvemonth hence, and men shall know or care
As much for what to-day they clap or hiss
As for the fashion of the wigs they wear, Then wonder at. There 's fame which, bale or bliss,—
Got by no gracious word of great Voltaire
Or not-so-great La Roque,—is taken back
By neither, any more than Bergerac!

1180

CXLIX

Too true! or rather, true as ought to be!
No more of Paul the man, Malcrais the maid,
Thenceforth for ever! One or two, I see,
Stuck by their poet: who the longest stayed Was Jean-Baptiste Rousseau, and even he Seemingly saddened as perforce he paid
A rhyming tribute "After death, survive—
He hoped he should; and died while yet alive!"

1185

1190

CL

No, he hoped nothing of the kind, or held
His peace and died in silent good old age.
Him it was, curiosity impelled
To seek if there were extant still some page

1195

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

Of his great predecessor, rat who belled
The cat once, and would never deign engage In after-combat with mere mice,—saved from More sonnetteering,—René Gentilhomme. 1200

CLI

Paul's story furnished forth that famous play
Of Piron's "Métromanie": there you'll find
He's Francaleu, while Demoiselle Malcrais
Is Demoiselle No-end-of-names-behind!
As for Voltaire, he's Damis. Good and gay 1205
The plot and dialogue, and all's designed To spite Voltaire: at "Something" such the laugh
Of simply "Nothing!" (see his epitaph).

CLII

But truth, truth, that's the gold! and all the good
I find in fancy is, it serves to set 1210
Gold's inmost glint free, gold which comes up rude
And rayless from the mine. All fume and fret
Of artistry beyond this point pursued Brings another sort of burnish: yet
Always the ingot has its very own 1215
Value, a sparkle struck from truth alone.

CLIII

Now, take this sparkle and the other spirt
Of fitful flame,—twin births of our grey brand
That's sinking fast to ashes! I assert,
As sparkles want but fuel to expand 1220
Into a conflagration no mere squirt
Will quench too quickly, so might Croisic strand,
Had Fortune pleased posterity to chowse,
Boast of her brace of beacons luminous.

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

CLIV

Did earlier Agamemnons lack their bard ? 1225
But later bards lacked Agamemnon too !
How often frustrate they of fame's award
Just because Fortune, as she listed, blew
Some slight bark's sails to belling, mauled and marred
And forced to put about the First-rate ! True, 1230
Such tacks but for a time : still—small-craft ride
At anchor, rot while Beddoes breasts the tide !

CLV

Dear, shall I tell you ? There 's a simple test Would serve, when people take on them to weigh
The worth of poets, " Who was better, best, 1235
This, that, the other bard ? " (bards none gain-
say
As good, observe ! no matter for the rest)
" What quality preponderating may Turn the scale as it trembles ? " End the strife
By asking " Which one led a happy life ? " 1240

CLVI

If one did, over his antagonist
That yelled or shrieked or sobbed or wept or wailed
Or simply had the dumps,—dispute who list,—
I count him victor. Where his fellow failed,
Mastered by his own means of might,—acquist 124.
Of necessary sorrows,—he prevailed,
A strong since joyful man who stood distinct Above slave-sorrows to his chariot linked.

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

CLVII

Was not his lot to feel more? What meant "feel"

Unless to suffer! Not, to see more? Sight— 1250
What helped it but to watch the drunken reel
Of vice and folly round him, left and right,
One dance of rogues and idiots! Not, to deal More with things lovely? What provoked the spite
Of filth incarnate, like the poet's need 1255
Of other nutriment than strife and greed!

CLVIII

Who knows most, doubts most; entertaining hope,
Means recognizing fear; the keener sense
Of all comprised within our actual scope
Recoils from aught beyond earth's dim and dense. 1260
Who, grown familiar with the sky, will grope Henceforward among groundlings? That's offence
Just as indubitably: stars abound O'erhead, but then—what flowers make glad the ground!

CLIX

So, force is sorrow, and each sorrow, force: 1265
What then? since Swiftness gives the charioteer
The palm, his hope be in the vivid horse Whose neck God clothed with thunder, not the steer
Sluggish and safe! Yoke Hatred, Crime, Remorse, Despair: but ever mid the whirling fear, 1270
Let, through the tumult, break the poet's face
Radiant, assured his wild slaves win the race!

THE TWO POETS OF CROISIC

CLX

Therefore I say . . . no, shall not say, but think,
And save my breath for better purpose. White
From grey our log has burned to : just one blink 1275
That quivers, loth to leave it, as a sprite
The outworn body. Ere your eyelids' wink
Punish who sealed so deep into the night
Your mouth up, for two poets dead so long,—
Here pleads a live pretender : right your wrong ! 1280

I

WHAT a pretty tale you told me
Once upon a time
—Said you found it somewhere (scold me !)
Was it prose or was it rhyme,
Greek or Latin ? Greek, you said, 5
While your shoulder propped my head.

II

Anyhow there 's no forgetting
This much if no more,
That a poet (pray, no petting !)
Yes, a bard, sir, famed of yore, 10
Went where suchlike used to go,
Singing for a prize, you know.

III

Well, he had to sing, nor merely Sing but play the lyre ;
Playing was important clearly 15
Quite as singing : I desire,
Sir, you keep the fact in mind
For a purpose that 's behind.

EPILOGUE

IV

There stood he, while deep attention
Held the judges round, 20
—Judges able, I should mention,
To detect the slightest sound
Sung or played amiss : such ears
Had old judges, it appears !

V

None the less he sang out boldly, 25
Played in time and tune,
Till the judges, weighing coldly
Each note's worth, seemed, late or soon,
Sure to smile " In vain one tries Picking faults out : take the prize ! " 30

VI

When, a mischief ! Were they seven Strings the lyre possessed ?
Oh, and afterwards eleven,
Thank you ! Well, sir,—who had guessed
Such ill luck in store ?—it happed 35
One of those same seven strings snapped.

VII

All was lost, then ! No ! a cricket
(What, " cicada " ? Pooh !)
—Some mad thing that left its thicket
For mere love of music—flew 40
With its little heart on fire,
Lighted on the crippled lyre.

VIII

So that when (ah joy !) our singer
For his truant string

EPILOGUE

Feels with disconcerted finger, 45
What does cricket else but fling
Fiery heart forth, sound the note
Wanted by the throbbing throat?

IX

Ay and, ever to the ending,
Cricket chirps at need, 50
Executes the hand's intending,
Promptly, perfectly,—indeed
Saves the singer from defeat
With her chirrup low and sweet.

X

Till, at ending, all the judges 55
Cry with one assent
“Take the prize—a prize who grudges
Such a voice and instrument?
Why, we took your lyre for harp,
So it shrilled us forth F sharp!” 60

XI

Did the conqueror spurn the creature,
Once its service done?
That 's no such uncommon feature
In the case when Music's son
Finds his Lotte's power too spent 65
For aiding soul-development.

XII

No! This other, on returning Homeward, prize in hand,
Satisfied his bosom's yearning :
(Sir, I hope you understand!) 70
—Said “Some record there must be
Of this cricket's help to me !”

EPILOGUE

XIII

So, he made himself a statue :
Marble stood, life-size ;
On the lyre, he pointed at you, 75
Perched his partner in the prize ;
Never more apart you found
Her, he throned, from him, she crowned.

XIV

That 's the tale : its application ?
Somebody I know 80
Hopes one day for reputation
Through his poetry that 's—Oh,
All so learned and so wise
And deserving of a prize !

XV

If he gains one, will some ticket, 85
When his statue 's built,
Tell the gazer "'T was a cricket
Helped my crippled lyre, whose lilt
Sweet and low, when strength usurped
Softness' place i' the scale, she chirped ? 90

XVI

" For as victory was highest,
While I sang and played,—
With my lyre at lowest, highest,
Right alike,—one string that made
' Love ' sound soft was snapt in twain, 95
Never to be heard again,—

XVII

" Had not a kind cricket fluttered,
Perched upon the place

Vacant left, and duly uttered
 ‘Love, Love, Love,’ whene’er the bass 100
Asked the treble to atone
For its somewhat sombre drone.”

XVIII

But you don’t know music ! Wherefore
 Keep on casting pearls
To a—poet ? All I care for
 Is—to tell him that a girl’s
“Love” comes aptly in when gruff 105
Grows his singing. (There, enough !)

DRAMATIC IDYLS

1879

MARTIN RELPH

*My grandfather says he remembers he saw, when a youngster long ago,
On a bright May day, a strange old man, with a beard as white as snow,
Stand on the hill outside our town like a monument
of woe,
And, striking his bare bald head the while, sob out the reason—so !*

If I last as long as Methuselah I shall never forgive myself :

But—God forgive me, that I pray, unhappy
Martin Relph,

As coward, coward I call him—him, yes, him !
Away from me !

Get you behind the man I am now, you man that I used to be !

What can have sewed my mouth up, set me a-stare,
all eyes, no tongue ?

People have urged "You visit a scare too hard on a lad so young !

You were taken aback, poor boy," they urge,
"no time to regain your wits :

Besides it had maybe cost you life." Ay, there is the cap which fits !

DRAMATIC IDYLS

So, cap me, the coward,—thus! No fear! A cuff on the brow does good :
The feel of it hinders a worm inside which bores
at the brain for food.
See now, there certainly seems excuse : for a moment, I trust, dear friends, 15
The fault was but folly, no fault of mine, or if mine,
I have made amends !

For, every day that is first of May, on the hill-top,
here stand I,
Martin Relph, and I strike my brow, and publish the reason why,
When there gathers a crowd to mock the fool.
No fool, friends, since the bite
Of a worm inside is worse to bear : pray God I have baulked him quite ! 20

I 'll tell you. Certainly much excuse ! It came of the way they cooped Us peasantry up in a ring just here, close huddling
because tight-hooped
By the red-coats round us villagers all : they meant we should see the sight
And take the example,—see, not speak, for speech was the Captain's right.

“ You clowns on the slope, beware ! ” cried he :
“ This woman about to die 25
Gives by her fate fair warning to such acquaintance as play the spy.
Henceforth who meddle with matters of state above them perhaps will learn That peasants should stick to their plough-tail, leave to the King the King's concern.

MARTIN RELPH

“Here 's a quarrel that sets the land on fire, between King George and his foes :
What call has a man of your kind—much less, a woman—to interpose? 30
Yet you needs must be meddling, folk like you,
not foes—so much the worse!
The many and loyal should keep themselves unmixed with the few perverse.

“Is the counsel hard to follow? I gave it you plainly a month ago,
And where was the good? The rebels have learned just all that they need to know.
Not a month since in we quietly marched : a week,
and they had the news, 35
From a list complete of our rank and file to a note of our caps and shoes.

“All about all we did and all we were doing and like to do!
Only, I catch a letter by luck, and capture who wrote it, too.
Some of you men look black enough, but the milk-white face demure Betokens the finger foul with ink : 't is a woman who writes, be sure ! 40

“Is it ‘Dearie, how much I miss your mouth!’— good natural stuff, she pens?
Some sprinkle of that, for a blind, of course : with talk about cocks and hens,
How ‘robin has built on the apple-tree, and our creeper which came to grief
Through the frost, we feared, is twining afresh round casement in famous leaf.’

DRAMATIC IDYLS

“ But all for a blind ! She soon glides frank into ‘ Horrid the place is grown 45
With Officers here and Privates there, no nook
we may call our own :
And Farmer Giles has a tribe to house, and lodging will be to seek For the second Company sure to come (’t is whispered) on Monday week.’

“ And so to the end of the chapter ! There !
The murder, you see, was out :
Easy to guess how the change of mind in the rebels was brought about ! 50 Safe in the trap would they now lie snug, had treachery made no sign :
But treachery meets a just reward, no matter if fools malign !

“ That traitors had played us false, was proved—sent news which fell so pat :
And the murder was out—this letter of love, the sender of this sent that !
’T is an ugly job, though, all the same—a hateful,
to have to deal 55
With a case of the kind, when a woman ’s in fault :
we soldiers need nerves of steel !

“ So, I gave her a chance, despatched post-haste
a message to Vincent Parkes Whom she wrote to ; easy to find he was, since one of the King’s own clerks, Ay, kept by the King’s own gold in the town close by where the rebels camp :
A sort of a lawyer, just the man to betray our sort—the scamp ! 60

MARTIN RELPH

“ ‘If her writing is simple and honest and only the lover-like stuff it looks,
And if you yourself are a loyalist, nor down in the rebels’ books,
Come quick,’ said I, ‘and in person prove you are each of you clear of crime,
Or martial law must take its course : this day next week ’s the time !’

“ Next week is now : does he come ? Not he !
Clean gone, our clerk, in a trice ! 65
He has left his sweetheart here in the lurch : no need of a warning twice !
His own neck free, but his partner’s fast in the noose still, here she stands
To pay for her fault. ’T is an ugly job : but soldiers obey commands.

“ And hearken wherefore I make a speech !
Should any acquaintance share
The folly that led to the fault that is now to be 70 punished, let fools beware !
Look black, if you please, but keep hands white :
and, above all else, keep wives—
Or sweethearts or what they may be—from ink !
Not a word now, on your lives !”

Black ? but the Pit’s own pitch was white to the Captain’s face—the brute
With the bloated cheeks and the bulgy nose and the bloodshot eyes to suit !
He was muddled with wine, they say : more like,
he was out of his wits with fear ; 75
He had but a handful of men, that ’s true,—a riot might cost him dear.

DRAMATIC IDYLS

And all that time stood Rosamund Page, with pinioned arms and face Bandaged about, on the turf marked out for the party's firing-place.

I hope she was wholly with God : I hope 't was
His angel stretched a hand
To steady her so, like the shape of stone you see in our church-aisle stand.

80

I hope there was no vain fancy pierced the bandage
to vex her eyes,
No face within which she missed without, no questions and no replies—“Why did you leave me to die?”—“Because . . .”
Oh, fiends, too soon you grin
At merely a moment of hell, like that—such heaven as hell ended in !

Let mine end too ! He gave the word, up went the guns in a line.
Those heaped on the hill were blind as dumb,— for, of all eyes, only mine
Looked over the heads of the foremost rank.
Some fell on their knees in prayer,
Some sank to the earth, but all shut eyes, with a sole exception there.

85

That was myself, who had stolen up last, had sidled behind the group :
I am highest of all on the hill-top, there stand fixed while the others stoop !
From head to foot in a serpent's twine am I tightened : / touch ground ?
No more than a gibbet's rigid corpse which the fettters rust around !

90

MARTIN RELPH

Can I speak, can I breathe, can I burst—ought else but see, see, only see?
And see I do—for there comes in sight—a man,
it sure must be!—
Who staggeringly, stumbingly rises, falls, rises,
at random flings his weight 95
On and on, anyhow onward—a man that 's mad
he arrives too late!

Else why does he wave a something white high-flourished above his head?
Why does not he call, cry,—curse the fool!—why throw up his arms instead?
O take this fist in your own face, fool! Why does not yourself shout “Stay!
Here 's a man comes rushing, might and main,
with something he 's mad to say”? 100

And a minute, only a moment, to have hell-fire
boil up in your brain,
And ere you can judge things right, choose heaven,—time 's over, repentance vain!
They level : a volley, a smoke and the clearing of smoke : I see no more Of the man smoke hid, nor his frantic arms, nor the something white he bore.

But stretched on the field, some half-mile off, is an object. Surely dumb, 105 Deaf, blind were we struck, that nobody heard,
not one of us saw him come!
Has he fainted through fright? One may well believe! What is it he holds so fast?
Turn him over, examine the face! Heyday!
What, Vincent Parkes at last?

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Dead ! dead as she, by the self-same shot : one bullet has ended both,
Her in the body and him in the soul. They laugh at our plighted troth. 110 “Till death us do part ?” Till death us do join past parting—that sounds like Betrothal indeed ! O Vincent Parkes, what need has my fist to strike ?

I helped you : thus were you dead and wed : one bound, and your soul reached hers !
There is clenched in your hand the thing, signed,
sealed, the paper which plain avers
She is innocent, innocent, plain as print, with the King's Arms broad engraved : 115
No one can hear, but if anyone high on the hill
can see, she 's saved !

And torn his garb and bloody his lips with heartbreak—plain it grew How the week's delay had been brought about :
each guess at the end proved true.
It was hard to get at the folk in power : such waste of time ! and then Such pleading and praying, with, all the while,
his lamb in the lions' den ! 120

And at length when he wrung their pardon out,
no end to the stupid forms—
The licence and leave : I make no doubt—what wonder if passion warms
The pulse in a man if you play with his heart ?—
he was something hasty in speech ;
Anyhow, none would quicken the work : he had to beseech, beseech !

MARTIN RELPH

And the thing once signed, sealed, safe in his grasp,—what followed but fresh delays? 127
For the floods were out, he was forced to take such a roundabout of ways!
And 't was "Halt there!" at every turn of the road, since he had to cross the thick
Of the red-coats: what did they care for him and his "Quick, for God's sake, quick!"

Horse? but he had one: had it how long? till the first knave smirked "You brag Yourself a friend of the King's? then lend to a King's friend here your nag!" 130 Money to buy another? Why, piece by piece they plundered him still,
With their "Wait you must,—no help: if aught can help you, a guinea will!"

And a borough there was—I forget the name—whose Mayor must have the bench
Of Justices ranged to clear a doubt: for "Vincent," thinks he, sounds French!
It well may have driven him daft, God knows!
all man can certainly know 135
Is—rushing and falling and rising, at last he arrived in a horror—so!

When a word, cry, gasp, would have rescued both!
Ay bite me! The worm begins
At his work once more. Had cowardice proved —that only—my sin of sins!
Friends, look you here! Suppose . . . suppose . . . But mad I am, needs must be!
Judas the Damned would never have dared such a sin as I dream! For, see! 140

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Suppose I had sneakingly loved her myself, my wretched self, and dreamed In the heart of me "She were better dead than happy and his!"—while gleamed
A light from hell as I spied the pair in a perfectest embrace,
He the saviour and she the saved,—bliss born of the very murder-place!

No! Say I was scared, friends! Call me fool and coward, but nothing worse! 145 Jeer at the fool and gibe at the coward! 'T was ever the coward's curse
That fear breeds fancies in such : such take their shadow for substance still,
—A fiend at their back. I liked poor Parkes,— loved Vincent, if you will!

And her—why, I said "Good morrow" to her,
"Good even," and nothing more :
The neighbourly way! She was just to me as fifty had been before. 150
So, coward it is and coward shall be! There 's a friend, now! Thanks! A drink
Of water I wanted : and now I can walk, get home by myself, I think.

equal in praise

—Ay, with Zeus the Defender, with Her of the ægis and spear!

Also, ye of the bow and the buskin, praised be your peer,

Now, henceforth and forever,—O latest to whom I upraise

Hand and heart and voice! For Athens, leave pasture and flock!

Present to help, potent to save, Pan—patron I
call!

Archons of Athens, topped by the tettix, see, I return!

See, 't is myself here standing alive, no spectre that speaks!

Crowned with the myrtle, did you command me,
Athens and you,

“Run Pheidippides, run and race, reach Sparta for aid!

Persia has come, we are here, where is She?”
Your command I obeyed,

Ran and raced: like stubble, some field which a fire runs through,

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Was the space between city and city : two days,
two nights did I burn
Over the hills, under the dales, down pits and up peaks. 15

Into their midst I broke : breath served but for " Persia has come !
Persia bids Athens proffer slaves'-tribute, water
and earth ;
Razed to the ground is Eretria—but Athens, shall Athens sink,
Drop into dust and die—the flower of Hellas utterly die, 20
Die, with the wide world spitting at Sparta, the stupid, the stander-by ?
Answer me quick, what help, what hand do you stretch o'er destruction's brink ?
How,—when ? No care for my limbs !—there 's lightning in all and some—Fresh and fit your message to bear, once lips give it birth ! "

O my Athens—Sparta love thee ? Did Sparta respond ? 25
Every face of her leered in a furrow of envy, mistrust, Malice,—each eye of her gave me its glitter of gratified hate !
Gravely they turned to take counsel, to cast for excuses. I stood Quivering,—the limbs of me fretting as fire frets,
an inch from dry wood :
" Persia has come, Athens asks aid, and still they debate ? 30
Thunder, thou Zeus ! Athene, are Spartans a quarry beyond
Swing of thy spear ? Phoibos and Artemis, clang them ' Ye must ' ! "

PHEIDIPPIDES

No bolt launched from Olumpos! Lo, their answer at last!

“Has Persia come,—does Athens ask aid,—may Sparta befriend?

Nowise precipitate judgment—too weighty the issue at stake!

35

Count we no time lost time which lags through respect to the Gods!

Ponder that precept of old, ‘No warfare, whatever the odds

In your favour, so long as the moon, half-orbed, is unable to take

Full-circle her state in the sky!’ Already she rounds to it fast:

Athens must wait, patient as we—who judgment suspend.”

40

Athens,—except for that sparkle,—thy name, I had mouldered to ash!

That sent a blaze through my blood; off, off and away was I back,

—Not one word to waste, one look to lose on the false and the vile!

Yet “O Gods of my land!” I cried, as each hillock and plain,

Wood and stream, I knew, I named, rushing past them again,

45

“Have ye kept faith, proved mindful of honours
we paid you erewhile?

Vain was the filleted victim, the fulsome libation!
Too rash

Love in its choice, paid you so largely service so slack!

“Oak and olive and bay,—I bid you cease to enwreathe

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Brows made bold by your leaf! Fade at the Persian's foot, 50
You that, our patrons were pledged, should never adorn a slave!
Rather I hail thee, Parnes,—trust to thy wild waste tract!
Treeless, herbless, lifeless mountain! What matter if slacked
My speed may hardly be, for homage to crag
and to cave
No deity deigns to drape with verdure? at least
I can breathe, 55
Fear in thee no fraud from the blind, no lie from the mute!"

Such my cry as, rapid, I ran over Parnes' ridge;
Gully and gap I clambered and cleared till, sudden,
a bar
Jutted, a stoppage of stone against me, blocking
the way.
Right! for I minded the hollow to traverse, the fissure across: 60
"Where I could enter, there I depart by! Night in the fosse?
Athens to aid? Though the dive were through Erebos, thus I obey—
Out of the day dive, into the day as bravely arise!
No bridge Better!"—when—ha! what was it I came on, of wonders that are?

There, in the cool of a cleft, sat he—majestical Pan! 65
Ivy drooped wanton, kissed his head, moss
cushioned his hoof:
All the great God was good in the eyes grave-kindly—the curl

PHEIDIPPIDES

Carved on the bearded cheek, amused at a mortal's awe,

As, under the human trunk, the goat-thighs
grand I saw.

"Halt, Pheidippides!"—halt I did, my brain of a whirl:

"Hither to me! Why pale in my presence?"⁷⁰
he gracious began:

"How is it,—Athens, only in Hellas, holds me
aloof?

"Athens, she only, rears me no fane, makes me
no feast!

Wherefore? Than I what godship to Athens more helpful of old?

Ay, and still, and forever her friend! Test Pan, trust me!

Go, bid Athens take heart, laugh Persia to scorn,
have faith

In the temples and tombs! Go, say to Athens,
'The Goat-God saith:

When Persia—so much as strews not the soil—
is cast in the sea,

Then praise Pan who fought in the ranks with your most and least,

Goat-thigh to greaved-thigh, made one cause with the free and the bold!' "⁸⁰

"Say Pan saith: 'Let this, foreshowing the place, be the pledge!'"

(Gay, the liberal hand held out this herbage I bear
—Fennel—I grasped it a-tremble with dew—whatever it bode)

"While, as for thee..." But enough! He was gone. If I ran hitherto—

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Be sure that, the rest of my journey, I ran no longer, but flew. 85
Parnes to Athens—earth no more, the air was my road :
Here am I back. Praise Pan, we stand no more on the razor's edge !
Pan for Athens, Pan for me ! I too have a guerdon rare !

Then spoke Miltiades. “ And thee, best runner of Greece, Whose limbs did duty indeed,—what gift is promised thyself? 90
Tell it us straightway,—Athens the mother demands of her son ! ”
Rosily blushed the youth : he paused : but, lifting at length
His eyes from the ground, it seemed as he gathered the rest of his strength Into the utterance—“ Pan spoke thus : ‘ For what thou hast done Count on a worthy reward ! Henceforth be allowed thee release 95
From the racer's toil, no vulgar reward in praise or in pelf ! ’ ”

“ I am bold to believe, Pan means reward the most to my mind !
Fight I shall, with our foremost, wherever this fennel may grow,— Pound—Pan helping us—Persia to dust, and,
under the deep,
Whelm her away for ever ; and then,—no Athens to save,—

PHEIDIPPIDES

Marry a certain maid, I know keeps faith to the brave,—
Hie to my house and home : and, when my children shall creep Close to my knees,—recount how the God was awful yet kind,
Promised their sire reward to the full—rewarding him—so !”

Unforeseeing one ! Yes, he fought on the Marathon day : 105
So, when Persia was dust, all cried “ To Akropolis !
Run, Pheidippides, one race more ! the meed is thy due !
‘ Athens is saved, thank Pan,’ go shout !” He flung down his shield,
Ran like fire once more : and the space ’twixt the Fennel-field
And Athens was stubble again, a field which a fire runs through, 110
Till in he broke : “ Rejoice, we conquer !”
Like wine through clay, Joy in his blood bursting his heart, he died—the
bliss !

So, to this day, when friend meets friend, the word of salute
Is still “ Rejoice !”—his word which brought rejoicing indeed.
So is Pheidippides happy for ever,—the noble strong man 115
Who could race like a God, bear the face of a God, whom a God loved so well ;
He saw the land saved he had helped to save,
and was suffered to tell

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Such tidings, yet never decline, but, gloriously as he began,

So to end gloriously—once to shout, thereafter be mute :

“Athens is saved !”—Pheidippides dies in the shout for his deed.

HALBERT AND HOB

HERE is a thing that happened. Like wild beasts whelped, for den,
In a wild part of North England, there lived once
two wild men
Inhabiting one homestead, neither a hovel nor hut,
Time out of mind their birthright : father and son,
these—but—
Such a son, such a father! Most wildness by degrees
Softens away : yet, last of their line, the wildest and worst were these.

Criminals, then? Why, no : they did not murder and rob ;
But, give them a word, they returned a blow—
old Halbert as young Hob :
Harsh and fierce of word, rough and savage of deed, Hated or feared the more—who knows?—the genuine wild-beast breed.

Thus were they found by the few sparse folk of the country-side ;
But how fared each with other? E'en beasts
couch, hide by hide,
In a growling, grudging agreement : so, father and son aye curled
The closelier up in their den because the last of their kind in the world.

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Still, beast irks beast on occasion. One Christmas night of snow, Came father and son to words—such words!
more cruel because the blow
To crown each word was wanting, while taunt matched gibe, and curse Competed with oath in wager, like pastime in hell,—nay, worse:
For pastime turned to earnest, as up there sprang at last
The son at the throat of the father, seized him and held him fast.

“Out of this house you go!”—(there followed a hideous oath)—
“This oven where now we bake, too hot to hold us both!
If there 's snow outside, there 's coolness: out with you, bide a spell
In the drift and save the sexton the charge of a parish shell!”

Now, the old trunk was tough, was solid as stump of oak Untouched at the core by a thousand years:
much less had its seventy broke One whipcord nerve in the muscly mass from neck to shoulder-blade
Of the mountainous man, whereon his child's rash hand like a feather weighed.

Nevertheless at once did the mammoth shut his eyes,
Drop chin to breast, drop hands to sides, stand stiffened—arms and thighs

HALBERT AND HOB

All of a piece—struck mute, much as a sentry stands,
Patient to take the enemy's fire : his captain so commands.

Whereat the son's wrath flew to fury at such sheer scorn
Of his puny strength by the giant eld thus acting the babe new-born :
And "Neither will this turn serve!" yelled he.
"Out with you! Trundle, log!
If you cannot tramp and trudge like a man, try all-fours like a dog!"

Still the old man stood mute. So, logwise,— down to floor
Pulled from his fireside place, dragged on from hearth to door,—
Was he pushed, a very log, staircase along, until A certain turn in the steps was reached, a yard from the house-door-sill.

Then the father opened eyes—each spark of their rage extinct,— Temples, late black, dead-blanced,—right-hand with left-hand linked,— He faced his son submissive; when slow the accents came,
They were strangely mild though his son's rash hand on his neck lay all the same.

"Hob, on just such a night of a Christmas long ago,
For such a cause, with such a gesture, did I drag
—so—

DRAMATIC IDYLS

My father down thus far : but, softening here, I heard

A voice in my heart, and stopped : you wait for an outer word.

“For your own sake, not mine, soften you too !
Untrod

Leave this last step we reach, nor brave the finger of God !

I dared not pass its lifting : I did well. I nor blame

Nor praise you. I stopped here : and, Hob, do you the same !”

Straightway the son relaxed his hold of the father's throat.

They mounted, side by side, to the room again :
no note

Took either of each, no sign made each to either :
last

As first, in absolute silence, their Christmas-night
they passed.

At dawn, the father sate on, dead, in the self-same place,

With an outburst blackening still the old bad
fighting-face :

But the son crouched all a-tremble like any lamb
new-yeaned.

When he went to the burial, someone's staff he borrowed—tottered and leaned.

But his lips were loose, not locked,—kept muttering, mumbling. “There !

HALBERT AND HOB

At his cursing and swearing!" the youngsters cried : but the elders thought "In prayer."

A boy threw stones : he picked them up and stored them in his vest.

So tottered, muttered, mumbled he, till he died,
perhaps found rest.

"Is there a reason in nature for these hard hearts?" O Lear,

That a reason out of nature must turn them soft,
seems clear !

IVAN IVANOVITCH

"THEY tell me, your carpenters," quoth I to my friend the Russ,

"Make a simple hatchet serve as a tool-box serves with us.

Arm but each man with his axe, 't is a hammer and saw and plane

And chisel, and—what know I else? We should imitate in vain

The mastery wherewithal, by a flourish of just the adze,

He cleaves, clamps, dovetails in,—no need of our nails and brads,—

The manageable pine: 't is said he could shave himself

With the axe,—so all adroit, now a giant and now an elf,

Does he work and play at once!"

Quoth my friend the Russ to me,
"Ay, that and more beside on occasion! It scarce may be

You never heard tell a tale told children, time out of mind,

By father and mother and nurse, for a moral that's behind,

Which children quickly seize. If the incident happened at all,

We place it in Peter's time when hearts were great not small,

IVAN IVANOVITCH

Germanized, Frenchified. I wager 't is old to
you 15
As the story of Adam and Eve, and possibly quite as true."

In the deep of our land, 't is said, a village from out the woods Emerged on the great main-road 'twixt two great solitudes.
Through forestry right and left, black verst and verst of pine,
From village to village runs the road's long wide bare line. 20
Clearance and clearance break the else-unconquered growth
Of pine and all that breeds and broods there, leaving loth
Man's inch of masterdom,—spot of life, spirt of fire,—
To star the dark and dread, lest right and rule expire
Throughout the monstrous wild, a-hungered to resume 25
Its ancient sway, suck back the world into its womb :
Defrauded by man's craft which clove from North to South
This highway broad and straight e'en from the Neva's mouth
To Moscow's gates of gold. So, spot of life and spirt
Of fire aforesaid, burn, each village death-begirt 30
By wall and wall of pine—unprobed undreamed abyss.

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Early one winter morn, in such a village as this,
Snow-whitened everywhere except the middle road Ice-roughed by track of sledge, there worked by his abode

Ivàn Ivànovitch, the carpenter, employed 35
On a huge shipmast trunk ; his axe now trimmed and toyed

With branch and twig, and now some chop athwart the bole
Changed bole to billets, bared at once the sap and soul.

About him, watched the work his neighbours
sheepskin-clad ;

Each bearded mouth puffed steam, each grey eye
twinkled glad 40

To see the sturdy arm which, never stopping play, Proved strong man's blood still boils, freeze winter as he may.

Sudden, a burst of bells. Out of the road, on edge Of the hamlet—horse's hoofs galloping. "How,
a sledge ?

What's here?" cried allas—in, up to the open space, 45
Workyard and market-ground, folk's common meeting-place,—

Stumbled on, till he fell, in one last bound for life,
A horse : and, at his heels, a sledge held—
"Dmìtri's wife !

Back without Dmìtri too ! and children—where are they ?

Only a frozen corpse ! "

They drew it forth : then—"Nay, 50
Not dead, though like to die ! Gone hence a month ago :

Home again, this rough jaunt—alone through night and snow—

IVÀN IVÀNOVITCH

What can the cause be? Hark—Droug, old horse, how he groans :
His day 's done ! Chafe away, keep chafing, for she moans :
She 's coming to ! Give here : see, motherkin, your friends ! 55
Cheer up, all safe at home ! Warm inside makes amends
For outside cold,—sup quick ! Don't look as we were bears !
What is it startles you ? What strange adventure stares
Up at us in your face ? You know friends—which is which ?
I 'm Vàssili, he 's Sergeì, Ivàn Ivànovitch . . ." 60

At the word, the woman's eyes, slow-wandering till they neared
The blue eyes o'er the bush of honey-coloured beard,
Took in full light and sense and—torn to rags,
some dream
Which hid the naked truth—O loud and long the scream
She gave, as if all power of voice within her throat 65
Poured itself wild away to waste in one dread note !
Then followed gasps and sobs, and then the steady flow
Of kindly tears : the brain was saved, a man might know.
Down fell her face upon the good friend's propping knee ;
His broad hands smoothed her head, as fain to brush it free 70
From fancies, swarms that stung like bees un-hived. He soothed—

DRAMATIC IDYLS

“Loukèria, Louëscha!”—still he, fondling, smoothed and smoothed.

At last her lips formed speech.

“Ivàn, dear—you indeed !
You, just the same dear you! While I . . . O intercede,
Sweet Mother, with thy Son Almighty—let his might 75
Bring yesterday once more, undo all done last night !
But this time yesterday, Ivàn, I sat like you,
A child on either knee, and, dearer than the two,
A babe inside my arms, close to my heart—that 's lost
In morsels o'er the snow! Father, Son, Holy Ghost, 80
Cannot you bring again my blessed yesterday ?”

When no more tears would flow, she told her tale : this way.

“ Maybe, a month ago,—was it not?—news came here,
They wanted, deeper down, good workmen fit to rear
A church and roof it in. ‘We 'll go,’ my husband said : 85
‘None understands like me to melt and mould their lead.’
So, friends here helped us off—Ivàn, dear, you
the first !
How gay we jingled forth, all five—(my heart will burst)—
While Dmìtri shook the reins, urged Droug upon his track !

IVÀN IVÀNOVITCH

“Well, soon the month ran out, we just were coming back,
When yesterday—behold, the village was on fire! 90 Fire ran from house to house. What help, as,
nigh and nigher,
The flames came furious? ‘Haste,’ cried Dmìtri, ‘men must do
The little good man may: to sledge and in with
you,
You and our three! We check the fire by laying flat
Each building in its path,—I needs must stay for 95 that,—
But you . . . no time for talk! Wrap round
you every rug,
Cover the couple close,—you ’ll have the babe to hug.
No care to guide old Droug, he knows his way,
by guess,
Once start him on the road: but chirrup, none
the less! 100
The snow lies glib as glass and hard as steel,
and soon
You ’ll have rise, fine and full, a marvel of a moon.
Hold straight up, all the same, this lighted twist
of pitch!
Once home and with our friend Ivàn Ivànovitch,
All ’s safe: I have my pay in pouch, all ’s right with me, 105
So I but find as safe you and our precious three!
Off, Droug!’—because the flames had reached us, and the men
Shouted ‘But lend a hand, Dmìtri—as good as ten!’

DRAMATIC IDYLS

"So, in we bundled—I, and those God gave me
once ;
Old Droug, that 's stiff at first, seemed youthful for the nonce : 110
He understood the case, galloping straight ahead.
Out came the moon : my twist soon dwindled,
feebly red
In that unnatural day—yes, daylight, bred between Moon-light and snow-light, lamped those grottodepths which screen Such devils from God's eye. Ah, pines, how straight you grow 115
Nor bend one pitying branch, true breed of brutal snow !
Some undergrowth had served to keep the devils blind
While we escaped outside their border !

"Was that—wind ?
Anyhow, Droug starts, stops, back go his ears,
he snuffs,
Snorts,—never such a snort ! then plunges, knows the sough 's 120
Only the wind : yet, no—our breath goes up too straight !
Still the low sound,—less low, loud, louder, at a rate
There 's no mistaking more ! Shall I lean out—look—learn
The truth whatever it be ? Pad, pad ! At last,
I turn—

"'T is the regular pad of the wolves in pursuit of the life in the sledge ! 125
An army they are : close-packed they press like the thrust of a wedge :

IVÀN IVÀNOVITCH

They increase as they hunt : for I see, through the pine-trunks ranged each side, Slip forth new fiend and fiend, make wider and still more wide
The four-footed steady advance. The foremost —none may pass :
They are elders and lead the line, eye and eye—
green-glowing brass ! 130
But a long way distant still. Droug, save us !
He does his best :
Yet they gain on us, gain, till they reach,—one reaches . . . How utter the rest ?
O that Satan-faced first of the band ! How he lolls out the length of his tongue,
How he laughs and lets gleam his white teeth !
He is on me, his paws pry among The wraps and the rugs ! O my pair, my twin-pigeons, lie still and seem dead ! 135 Stepàn, he shall never have you for a meal,— here 's your mother instead !
No, he will not be counselled—must cry, poor
Stiòpka, so foolish ! though first
Of my boy-brood, he was not the best : nay, neighbours have called him the worst :
He was puny, an undersized slip,—a darling to me, all the same !
But little there was to be praised in the boy, and a plenty to blame. 140
I loved him with heart and soul, yes—but, deal
him a blow for a fault,
He would sulk for whole days. ' Foolish boy !
lie still or the villain will vault,
Will snatch you from over my head ! ' No use !
he cries, screams,—who can hold Fast a boy in a frenzy of fear ! It follows—as I foretold !

DRAMATIC IDYLS

The Satan-face snatched and snapped : I tugged,
I tore—and then 145
His brother too needs must shriek ! If one must go, 't is men
The Tsar needs, so we hear, not ailing boys !
Perhaps
My hands relaxed their grasp, got tangled in the wraps :
God, he was gone ! I looked : there tumbled the cursed crew,
Each fighting for a share : too busy to pursue ! 150
That 's so far gain at least : Droug, gallop another verst
Or two, or three—God sends we beat them, arrive
the first !
A mother who boasts two boys was ever accounted rich :
Some have not a boy : some have, but lose him,
—God knows which
Is worse : how pitiful to see your weakling pine 155
And pale and pass away ! Strong brats, this pair of mine !

“ O misery ! for while I settle to what near seems Content, I am 'ware again of the tramp, and again there gleams—
Point and point—the line, eyes, levelled green brassy fire !
So soon is resumed your chase ? Will nothing appease, nought tire 160
The furies ? And yet I think—I am certain the race is slack,
And the numbers are nothing like. Not a quarter of the pack !
Feasters and those full-fed are staying behind . . .
Ah why ?

IVAN IVANOVITCH

We 'll sorrow for that too soon! Now,—gallop, reach home; and die,
Nor ever again leave house, to trust our life in the trap 165
For life—we call a sledge! Teriòscha, in my lap!
Yes, I 'll lie down upon you, tight-tie you with the strings
Here—of my heart! No fear, this time, your mother flings . . .
Flings? I flung? Never! But think!—a woman, after all, Contending with a wolf! Save you I must and shall, 170
Terentiù!
“How now? What, you still head the race,
Your eyes and tongue and teeth crave fresh food,
Satan-face?
There and there! Plain I struck green fire out!
Flash again?
All a poor fist can do to damage eyes proves vain!
My fist—why not crunch that? He is wanton for . . . O God, 175
Why give this wolf his taste? Common wolves scrape and prod
The earth till out they scratch some corpse—mere putrid flesh!
Why must this glutton leave the faded, choose the fresh?
Terentiù—God, feel!—his neck keeps fast thy bag
Of holy things, saints' bones, this Satan-face will drag 180
Forth, and devour along with him, our Pope declared
The relics were to save from danger!

“Spurned, not spared!

DRAMATIC IDYLS

'T was through my arms, crossed arms, he—nuzzling now with snout,

Now ripping, tooth and claw—plucked, pulled Terentii out,

A prize indeed! I saw—how could I else but see?—

185

My precious one—I bit to hold back—pulled from me!

Up came the others, fell to dancing—did the imps!—

Skipped as they scampered round. There's one is grey, and limps:

Who knows but old bad Mårpha,—she always owed me spite

And envied me my births,—skulks out of doors at night

190

And turns into a wolf, and joins the sisterhood, And laps the youthful life, then slinks from out the wood,

Squats down at door by dawn, spins there demure as erst

—No strength, old crone,—not she!—to crawl forth half a verst!

“Well, I escaped with one: 'twixt one and none there lies

195

The space 'twixt heaven and hell. And see, a rose-light dyes

The endmost snow: 't is dawn, 't is day, 't is safe at home!

We have outwitted you! Ay, monsters, snarl and foam,

Fight each the other fiend, disputing for a share,—

Forgetful, in your greed, our finest off we bear,

200

Tough Droug and I,—my babe, my boy that shall be man,

IVAN IVANOVITCH

My man that shall be more, do all a hunter can
To trace and follow and find and catch and crucify Wolves, wolfkins, all your crew! A thousand deaths shall die

The whimperingest cub that ever squeezed the teat!

205

'Take that!' we 'll stab you with,—'the tenderness we met

When, wretches, you danced round—not this, thank God—not this!

Hellhounds, we baulk you!'

"But—Ah, God above!—Bliss, bliss—
Not the band, no! And yet—yes, for Droug knows him! One—

This only of them all has said 'She saves a son!' 210
His fellows disbelieve such luck: but he believes,
He lets them pick the bones, laugh at him in their sleeves:

He 's off and after us,—one speck, one spot, one ball

Grows bigger, bound on bound,—one wolf as good as all!

Oh but I know the trick! Have at the snaky tongue!

215

That 's the right way with wolves! Go, tell your mates I wrung

The panting morsel out, left you to howl your worst!

Now for it—now! Ah me! I know him—thriceaccurst

Satan-face,—him to the end my foe!

"All fight 's in vain:
This time the green brass points pierce to my very brain.

220

DRAMATIC IDYLS

I fall—fall as I ought—quite on the babe I guard :
I overspread with flesh the whole of him. Too hard
To die this way, torn piecemeal? Move hence?

Not I—one inch!

Gnaw through me, through and through : flat
thus I lie nor flinch!

O God, the feel of the fang furrowing my shoulder!
—see!

225

It grinds—it grates the bone. O Kirill under me, Could I do more? Beside he knew wolf's way to win :

I clung, closed round like wax : yet in he wedged and in,

Past my neck, past my breasts, my heart, until
. . . how feels

The onion-bulb your knife parts, pushing through its peels,

230

Till out you scoop its clove wherein lie stalk and leaf

And bloom and seed unborn?

“That slew me : yes, in brief,
I died then, dead I lay doubtlessly till Droug stopped

Here, I suppose. I come to life, I find me propped

Thus—how or when or why,—I know not. Tell me, friends,

235

All was a dream : laugh quick and say the nightmare ends!

Soon I shall find my house : 't is over there : in proof,

Save for that chimney heaped with snow, you 'd
see the roof

Which holds my three—my two—my one—not one?

IVÀN IVÀNOVITCH

“Life’s mixed
With misery, yet we live—must live. The Satan
fixed 240
His face on mine so fast, I took its print as pitch
Takes what it cools beneath. Ivàn Ivànovitch,
’T is you unharden me, you thaw, disperse the thing!
Only keep looking kind, the horror will not cling.
Your face smooths fast away each print of Satan.
Tears 245
—What good they do! Life’s sweet, and all its after-years,
Ivàn Ivànovitch, I owe you! Yours am I!
May God reward you, dear!”

Down she sank. Solemnly
Ivàn rose, raised his axe,—for fitly, as she knelt,
Her head lay: well-apart, each side, her arms hung,—dealt 250
Lightning-swift thunder-strong one blow—no need of more!
Headless she knelt on still: that pine was sound
at core (Neighbours were used to say)—cast-iron-kernelled—which Taxed for a second stroke Ivàn Ivànovitch.

The man was scant of words as strokes. “It had to be: 255
I could no other: God it was bade ‘Act for me!’”
Then stooping, peering round—what is it now he lacks?
A proper strip of bark wherewith to wipe his axe.
Which done, he turns, goes in, closes the door behind.

DRAMATIC IDYLS

The others mute remain, watching the blood-snake wind 260
Into a hiding-place among the splinter-heaps.

At length, still mute, all move: one lifts,—from where it steeps
Redder each ruddy rag of pine,—the head: two more Take up the dripping body: then, mute still as before,
Move in a sort of march, march on till marching ends 265
Opposite to the church; where halting,—who suspends,
By its long hair, the thing, deposits in its place
The piteous head: once more the body shows no trace
Of harm done: there lies whole the Loùscha, maid and wife
And mother, loved until this latest of her life. 270
Then all sit on the bank of snow which bounds
a space
Kept free before the porch for judgment: just the place!

Presently all the souls, man, woman, child, which make
The village up, are found assembling for the sake
Of what is to be done. The very Jews are there: 275
A Gipsy troop, though bound with horses for the Fair,
Squats with the rest. Each heart with its conception seethes
And simmers, but no tongue speaks: one may say,—none breathes.

IVÀN IVÀNOVITCH

Anon from out the church totters the Pope—the priest—
Hardly alive, so old, a hundred years at least. 280
With him, the Commune's head, a hoary senior
too,
Stàrosta, that 's his style,—like Equity Judge with
you,—
Natural Jurisconsult: then, fenced about with furs, Pomeschik,—Lord of the Land, who wields—and none demurs—
A power of life and death. They stoop, survey the corpse. 285

Then, straightened on his staff, the Stàrosta—the thorpe's Sagaciousest old man—hears what you just have heard,
From Droug's first inrush, all, up to Ivàn's last
word
“God bade me act for him: I dared not disobey!”

Silence—the Pomeschik broke with “A wild wrong way 290
Of righting wrong—if wrong there were, such wrath to rouse!
Why was not law observed? What article allows Whoso may please to play the judge, and, judgment dealt,
Play executioner, as promptly as we pelt
To death, without appeal, the vermin whose sole fault 295
Has been—it dared to leave the darkness of its vault,
Intrude upon our day! Too sudden and too rash!
What was this woman's crime? Suppose the church should crash

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Down where I stand, your lord : bound are my serfs to dare

Their utmost that I 'scape : yet, if the crashing scare

300

My children,—as you are,—if sons fly, one and all,
Leave father to his fate,—poor cowards though
I call

The runaways, I pause before I claim their life Because they prized it more than mine. I would each wife

Died for her husband's sake, each son to save his sire :

305

'T is glory, I applaud—scarce duty, I require.

Ivàn Ivànovitch has done a deed that 's named Murder by law and me : who doubts, may speak unblamed ! ”

All turned to the old Pope. “ Ay, children, I am old—

How old, myself have got to know no longer.
Rolled

310

Quite round, my orb of life, from infancy to age, Seems passing back again to youth. A certain stage

At least I reach, or dream I reach, where I discern Truer truths, laws behold more lawlike than we learn

When first we set our foot to tread the course I trod

315

With man to guide my steps : who leads me now is God.

‘ Your young men shall see visions : ’ and in my youth I saw

And paid obedience to man's visionary law :

Your old men shall dream dreams : ’ and, in my age, a hand

IVAN IVANOVITCH

Conducts me through the cloud round law to where I stand³²⁰
Firm on its base,—know cause, who, before, knew effect.

“The world lies under me : and nowhere I detect
So great a gift as this—God's own—of human life.
‘Shall the dead praise thee?’ No ! ‘The whole live world is rife, God, with thy glory,’ rather ! Life then, God's best of gifts,³²⁵
For what shall man exchange ? For life—when so he shifts
The weight and turns the scale, lets life for life restore
God's balance, sacrifice the less to gain the more,
Substitute—for low life, another's or his own—
Life large and liker God's who gave it : thus alone³³⁰
May life extinguish life that life may trulier be !
How low this law descends on earth, is not for me
To trace : complexed becomes the simple, intricate
The plain, when I pursue law's winding. 'T is the straight
Outflow of law I know and name : to law, the fount³³⁵
Fresh from God's footstool, friends, follow while I remount.

“A mother bears a child : perfection is complete
So far in such a birth. Enabled to repeat
The miracle of life,—herself was born so just
A type of womankind, that God sees fit to trust³⁴⁰
Her with the holy task of giving life in turn.
Crowned by this crowning pride,—how say you,
should she spurn
Regality—discrowned, unchilded, by her choice

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Of barrenness exchanged for fruit which made rejoice

Creation, though life's self were lost in giving birth

345

To life more fresh and fit to glorify God's earth?
How say you, should the hand God trusted with life's torch

Kindled to light the world—aware of sparks that scorch,

Let fall the same? Forsooth, her flesh a fire-flake stings:

The mother drops the child! Among what monstrous things

350

Shall she be classed? Because of motherhood, each male

Yields to his partner place, sinks proudly in the scale:

His strength owned weakness, wit—folly, and courage—fear,

Beside the female proved male's mistress—only
here.

The fox-dam, hunger-pined, will slay the felon sire

355

Who dares assault her whelp: the beaver,
stretched on fire,

Will die without a groan: no pang avails to wrest
Her young from where they hide—her sanctuary
breast.

What 's here then? Answer me, thou dead one,
as, I trow,

Standing at God's own bar, he bids thee answer
now!

360

Thrice crowned wast thou—each crown of pride,
a child—thy charge!

Where are they? Lost? Enough: no need that thou enlarge

On how or why the loss: life left to utter 'lost'

IVÀN IVÀNOVITCH

Condemns itself beyond appeal. The soldier's post
Guards from the foe's attack the camp he sentinels : 361
That he no traitor proved, this and this only tells—
Over the corpse of him trod foe to foe's success.
Yet—one by one thy crowns torn from thee—thou no less To scare the world, shame God,—livedst ! I hold He saw
The unexampled sin, ordained the novel law, 370
Whereof first instrument was first intelligence Found loyal here. I hold that, failing human sense,
The very earth had oped, sky fallen, to efface
Humanity's new wrong, motherhood's first disgrace.
Earth oped not, neither fell the sky, for prompt was found 375
A man and man enough, head-sober and heart-sound,
Ready to hear God's voice, resolute to obey.
Ivàn Ivànovitch, I hold, has done, this day,
No otherwise than did, in ages long ago,
Moses when he made known the purport of that flow 380
Of fire athwart the law's twain-tables ! I proclaim Ivàn Ivànovitch God's servant ! ”

At which name
Uprose that creepy whisper from out the crowd, is wont
To swell and surge and sink when fellow-men confront

DRAMATIC IDYLS

A punishment that falls on fellow flesh and blood, ³⁸⁵
Appallingly beheld—shudderingly understood,
No less, to be the right, the just, the merciful.
“God’s servant !” hissed the crowd.

When that Amen grew dull
And died away and left acquittal plain adjudged, “Amen !” last sighed the lord. “There ’s none shall say I grudged ³⁹⁰
Escape from punishment in such a novel case.
Deferring to old age and holy life,—be grace Granted ! say I. No less, scruples might shake a sense
Firmer than I boast mine. Law ’s law, and evidence
Of breach therein lies plain,—blood-red-bright,— all may see ! ³⁹⁵
Yet all absolve the deed : absolved the deed must
be !

“And next—as mercy rules the hour—methinks
’t were well
You signify forthwith its sentence, and dispel
The doubts and fears, I judge, which busy now
the head
Law puts a halter round—a halo—you, instead ! ⁴⁰⁰
Ivàn Ivànovitch—what think you he expects Will follow from his feat? Go, tell him—law protects
Murder, for once : no need he longer keep behind
The Sacred Pictures—where skulks Innocence enshrined,
Or I missay ! Go, some ! You others, haste and hide ⁴⁰⁵
The dismal object there : get done, whate’er betide !”

IVÀN IVÀNOVITCH

So, while the youngers raised the corpse, the elders trooped.

Silently to the house : where halting, someone stooped,

Listened beside the door ; all there was silent too.
Then they held counsel ; then pushed door and,
passing through,

Stood in the murderer's presence.

410

Ivàn Ivànovitch
Knelt, building on the floor that Kremlin rare and rich

He deftly cut and carved on lazy winter nights.
Some five young faces watched, breathlessly, as,
to rights,

Piece upon piece, he reared the fabric nigh complete.

415

Stèscha, Ivàn's old mother, sat spinning by the heat

Of the oven where his wife Kàtia stood baking bread.

Ivàn's self, as he turned his honey-coloured head,
Was just in act to drop, 'twixt fir-cones,—each a dome,—

The scooped-out yellow gourd presumably the home

420

Of Kolokol the Big : the bell, therein to hitch,
—An acorn-cup—was ready : Ivàn Ivànovitch Turned with it in his mouth.

They told him he was free
As air to walk abroad. "How otherwise?" asked he.

TRAY

SING me a hero ! Quench my thirst
Of soul, ye bards !

Quoth Bard the first :
“ Sir Olaf, the good knight, did don
His helm and eke his habergeon . . . ”
Sir Olaf and his bard—— !

“ That sin-scathed brow ” (quoth Bard the second)
“ That eye wide ope as though Fate beckoned
My hero to some steep, beneath
Which precipice smiled tempting death . . . ”
You too without your host have reckoned !

“ A beggar-child ” (let 's hear the third !)
“ Sat on a quay's edge : like a bird
Sang to herself at careless play,
And fell into the stream. ‘ Dismay !
Help, you the standers-by ! ’ None stirred.

“ Bystanders reason, think of wives
And children ere they risk their lives.
Over the balustrade has bounced
A mere instinctive dog, and pounced
Plumb on the prize. ‘ How well he dives !

“ ‘ Up he comes with the child, see, tight
In mouth, alive too, clutched from quite
A depth of ten feet—twelve, I bet !
Good dog ! What, off again ? There 's yet Another child to save ? All right !

TRAY

“ ‘ How strange we saw no other fall !
It 's instinct in the animal.
Good dog ! But he 's a long while under :
If he got drowned I should not wonder—
Strong current, that against the wall !

“ ‘ Here he comes, holds in mouth this time
—What may the thing be ? Well, that 's prime !
Now, did you ever ? Reason reigns
In man alone, since all Tray's pains
Have fished—the child's doll from the slime ! ’

“ And so, amid the laughter gay,
Trotted my hero off,—old Tray,—
Till somebody, prerogated
With reason, reasoned : ‘ Why he dived,
His brain would show us, I should say.

“ ‘ John, go and catch—or, if needs be,
Purchase—that animal for me !
By vivisection, at expense
Of half-an-hour and eighteenpence,
How brain secretes dog's soul, we 'll see ! ’ ”

NED BRATTS

'T WAS Bedford Special Assize, one daft Midsummer's Day :

A broiling blasting June,—was never its like, men
say.

Corn stood sheaf-ripe already, and trees looked yellow as that ;

Ponds drained dust-dry, the cattle lay foaming around each flat.

Inside town, dogs went mad, and folk kept bibbing beer

While the parsons prayed for rain. 'T was horrible, yes—but queer :

Queer—for the sun laughed gay, yet nobody moved a hand

To work one stroke at his trade : as given to understand

That all was come to a stop, work and such worldly ways,

And the world's old self about to end in a merry blaze.

Midsummer's Day moreover was the first of Bedford Fair,

With Bedford Town's tag-rag and bobtail a-bows-
ing there.

But the Court House, Quality crammed : through doors ope, windows wide,

High on the Bench you saw sit Lordships side by side.

NED BRATTS

There frowned Chief Justice Jukes, fumed learned Brother Small, 15
And fretted their fellow Judge: like threshers, one and all,
Of a reek with laying down the law in a furnace.
Why?
Because their lungs breathed flame—the regular crowd forbye—
From gentry pouring in—quite a nosegay, to be sure!
How else could they pass the time, six mortal hours
endure 20
Till night should extinguish day, when matters might haply mend?
Meanwhile no bad resource was—watching begin and end
Some trial for life and death, in a brisk five minutes'
space,
And betting which knave would 'scape, which hang,
from his sort of face.

So, their Lordships toiled and moiled, and a deal of work was done 25
(I warrant) to justify the mirth of the crazy sun
As this and t' other lout, struck dumb at the sudden show
Of red robes and white wigs, boggled nor answered
"Boh!"
When asked why he, Tom Styles, should not—because Jack Nokes
Had stolen the horse—be hanged: for Judges must have their jokes, 30
And louts must make allowance—let 's say, for some blue fly
Which punctured a dewy scalp where the frizzles stuck awry—

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Else Tom had fleered scot-free, so nearly over and done

Was the main of the job. Full-measure, the gentles enjoyed their fun,

As a twenty-five were tried, rank puritans caught at prayer

In a cow-house and laid by the heels,—have at 'em, devil may care !—³⁵

And ten were prescribed the whip, and ten a brand on the cheek,

And five a slit of the nose—just leaving enough to tweak.

Well, things at jolly high-tide, amusement steeped in fire,

While noon smote fierce the roof's red tiles to heart's desire,

The Court a-simmer with smoke, one ferment of oozy flesh,⁴⁰

One spirituous humming musk mount-mounting until its mesh

Entoiled all heads in a fluster, and Serjeant Postlethwayte

—Dashing the wig oblique as he mopped his oily pate—

Cried “ Silence, or I grow grease ! No loophole lets in air ?

Jurymen,—Guilty, Death ! Gainsay me if you dare ! ”⁴⁵ —Things at this pitch, I say,—what hubbub without the doors ?

What laughs, shrieks, hoots and yells, what rudest of uproars ?

Bounce through the barrier throng a bulk comes rolling vast !

NED BRATTS

Thumps, kicks,—no manner of use!—spite of them rolls at last
Into the midst a ball which, bursting, brings to 50 view
Publican Black Ned Bratts and Tabby his big wife
too :
Both in a muck-sweat, both . . . were never such eyes uplift
At the sight of yawning hell, such nostrils—snouts that sniffed
Sulphur, such mouths a-gape ready to swallow flame !
Horried, hideous, frank fiend-faces ! yet, all the 55
same,
Mixed with a certain . . . eh ? how shall I dare style—mirth
The desperate grin of the guess that, could they break from earth,
Heaven was above, and hell might rage in impotence
Below the saved, the saved !

“Confound you ! (no offence !) 60
Out of our way,—push, wife ! Yonder their Worships be !”
Ned Bratts has reached the bar, and “Hey, my Lords,” roars he,
“A Jury of life and death, Judges the prime of the land,
Constables, javelineers,—all met, if I understand,
To decide so knotty a point as whether 't was Jack or Joan 65
Robbed the henroost, pinched the pig, hit the King's Arms with a stone, Dropped the baby down the well, left the tithesman in the lurch,

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Or, three whole Sundays running, not once attended church!

What a pothor—do these deserve the parish-
stocks or whip,

More or less brow to brand, much or little nose to snip,—

When, in our Public, plain stand we—that 's we stand here,

I and my Tab, brass-bold, brick-built of beef and beer,

—Do not we, slut? Step forth and show your beauty, jade!

Wife of my bosom—that 's the word now! What a trade

We drove! None said us nay: nobody loved his life

So little as wag a tongue against us,—did they, wife?

Yet they knew us all the while, in their hearts, for what we are

—Worst couple, rogue and quean, unhangd—
search near and far!

Eh, Tab? The pedlar, now—o'er his noggin—who warned a mate

To cut and run, nor risk his pack where its loss of weight

Was the least to dread,—aha, how we two laughed
a-good

As, stealing round the midden, he came on where I stood

With billet poised and raised,—you, ready with the rope,—

Ah, but that 's past, that 's sin repented of, we hope!

Men knew us for that same, yet safe and sound stood we!

NED BRATTS

The lily-livered knaves knew too (I 've baulked a d——) .

Our keeping the 'Pied Bull' was just a mere pretence :

Too slow the pounds make food, drink, lodging,
from out the pence !

There 's not a stoppage to travel has chanced,
this ten long year,

No break into hall or grange, no lifting of nag or
steer,

Not a single roguery, from the clipping of a purse

To the cutting of a throat, but paid us toll. Od's curse !

When Gipsy Smouch made bold to cheat us of our duc,

—Eh, Tab? the Squire's strong-box we helped the rascal to—

I think he pulled a face, next Sessions' swinging-time !

He danced the jig that needs no floor,—and, here 's
the prime,

'T was Scroggs that houghed the mare! Ay,
those were busy days !

“Well, there we flourished brave, like scripture-trees called bays,

Faring high, drinking hard, in money up to head

—Not to say, boots and shoes, when . . .
Zounds, I nearly said—

Lord, to unlearn one's language ! How shall we labour, wife ?

Have you, fast hold, the Book? Grasp, grip it, for your life !

DRAMATIC IDYLS

See, sirs, here 's life, salvation ! Here 's—hold but out my breath—

When did I speak so long without once swearing ?
'Sdeath,

No, nor unhelped by ale since man and boy !
And yet

105

All yesterday I had to keep my whistle wet
While reading Tab this Book : book ? don't say
'book'—they 're plays,

Songs, ballads and the like : here 's no such strawy blaze,

But sky wide ope, sun, moon, and seven stars out full-flare !

Tab, help and tell ! I 'm hoarse. A mug ! or —no, a prayer !

110

Dip for one out of the Book ! Who wrote it in the Jail

—He plied his pen unhelped by beer, sirs, I 'll be bail !

“ I 've got my second wind. In trundles she—that 's Tab.

‘ Why, Gammer, what 's come now, that—bobbing like a crab

On Yule-tide bowl—your head 's a-work and both your eyes

115

Break loose ? Afeard, you fool ? As if the dead can rise !

Say—Bagman Dick was found last May with fuddling-cap

Stuffed in his mouth : to choke 's a natural mishap !’

‘ Gaffer, be—blessed,’ cries she, ‘ and Bagman
Dick as well !

I, you, and he are damned : this Public is our hell :

120

NED BRATTS

We live in fire: live coals don't feel!—once quenched, they learn—Cinders do, to what dust they moulder while they burn !'

“‘If you don't speak straight out,’ says I—belike I swore—
‘A knobstick, well you know the taste of, shall,
once more,
Teach you to talk, my maid !’ She ups with such a face,
Heart sunk inside me. ‘Well, pad on, my prateapace !’ 125

“‘I 've been about those laces we need for . . .
never mind !
If henceforth they tie hands, 't is mine they 'll
have to bind.
You know who makes them best—the Tinker in our cage,
Pulled-up for gospelling, twelve years ago: no age 130
To try another trade,—yet, so he scorned to take Money he did not earn, he taught himself the make
Of laces, tagged and tough—Dick Bagman found them so !
Good customers were we ! Well, last week, you must know
His girl,—the blind young chit, who hawks about his wares,— 135
She takes it in her head to come no more—such airs
These hussies have ! Yet, since we need a stoutish lace,—
“I 'll to the jail-bird father, abuse her to his face !”
So, first I filled a jug to give me heart, and then,
Primed to the proper pitch, I posted to their den— 140

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Patmore—they style their prison ! I tip the turn-key, catch

My heart up, fix my face, and fearless lift the latch—
Both arms a-kimbo, in bounce with a good round oath

Ready for rapping out : no “ Lawks ” nor “ By my troth ! ”

“ ‘ There sat my man, the father. He looked up :
what one feels 145
When heart that leapt to mouth drops down again to heels !

He raised his hand . . . Hast seen, when drinking out the night,
And in, the day, earth grow another something quite
Under the sun’s first stare ? I stood a very stone.

“ “ “ Woman ! ” (a fiery tear he put in every tone), 150
“ How should my child frequent your house where lust is sport,
Violence—trade ? Too true ! I trust no vague report.

Her angel’s hand, which stops the sight of sin,
leaves clear

The other gate of sense, lets outrage through the ear.
What has she heard !—which, heard shall never be again. 155

Better lack food than feast, a Dives in the—wain
Or reign or train—of Charles ! ” (His language was not ours :

’T is my belief, God spoke : no tinker has such powers).

“ Bread, only bread they bring—my laces : if we broke

Your lump of leavened sin, the loaf’s first crumb would choke ! ” 160

NED BRATTS

“ ‘ Down on my marrow-bones ! Then all at once rose he :
His brown hair burst a-spread, his eyes were suns
to see :
Up went his hands : ‘ Through flesh, I reach, I read thy soul !
So may some stricken tree look blasted, bough
and bole, Champed by the fire-tooth, charred without, and yet, thrice-bound 165
With dreriment about, within may life be found,
A prisoned power to branch and blossom as before,
Could but the gardener cleave the cloister, reach
the core,
Loosen the vital sap: yet where shall help be found?
Who says ‘ How save it ? ’—nor ‘ Why cumbers it
the ground ? ’ 170
Woman, that tree art thou ! All sloughed about with scurf,
Thy stag-horns fright the sky, thy snake-roots
sting the turf !
Drunkenness, wantonness, theft, murder gnash
and gnarl
Thine outward, case thy soul with coating like the marle
Satan stamps flat upon each head beneath his hoof ! 175
And how deliver such ? The strong men keep aloof,
Lover and friend stand far, the mocking ones pass
by,
Tophet gapes wide for prey : lost soul, despair and
die !
What then ? ‘ Look unto me and be ye saved ! ’
saith God :
‘ I strike the rock, outstreats the life-stream at my rod ! 180

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Be your sins scarlet, wool shall they seem like,— although Ascrimson red, yet turn white as the driven snow!'''

“ ‘There, there, there ! All I seem to somehow understand

Is—that, if I reached home, 't was through the guiding hand

Of his blind girl which led and led me through the streets

185

And out of town and up to door again. What greets First thing my eye, as limbs recover from their swoon ?

A book—this Book she gave at parting. “Father's boon—

The Book he wrote : it reads as if he spoke himself :
He cannot preach in bonds, so,—take it down from shelf

190

When you want counsel,—think you hear his very voice !”

“ ‘Wicked dear Husband, first despair and then rejoice !

Dear wicked Husband, waste no tick of moment
more,

Be saved like me, bald trunk ! There 's greenness yet at core,

Sap under slough ! Read, read !’

“ Let me take breath, my lords ! 195

I'd like to know, are these—hers, mine, or Bunyan's words ?

I 'm 'wildered—scarce with drink,—nowise with drink alone !

You 'll say, with heat : but heat 's no stuff to split
a stone

NED BRATTS

Like this black boulder—this flint heart of mine :
the Book—

That dealt the crashing blow ! Sirs, here 's the fist that shook

His beard till Wrestler Jem howled like a justlugged bear !

You had brained me with a feather : at once I grew aware

Christian was meant for me. A burden at your back,

Good Master Christian ? Nay,—yours was that Joseph's sack,

—Or whose it was,—which held the cup,—compared with mine !

Robbery loads my loins, perjury cracks my chine,
Adultery . . . nay, Tab, you pitched me as I flung !

One word, I 'll up with fist . . . No, sweet spouse, hold your tongue !

“ I 'm hasting to the end. The Book, sirs—take and read !

You have my history in a nutshell,—ay, indeed !

It must off, my burden ! See,—slack straps and into pit,

Roll, reach the bottom, rest, rot there—a plague
on it !

For a mountain 's sure to fall and bury Bedford Town,

‘ Destruction ’—that 's the name, and fire shall burn it down !

O 'scape the wrath in time ! Time 's now, if not too late.

How can I pilgrimage up to the wicket-gate ?

Next comes Despond the slough : not that I fear to pull

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Through mud, and dry my clothes at brave House Beautiful—

But it 's late in the day, I reckon : had I left years ago

Town, wife, and children dear . . . Well, Christian did, you know !—

Soon I had met in the valley and tried my cudgel's strength 220

On the enemy horned and winged, a-straddle across its length !

Have at his horns, thwick—thwack : they snap,
see ! Hoof and hoof—

Bang, break the fetlock-bones ! For love's sake, keep aloof

Angels ! I 'm man and match,—this cudgel for my flail,—

To thresh him, hoofs and horns, bat's wing and serpent's tail ! 225

A chance gone by ! But then, what else does Hopeful ding

Into the deafest ear except—hope, hope 's the thing ?

Too late i' the day for me to thrid the windings : but There 's still a way to win the race by death's short cut ! 230

Did Master Faithful need climb the Delightful Mounts ?

No, straight to Vanity Fair,—a fair, by all accounts,
Such as is held outside,—lords, ladies, grand and gay,—

Says he in the face of them, just what you hear me say.

And the Judges brought him in guilty, and brought him out 235

To die in the market-place—St. Peter's Green 's

NED BRATTS

The same thing : there they flogged, flayed, buffeted, lanced with knives,
Pricked him with swords,—I 'll swear, he 'd full a cat's nine lives,—

So to his end at last came Faithful,—ha, ha, he !
Who holds the highest card ? for there stands hid, you see,

Behind the rabble-rout, a chariot, pair and all :
He 's in, he 's off, he 's up, through clouds, at trumpet-call,

Carried the nearest way to Heaven-gate ! Odds
my life—

Has nobody a sword to spare ? not even a knife ?
Then hang me, draw and quarter ! Tab—do the same by her !

O Master Worldly-Wiseman . . . that 's Master Interpreter,

Take the will, not the deed ! Our gibbet 's handy close :

Forestall Last Judgment-Day ! Be kindly, not morose !

There wants no earthly judge-and-jurying : here
we stand—

Sentence our guilty selves : so, hang us out of hand !

Make haste for pity's sake ! A single moment's loss

Means—Satan 's lord once more : his whisper shoots across

All singing in my heart, all praying in my brain,
'It comes of heat and beer !'—hark how he guffaws plain !

'To-morrow you 'll wake bright, and, in a safe
skin, hug

Your sound selves, Tab and you, over a foaming jug !

DRAMATIC IDYLS

You 've had such qualms before, time out of mind !' He 's right !
Did not we kick and cuff and curse away, that night
When home we blindly reeled, and left poor humpback Joe
I' the lurch to pay for what . . . somebody did,
you know !
Both of us maundered then 'Lame humpback,— never more
Will he come limping, drain his tankard at our door !
He 'll swing, while—somebody . . . ' Says
Tab, 'No, for I 'll peach !'
'I 'm for you, Tab,' cries I, 'there 's rope enough for each !'
So blubbered we, and bussed, and went to bed upon
The grace of Tab's good thought : by morning,
all was gone !
We laughed—'What 's life to him, a cripple of no account ?'
Oh, waves increase around—I feel them mount and mount !
Hang us ! To-morrow brings Tom Bearward with his bears :
One new black-muzzled brute beats Sackerson,
he swears :
(Sackerson, for my money !) And, baiting o'er,
the Brawl
They lead on Turner's Patch,—lads, lasses, up tails all,—
I 'm i' the thick o' the throng ! That means the Iron Cage,
—Means the Lost Man inside ! Where 's hope

War against light? · Light 's left, light 's here, I hold light still, 275
So does Tab—make but haste to hang us both!
You will?"

I promise, when he stopped you might have heard a mouse
Squeak, such a death-like hush sealed up the old Mote House.
But when the mass of man sank meek upon his knees,
While Tab, alongside, wheezed a hoarse "Do hang us, please!" 280
Why, then the waters rose, no eye but ran with
tears,
Hearts heaved, heads thumped, until, paying all past arrears
Of pity and sorrow, at last a regular scream out-
broke
Of triumph, joy and praise.

My Lord Chief Justice spoke,
First mopping brow and cheek, where still, for one that budged, 285
Another bead broke fresh: "What Judge, that ever judged
Since first the world began, judged such a case
as this?
Why, Master Bratts, long since, folk smelt you out, I wis!
I had my doubts, i' faith, each time you played the fox
Convicting geese of crime in yonder witness-box— 290
Yea, much did I misdoubt, the thief that stole her eggs

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Was hardly goosey's self at Reynard's game, i' feggs!

Yet thus much was to praise—you spoke to point, direct—

Swore you heard, saw the theft : no jury could suspect—

Dared to suspect,—I 'll say,—a spot in white so clear :

Goosey was throttled, true : but thereof godly fear
Came of example set, much as our laws intend ;
And, though a fox confessed, you proved the Judge's friend.

What if I had my doubts? Suppose I gave them breath,

Brought you to bar : what work to do, ere ' Guilty,
Death,'—

Had paid our pains! What heaps of witnesses to drag

From holes and corners, paid from out the County's bag!

Trial three dog-days long! Amicus Curiae—that's
Your title, no dispute—truth-telling Master Bratts!
Thank you, too, Mistress Tab! Why doubt one word you say?

Hanging you both deserve, hanged both shall be this day!

The tinker needs must be a proper man. I've heard

He lies in Jail long since : if Quality's good word Warrants me letting loose,—some householder, I mean—

Freeholder, better still,—I don't say but—between Now and next Sessions . . . Well! Consider of his case,

I promise to, at least : we owe him so much grace.
Not that—no, God forbid!—I lean to think, as you,

NED BRATTS

The grace that such repent is any jail-bird's due :
I rather see the fruit of twelve years' pious reign— 315
Astræa Redux, Charles restored his rights again !
—Of which, another time ! I somehow feel a peace Stealing across the world. May deeds like this increase !

So, Master Sheriff, stay that sentence I pronounced
On those two dozen odd : deserving to be trounced 320
Soundly, and yet . . . well, well, at all events despatch

This pair of—shall I say, sinner-saints ?—ere we catch

Their jail-distemper too. Stop tears, or I 'll indite
All weeping Bedfordshire for turning Bunyanite ! ”

So, forms were galloped through. If Justice, on the spur, 325
Proved somewhat expeditious, would Quality demur ?

And happily hanged were they,—why lengthen out my tale ?—

Where Bunyan's Statue stands facing where stood his Jail.

ECHETLOS

HERE is a story shall stir you ! Stand up, Greeks dead and gone,
Who breasted, beat Barbarians, stemmed Persia rolling on,
Did the deed and saved the world, for the day was Marathon !

No man but did his manliest, kept rank and fought away
In his tribe and file : up, back, out, down—was the spear-arm play :
Like a wind-whipt branchy wood, all spear-arms
a-swing that day !

But one man kept no rank and his sole arm plied
no spear,
As a flashing came and went, and a form i' the van, the rear,
Brightened the battle up, for he blazed now there,
now here.

Nor helmed nor shielded, he ! but, a goat-skin all his wear,
Like a tiller of the soil, with a clown's limbs broad and bare,
Went he ploughing on and on : he pushed with a ploughman's share.

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Did the weak mid-line give way, as tunnies on whom the shark

Precipitates his bulk? Did the right-wing halt when, stark

On his heap of slain lay stretched Kallimachos Polemarch?

Did the steady phalanx falter? To the rescue, at the need,

The clown was ploughing Persia, clearing Greek earth of weed,

As he routed through the Sakian and rooted up the Mede.

But the deed done, battle won,—nowhere to be descried

On the meadow, by the stream, at the marsh,— look far and wide

From the foot of the mountain, no, to the last blood-plashed seaside,—

Not anywhere on view blazed the large limbs
thonged and brown,

Shearing and clearing still with the share before which—down

To the dust went Persia's pomp, as he ploughed for Greece, that clown!

How spake the Oracle? "Care for no name at all!
Say but just this: 'We praise one helpful whom we call

The Holder of the Ploughshare.' The great deed ne'er grows small."

Not the great name! Sing—woe for the great name Míltiadés

And its end at Paros isle! Woe for Themistokles —Satrap in Sardis court! Name not the clown like these!

CLIVE

I AND Clive were friends—and why not? Friends!

I think you laugh, my lad.

Clive it was gave England India, while your father gives—egad,

England nothing but the graceless boy who lures
him on to speak—

“Well, Sir, you and Clive were comrades—” with a tongue thrust in your cheek!

Very true: in my eyes, your eyes, all the world’s eyes, Clive was man,

I was, am and ever shall be—mouse, nay, mouse
of all its clan

Sorriest sample, if you take the kitchen’s estimate for fame;

While the man Clive—he fought Plassy, spoiled
the clever foreign game,

Conquered and annexed and Englished!

Never mind! As o’er my punch (You away) I sit of evenings,—silence, save for biscuit-crunch,

Black, unbroken,—thought grows busy, thrids
each pathway of old years,

Notes this forthright, that meander, till the long-past life appears

Like an outspread map of country plodded
through, each mile and rood,

Once, and well remembered still: I’m startled in my solitude

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Ever and anon by—what 's the sudden mocking light that breaks 15
On me as I slap the table till no rummer-glass
but shakes
While I ask—aloud, I do believe, God help me!—
“Was it thus?
Can it be that so I faltered, stopped when just one step for us—” (Us,—you were not born, I grant, but surely some day born would be) “—One bold step had gained a province” (figurative talk, you see) 20 “Got no end of wealth and honour,—yet I stood stock still no less?”
—“For I was not Clive,” you comment: but it needs no Clive to guess Wealth were handy, honour ticklish, did no writing on the wall Warn me “Trespasser, 'ware man-traps!” Him who braves that notice—call Hero! none of such heroics suit myself who read plain words, 25
Doff my hat, and leap no barrier. Scripture says
the land 's the Lord's :
Louts then—what avail the thousand, noisy in a smock-frocked ring,
All-agog to have me trespass, clear the fence, be Clive their king?
Higher warrant must you show me ere I set one foot before T'other in that dark direction, though I stand for evermore 30
Poor as Job and meek as Moses. Evermore?
No! By-and-by Job grows rich and Moses valiant, Clive turns out less wise than I.

CLIVE

Don't object "Why call him friend, then?"

Power is power, my boy, and still

Marks a man,—God's gift magnific, exercised for good or ill.

You've your boot now on my hearth-rug, tread
what was a tiger's skin :

35

Rarely such a royal monster as I lodged the bullet in !

True, he murdered half a village, so his own death
came to pass ;

Still, for size and beauty, cunning, courage—ah,
the brute he was !

Why, that Clive,—that youth, that greenhorn, that quill-driving clerk, in fine,—

He sustained a siege in Arcot. . . But the world knows ! Pass the wine.

40

Where did I break off at ? How bring Clive in ?

Oh, you mentioned "fear" !

Just so : and, said I, that minds me of a story
you shall hear.

We were friends then, Clive and I : so, when the clouds, about the orb

Late supreme, encroaching slowly, surely, threatened to absorb

Ray by ray its noontide brilliance,—friendship might, with steadier eye

45

Drawing near, bear what had burned else, now no blaze—all majesty.

Too much bee's-wing floats my figure ? Well, suppose a castle's new :

None presume to climb its ramparts, none find foothold sure for shoe

'Twixt those squares and squares of granite plating
the impervious pile

DRAMATIC IDYLS

As his scale-mail's warty iron cuirasses a crocodile. 50
Reels that castle thunder-smitten, storm-dismantled? From without Scrambling up by crack and crevice, every cockney prates about Towers—the heap he kicks now! turrets—just the measure of his cane!
Will that do? Observe moreover—(same similitude again)—
Such a castle seldom crumbles by sheer stress of cannonade: 55
'T is when foes are foiled and fighting 's finished that vile rains invade, Grass o'ergrows, o'ergrows till night-birds congregating find no holes Fit to build in like the topmost sockets made for banner-poles.
So Clive crumbled slow in London—crashed at last.

A week before,
Dining with him,—after trying churchyard-chat of days of yore,— 60
Both of us stopped, tired as tombstones, headpiece, foot-piece, when they lean Each to other, drowsed in fog-smoke, o'er a coffined Past between.
As I saw his head sink heavy, guessed the soul's extinguishment
By the glazing eyeball, noticed how the furtive fingers went
Where a drug-box skulked behind the honest liquor,—“One more throw 65 Try for Clive!” thought I: “Let 's venture some good rattling question!” So—

CLIVE

“Come, Clive, tell us”—out I blurted—“what to tell in turn, years hence,

When my boy—suppose I have one—asks me on what evidence

I maintain my friend of Plassy proved a warrior
every whit

Worth your Alexanders, Cæsars, Marlboroughs and—what said Pitt?—

Frederick the Fierce himself! Clive told me once”—I want to say—

“Which feat out of all those famous doings bore
the bell away

—In his own calm estimation, mark you, not the mob’s rough guess—

Which stood foremost as evincing what Clive called courageousness!

Come! what moment of the minute, what speckcentre in the wide

Circle of the action saw your mortal fairly deified?
(Let alone that filthy sleep-stuff, swallow bold this wholesome Port!)

If a friend has leave to question,—when were you most brave, in short?”

Up he arched his brows o’ the instant—formidably
Clive again.

“When was I most brave? I’d answer, were the instance half as plain

As another instance that ’s a brain-lodged crystal
—curse it!—here

Freezing when my memory touches—ugh!—the time I felt most fear.

Ugh! I cannot say for certain if I showed fear—
anyhow,

Fear I felt, and, very likely, shuddered, since I shiver now.”

DRAMATIC IDÿLS

“Fear!” smiled I. “Well, that ’s the rarer :
that ’s a specimen to seek,
Ticket up in one’s museum, Mind-Freaks, Lord
Clive’s Fear, Unique!” 85

Down his brows dropped. On the table painfully he pored as though Tracing, in the stains and streaks there, thoughts .
encrusted long ago.
When he spoke ’t was like a lawyer reading word
by word some will,
Some blind jungle of a statement,—beating on and on until 90
Out there leaps fierce life to fight with.

“This fell in my factor-days.
Desk-drudge, slaving at St. David’s, one must game, or drink, or craze.
I chose gaming : and,—because your high-flown gamesters hardly take Umbrage at a factor’s elbow if the factor pays his stake,—
I was winked at in a circle where the company was choice, 95
Captain This and Major That, men high of colour,
loud of voice,
Yet indulgent, condescending to the modest juvenile Who not merely risked but lost his hard-earned guineas with a smile.

“Down I sat to cards, one evening,—had for my antagonist
Somebody whose name ’s a secret—you ’ll know
why—so, if you list, 100
Call him Cock o’ the Walk, my scarlet son of Mars from head to heel!

CLIVE

Play commenced ; and, whether Cocky fancied that a clerk must feel Quite sufficient honour came of bending over one green baize,
I the scribe with him the warrior,—guessed no penman dared to raise Shadow of objection should the honour stay but playing end 105
More or less abruptly,—whether disinclined he grew to spend
Practice strictly scientific on a booby born to stare
At—not ask of—lace-and-ruffles if the hand they hide plays fair,—
Anyhow, I marked a movement when he bade me
‘Cut !’

“ I rose.
‘Such the new manœuvre, Captain? I ’m a novice : knowledge grows. 110
What, you force a card, you cheat, Sir?’

“ Never did a thunder-clap Cause emotion, startle Thyrsis locked with Chloe
in his lap,
As my word and gesture (down I flung my cards to join the pack)
Fired the man of arms, whose visage, simply red before, turned black.

When he found his voice, he stammered ‘That expression once again !’ 115

“ ‘ Well, you forced a card and cheated !’

“ ‘ Possibly a factor’s brain,
Busied with his all-important balance of accounts,
may deem

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Weighing words superfluous trouble : cheat to clerkly ears may seem

Just the joke for friends to venture : but we are not friends, you see !

When a gentleman is joked with,—if he 's good at repartee,

He rejoins, as do I—Sirrah, on your knees, withdraw in full !

Beg my pardon, or be sure a kindly bullet through your skull

Lets in light and teaches manners to what brain
it finds ! Choose quick—

Have your life snuffed out or, kneeling, pray me trim yon candle-wick !

“ ‘ Well, you cheated ! ’

“ Then outbroke a howl from all the friends around.

To his feet sprang each in fury, fists were clenched and teeth were ground.

‘ End it ! no time like the present ! Captain, yours were our disgrace !

No delay, begin and finish ! Stand back, leave the pair a space !

Let civilians be instructed : henceforth simply ply
the pen,

Fly the sword ! This clerk 's no swordsman ?
Suit him with a pistol, then !

Even odds ! A dozen paces 'twixt the most and least expert

Make a dwarf a giant's equal : nay, the dwarf, if he 's alert,

Likelier hits the broader target !

“ Up we stood accordingly.
As they handed me the weapon, such was my soul's thirst to try

CLIVE

Then and there conclusions with this bully, tread
on and stamp out 135
Every spark of his existence, that,—crept close to,
curled about
By that toying tempting teasing fool-forefinger's middle joint,— Don't you guess?—the trigger yielded. Gone my chance! and at the point
Of such prime success moreover: scarce an inch above his head
Went my ball to hit the wainscot. He was living,
I was dead. 140

“Up he marched in flaming triumph—'t was his right, mind!—up, within Just an arm's length. ‘Now, my clerkling,’ chuckled Cocky with a grin
As the levelled piece quite touched me. ‘Now,
Sir Counting-House, repeat
That expression which I told you proved bad manners! Did I cheat?’

“‘Cheat you did, you knew you cheated, and,
this moment, know as well. 145
As for me, my homely breeding bids you—fire and go to Hell!’

“Twice the muzzle touched my forehead. Heavy barrel, flurried wrist, Either spoils a steady lifting. Thrice: then,
‘Laugh at Hell who list,
I can't! God's no fable either. Did this boy's eye wink once? No!
There's no standing him and Hell and God all three against me,—so, 150
I did cheat!’

DRAMATIC IDYLS

“ And down he threw the pistol, out rushed—by the door
Possibly, but, as for knowledge if by chimney,
roof or floor,
He effected disappearance—I ’ll engage no glance was sent
That way by a single starrer, such a blank astonishment
Swallowed up their senses : as for speaking—mute they stood as mice. 155

“ Mute not long, though ! Such reaction, such a hubbub in a trice !
‘ Rogue and rascal ! Who ’d have thought it ?
What ’s to be expected next,
When His Majesty’s Commission serves a sharper as pretext
For . . . But where ’s the need of wasting time now ? Nought requires delay :
Punishment the Service cries for : let disgrace be wiped away 160
Publicly, in good broad daylight ! Resignation ?
No, indeed !
Drum and fife must play the Rogue’s March,
rank and file be free to speed Tardy marching on the rogue’s part by appliance in the rear
—Kicks administered shall right this wronged civilian,—never fear, Mister Clive, for—though a clerk—you bore yourself—suppose we say— 165
Just as would beseem a soldier !’

“ ‘ Gentlemen, attention—pray !
First, one word !’

Ventured "Can it be the youngster blundered, really seemed to mark

Some irregular proceeding? We conjecture in Guess at random,—still, for sake of fair play—

what if for a freak, 175

In a fit of absence,—such things have been !—if and the priest ?

Yet he spared me ! You eleven ! Whosoever,
all or each,

To the disadvantage of the man who spared me,
utters speech 180

—To his face, behind his back,—that speaker
has to do with me :

Me who promise, if positions change and mine
the chance should be,

Not to imitate your friend and waive advantage !'

"Twenty-five Years ago this matter happened : and 't is certain," added Clive,

DRAMATIC IDYLS

“Never, to my knowledge, did Sir Cocky have a single breath 185
Breathed against him : lips were closed throughout his life, or since his death,
For if he be dead or living I can tell no more than
you.
All I know is—Cocky had one chance more ;
how he used it,—grew Out of such unlucky habits, or relapsed, and back again
Brought the late-ejected devil with a score more in his train,— 190
That 's for you to judge. Reprieval I procured, at any rate.
Ugh—the memory of that minute's fear makes gooseflesh rise ! Why prate Longer ? You 've my story, there 's your instance : fear I did, you see !”

“Well”—I hardly kept from laughing—“if I see it, thanks must be Wholly to your Lordship's candour. Not that—in a common case— 195
When a bully caught at cheating thrusts a pistol
in one's face,
I should underrate, believe me, such a trial to the nerve !
'T is no joke, at one-and-twenty, for a youth to stand nor swerve.
Fear I naturally look for—unless, of all men alive,
I am forced to make exception when I come to Robert Clive. 200
Since at Arcot, Plassy, elsewhere, he and death
—the whole world knows—Came to somewhat closer quarters.”

CLIVE

Quarters? Had we come to blows, Clive and I, you had not wondered—up he sprang so, out he rapped
Such a round of oaths—no matter! I'll endeavour to adapt
To our modern usage words he—well, 't was friendly licence—flung 205
At me like so many fire-balls, fast as he could wag his tongue.

“You—a soldier? You—at Plassy? Yours the faculty to nick Instantaneously occasion when your foe, if lightning-quick,
—At his mercy, at his malice,—has you, through some stupid inch Undefended in your bulwark? Thus laid open,
—not to flinch 210
—That needs courage, you'll concede me. Then, look here! Suppose the man,
Checking his advance, his weapon still extended,
not a span
Distant from my temple,—curse him!—quietly had bade me ‘There!’
Keep your life, calumniator!—worthless life I freely spare:
Mine you freely would have taken—murdered me
and my good fame 215 Both at once—and all the better! Go, and thank your own bad aim Which permits me to forgive you!’ What if, with such words as these,
He had cast away his weapon? How should I have borne me, please?
Nay, I'll spare you pains and tell you. This,
and only this, remained—

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Pick his weapon up and use it on myself. I so had gained 220
Sleep the earlier, leaving England probably to pay on still Rent and taxes for half India, tenant at the Frenchman's will."

"Such the turn," said I, "the matter takes with you? Then I abate
—No, by not one jot nor tittle,—of your act my estimate.

Fear—I wish I could detect there : courage fronts me, plain enough— 225
Call it desperation, madness—never mind ! for here 's in rough

Why, had mine been such a trial, fear had overcome disgrace.

True, disgrace were hard to bear : but such a rush against God's face

—None of that for me, Lord Plassy, since I go to church at times,

Say the creed my mother taught me ! Many years in foreign climes 230

Rub some marks away—not all, though ! We poor sinners reach life's brink, Overlook what rolls beneath it, recklessly enough,
but think

There 's advantage in what 's left us—ground to stand on, time to call

'Lord, have mercy !' ere we topple over—do not leap, that 's all !"

Oh, he made no answer,—re-absorbed into his cloud. I caught 235 Something like "Yes—courage : only fools will call it fear."

If aught

CLIVE

Comfort you, my great unhappy hero Clive, in that I heard,

Next week, how your own hand dealt you doom,
and uttered just the word

“Fearfully courageous!”—this, be sure, and nothing else I groaned.

I 'm no Clive, nor parson either : Clive's worst deed—we 'll hope condoned.

MULÉYKEH

If a stranger passed the tent of Hóseyn, he cried
“A churl’s!”

Or haply “God help the man who has neither salt
nor bread!”

—“Nay,” would a friend exclaim, “he needs nor pity nor scorn

More than who spends small thought on the shore-
sand, picking pearls,

—Holds but in light esteem the seed-sort, bears instead

On his breast a moon-like prize, some orb which of night makes morn.

“What if no flocks and herds enrich the son of Sinán?

They went when his tribe was mulct, ten thousand camels the due,

Blood-value paid perforce for a murder done of old.

‘God gave them, let them go! But never since time began,

Muléykeh, peerless mare, owned master the match
of you,

And you are my prize, my Pearl: I laugh at men’s land and gold!’

“So in the pride of his soul laughs Hóseyn—and right, I say.

Do the ten steeds run a race of glory? Outstripping all,

Ever Muléykeh stands first steed at the victor’s staff.

MULÉYKEH

Who started, the owner's hope, gets shamed and named, that day.

'Silence,' or, last but one, is 'The Cuffed,' as we use to call

Whom the paddock's lord thrusts forth. Right, Hóseyn, I say, to laugh!"

"Boasts he Muléykeh the Pearl?" the stranger replies: "Be sure

On him I waste nor scorn nor pity, but lavish both ²⁰
On Duhl the son of Sheybán, who withers away in heart

For envy of Hóseyn's luck. Such sickness admits no cure.

A certain poet has sung, and sealed the same with an oath,

'For the vulgar—flocks and herds! The Pearl is a prize apart.'"

Lo, Duhl the son of Sheybán comes riding to Hóseyn's tent, ²⁵
And he casts his saddle down, and enters and
"Peace!" bids he.

"You are poor, I know the cause: my plenty shall mend the wrong.

'T is said of your Pearl—the price of a hundred camels spent

In her purchase were scarce ill paid: such prudence is far from me

Who proffer a thousand. Speak! Long parley ³⁰ may last too long."

Said Hóseyn "You feed young beasts a many, of famous breed,

Slit-eared, unblemished, fat, true offspring of Múzennem:

DRAMATIC IDYLS

There stumbles no weak-eyed she in the line as it climbs the hill.

But I love Muléykeh's face : her forefront whitens
indeed

Like a yellowish wave's cream-crest. Your camels —go gaze on them !

Her fetlock is foam-splashed too. Myself am the richer still."

35

A year goes by : lo, back to the tent again rides Duhl.

" You are open-hearted, ay—moist-handed, a very prince.

Why should I speak of sale? Be the mare your simple gift !

My son is pined to death for her beauty : my wife prompts ' Fool,

Beg for his sake the Pearl! Be God the rewarder, since

40

God pays debts seven for one : who squanders on Him shows thrift.' "

Said Hóseyn " God gives each man one life, like a lamp, then gives

That lamp due measure of oil : lamp lighted—hold high, wave wide

Its comfort for others to share ! once quench it, what help is left ?

The oil of your lamp is your son : I shine while Muléykeh lives.

45

Would I beg your son to cheer my dark if Muléykeh died ?

It is life against life : what good avails to the lifebereft ? "

Another year, and—hist ! What craft is it Duhl designs ?

MULÉYKEH

He alights not at the door of the tent as he did last time, 50
But, creeping behind, he gropes his stealthy way
by the trench
Half-round till he finds the flap in the folding, for night combines
With the robber—and such is he : Duhl, covetous
up to crime,
Must wring from Hóseyn's grasp the Pearl, by whatever the wrench.

“He was hunger-bitten, I heard : I tempted with half my store, 55
And a gibe was all my thanks. Is he generous like Spring dew ?
Account the fault to me who chaffered with such an one !
He has killed, to feast chance comers, the creature
he rode : nay, more—
For a couple of singing-girls his robe has he torn in two :
I will beg ! Yet I nowise gained by the tale of my wife and son. 60

“I swear by the Holy House, my head will I never wash
Till I filch his Pearl away. Fair dealing I tried, then guile,
And now I resort to force. He said we must live or die :
Let him die, then,—let me live ! Be bold—but not too rash !
I have found me a peeping-place : breast, bury your breathing while 65
I explore for myself ! Now, breathe ! He deceived me not, the spy !

DRAMATIC IDYLS

"As he said—there lies in peace Hóseyn—how happy! Beside Stands tethered the Pearl: thrice winds her headstall about his wrist:

'T is therefore he sleeps so sound—the moon through the roof reveals.

And, loose on his left, stands too that other, known far and wide,

Buhéyseh, her sister born: fleet is she yet ever missed

70

The winning tail's fire-flash a-stream past the thunderous heels.

"No less she stands saddled and bridled, this second, in case some thief

Should enter and seize and fly with the first, as I mean to do.

What then? The Pearl is the Pearl: once mount her we both escape."

75

Through the skirt-fold in glides Duhl,—so a serpent disturbs no leaf

In a bush as he parts the twigs entwining a nest: clean through,

He is noiselessly at his work: as he planned, he performs the rape.

He has set the tent-door wide, has buckled the girth, has clipped

The headstall away from the wrist he leaves thrice bound as before,

80

He springs on the Pearl, is launched on the desert like bolt from bow.

Up starts our plundered man: from his breast though the heart be ripped,

Yet his mind has the mastery: behold, in a minute more,

MULÉYKEH

He is out and off and away on Buhéyseh, whose worth we know!

And Hóseyn—his blood turns flame, he has learned long since to ride,
And Buhéyseh does her part,—they gain—they 85
are gaining fast
On the fugitive pair, and Duhl has Ed-Dárraj to ‘ cross and quit,
And to reach the ridge El-Sabán,—no safety till that be spied !
And Buhéyseh is, bound by bound, but a horse-length off at last,
For the Pearl has missed the tap of the heel, the 90
touch of the bit.

She shortens her stride, she chafes at her rider
the strange and queer :
Buhéyseh is mad with hope—beat sister she shall and must,
Though Duhl, of the hand and heel so clumsy,
she has to thank.
She is near now, nose by tail—they are neck by croup—joy ! fear !
What folly makes Hóseyn shout “ Dog Duhl,
Damned son of the Dust, 95
Touch the right ear and press with your foot my

And Duhl was wise at the word, and Muléykeh
as prompt perceived
Who was urging redoubled pace, and to hear him was to obey,
And a leap indeed gave she, and vanished for
evermore.
And Hóseyn looked one long last look as who,
all bereaved, 100

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Looks, fain to follow the dead so far as the living may :

Then he turned Buhéyseh's neck slow homeward, weeping sore.

And, lo, in the sunrise, still sat Hóseyn upon the ground

Weeping : and neighbours came, the tribesmen, of Bénu-Asád

In the vale of green Er-Rass, and they questioned him of his grief ; 105

And he told from first to last how, serpent-like,
Duhl had wound

His way to the nest, and how Duhl rode like an ape, so bad !

And how Buhéyseh did wonders, yet Pearl remained with the thief.

And they jeered him, one and all : "Poor
Hóseyn is crazed past hope !

How else had he wrought himself his ruin, in fortune's spite ? 110

To have simply held the tongue were a task for a boy or girl,

And here were Muléykeh again, the eyed like an antelope,

The child of his heart by day, the wife of his breast by night !"—

"And the beaten in speed !" wept Hóseyn :
"You never have loved my Pearl."

PIETRO OF ABANO

Petrus Aponensis—there was a magician !
When that strange adventure happened, which I mean to tell my hearers,
Nearly had he tried all trades—beside physician,
Architect, astronomer, astrologer,—or worse :
How else, as the old books warrant, was he able, 5
All at once, through all the world, to prove the promptest of appearers
Where was prince to cure, tower to build as high as Babel,
Star to name or sky-sign read,—yet pouch, for pains, a curse ?

—Curse : for when a vagrant,—foot-sore, travel-
tattered,
Now a young man, now an old man, Turk or Arab,
Jew or Gipsy,— 10
Proffered folk in passing—O for pay, what mattered ?—
“ I ’ll be doctor, I ’ll play builder, star I ’ll name
—sign read ! ”
Soon as prince was cured, tower built, and fate predicted,
“ Who may you be ? ” came the question, when he answered “ Petrus ipse, ” “ Just as we divined ! ” cried folk—“ A wretch convicted 15
Long ago of dealing with the devil—you indeed ! ”

DRAMATIC IDYLS

So, they cursed him roundly,, all his labour's payment,
Motioned him—the convalescent prince would—
to vacate the presence :
Babylonians plucked his beard and tore his raiment, Drove him from that tower he built : while, had he peered at stars, 20
Town howled “ Stone the quack who styles our Dog-star—Sirius ! ” 2 Country yelled “ Aroint the churl who prophesies
we take no pleasance
Under vine and fig-tree, since the year 's delirious,
Bears no crop of any kind,—all through the planet Mars ! ”

Straightway would the whilom youngster grow a grisard, 25
Or, as case might hap, the hoary eld drop off and show a stripling.
Town and country groaned—indebted to a wizard !
“ Curse—nay, kick and cuff him—fit requital of his pains !
Gratitude in word or deed were wasted truly !
Rather make the Church amends by crying out on, cramping, crippling 30
One who, on pretence of serving man, serves duly Man's arch foe : not ours, be sure, but Satan's—his the gains ! ”

Peter grinned and bore it, such disgraceful usage :
Somehow, cuffs and kicks and curses seem ordained his like to suffer :
Prophet's pay with Christians, now as in the Jews'
age, 35
Still is—stoning : so, he meekly took his wage and went,

PIETRO OF ABANO

—Safe again was found ensconced in those old quarters,
Padua's blackest blindest by-street,—none the worse, nay, somewhat tougher :
“Calculating,” quoth he, “soon I join the martyrs, Since, who magnify my lore on burning me are bent.”¹

40

Therefore, on a certain evening, to his alley
Peter slunk, all bruised and broken, sore in body,
sick in spirit,
Just escaped from Cairo where he launched a galley Needing neither sails nor oars nor help of wind or tide,
—Needing but the fume of fire to set a-flying 45
Wheels like mad which whirled you quick—North,
South, where'er you pleased require it,—
That is—would have done so had not priests come prying,
Broke his engine up and bastinadoed him beside.

As he reached his lodging, stopped there unmolestled, (Neighbours feared him, urchins fled him, few were bold enough to follow) 50
While his fumbling fingers tried the lock and tested
Once again the queer key's virtue, oped the sullen
door,—

¹ “Studiando le mie cifre col compasso,
Rilevo che sarò presto sotterra,
Perchè del mio saper si fa gran chiasso,
E gl'ignoranti m' hanno mosso guerra.”

Said to have been found in a well at Abano in the last century. They were extemporaneously Englished thus: not as Father Prout chose to prefer them:—

Studying my ciphers with the compass,
I reckon—I soon shall be below-ground ;
Because of my lore folk make great rumpus,
And war on myself makes each dull rogue round.

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Someone plucked his sleeve, cried "Master, pray your pardon !
Grant a word to me who patient wait you in your archway's hollow !
Hard on you men's hearts are : be not your heart
hard on 55
Me who kiss your garment's hem, O Lord of magic lore !

"Mage—say I, who no less, scorning tittle-tattle,
To the vulgar give no credence when they prate
of Peter's magic,
Deem his art brews tempest, hurts the crops and cattle,
Hinders fowls from laying eggs and worms from spinning silk, 60
Rides upon a he-goat, mounts at need a broomstick :
While the price he pays for this (so turns to comic what was tragic)
Is—he may not drink—dreads like the Day of Doom's tick—
One poor drop of sustenance ordained mere men
—that 's milk !

"Tell such tales to Padua ! Think me no such dullard ! 65
Not from these benighted parts did I derive my breath and being !
I am from a land whose cloudless skies are coloured Livelier, suns orb largelier, airs seem incense,— while, on earth—
What, instead of grass, our fingers and our thumbs
cull,
Proves true moly ! sounds and sights there help
the body's hearing, seeing, 70

PIETRO OF ABANO

Till the soul grows godlike : brief,—you front no numbscull

Shaming by ineptitude the Greece that gave him
birth !

“ Mark within my eye its iris mystic-lettered—
That 's my name ! and note my ear—its swan-shaped cavity, my emblem !

Mine 's the swan-like nature born to fly unfettered 75
Over land and sea in search of knowledge—food for song.

Art denied the vulgar ! Geese grow fat on barley, Swans require ethereal provend, undesirous to resemble 'em—

Soar to seek Apollo,—favoured with a parley
Such as, Master, you grant me—who will not hold you long. 80

“ Leave to learn to sing—for that your swan petitions :

Master, who possess the secret, say not nay to such a suitor !

All I ask is—bless mine, purest of ambitions !
Grant me leave to make my kind wise, free, and happy ! How ?

Just by making me—as you are mine—their model ! 85
Geese have goose-thoughts : make a swan their teacher first, then co-adjutor,—

Let him introduce swan-notions to each noddle,— Geese will soon grow swans, and men become what I am now !

“ That 's the only magic—had but fools discernment, Could they probe and pass into the solid through the soft and seeming ! 90

Teach me such true magic—now and no adjournment !

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Teach your art of making fools subserve the man of mind !

Magic is the power we men:of mind should practise,
Draw fools to become our drudges, docile henceforth, never dreaming—

While they do our hests for fancied gain—the fact is 95
What they toil and moil to get proves falsehood :
truth 's behind !

“ See now ! you conceive some fabric—say, a mansion

Meet for monarch's pride and pleasure : this is truth—a thought has fired you,

Made you fain to give some cramped concept expansion,

Put your faculty to proof, fulfil your nature's task. 100

First you fascinate the monarch's self : he fancies
He it was devised the scheme you execute as he inspired you :

He in turn sets slaving insignificances

Toiling, moiling till your structure stands there—all you ask !

“ Soon the monarch 's known for what he was—a ninny : 105

Soon the rabble-rout leave labour, take their workday wage and vanish :

Soon the late puffed bladder, pricked, shows lank and skinny—

‘ Who was its inflator ? ’ ask we, ‘ whose the giant lungs ? ’

Petri en pulmones ! What though men prove in-grates ?

Let them—so they stop at crucifixion—buffet, ban and banish ! 110

PIETRO OF ABANO

Peter's power 's apparent : human praise—its din
grates
Harsh as blame on ear unused to aught save angels' tongues.

“Ay, there have been always, since our world existed,
Mages who possessed the secret—needed but to stand still, fix eye
On the foolish mortal : straight was he enlisted 115 Soldier, scholar, servant, slave—no matter for the style !
Only through illusion ; ever what seemed profit—
Love or lucre—justified obedience to the Ipse
dixi :
Work done—palace reared from pavement up to soffit—
Was it strange if builders smelt out cheating all the while ? 120

“Let them pelt and pound, bruise, bray you in a mortar !
What 's the odds to you who seek reward of quite another nature ?
You 've enrolled your name where sages of your sort are,
—Michael of Constantinople, Hans of Halberstadt !
Nay and were you nameless, still you 've your conviction 125
You it was and only you—what signifies the nomenclature ?—
Ruled the world in fact, though how you ruled be fiction
Fit for fools : true wisdom's magic you—if e'er man—had 't !

DRAMATIC IDYLS

“ But perhaps you ask me ‘ Since each ignoramus

While he profits by such magic persecutes the benefactor, 130

What should I expect but—once I render famous
You as Michael, Hans and Peter—just one ingrate
more ?

If the vulgar prove thus, whatsoe’er the pelf be,
Pouched through my beneficence—and doom me dungeoned, chained, or racked, or Fairly burned outright—how grateful will yourself be 135

When, his secret gained, you match your—master
just before ? ’

“ That ’s where I await you ! Please, revert a little !

What do folk report about you if not this—which,
though chimeric,

Still, as figurative, suits you to a tittle—

That,—although the elements obey your nod and wink, 140

Fades or flowers the herb you chance to smile or sigh at,

While your frown bids earth quake palled by obscuratation atmospheric,—

Brief, although through nature nought resists
your fiat,

There ’s yet one poor substance mocks you—milk
you may not drink !

“ Figurative language ! Take my explanation ! 145

Fame with fear, and hate with homage, these your art procures in plenty.

All ’s but daily dry bread : what makes moist the ration ?

PIETRO OF ABANO

Love, the milk that sweetens man his meal—alas,
you lack :

I am he who, since he fears you not, can love
you.

Love is born of heart not mind, *de corde natus hand
de mente ;* 150

Touch my heart and love 's yours, sure as shines above you

Sun by day and star by night though earth should go to wrack !

“Stage by stage you lift me—kiss by kiss I hallow Whose but your dear hand my helper, punctual
as at each new impulse

I approach my aim ? Shell chipped, the eaglet callow 155

Needs a parent's pinion-push to quit the eyrie's edge :

But once fairly launched forth, denizen of æther,
While each effort sunward bids the blood more freely through each limb pulse,

Sure the parent feels, as gay they soar together, Fully are all pains repaid when love redeems its pledge !” 160

Then did Peter's tristful visage lighten somewhat, Vent a watery smile as though inveterate mistrust were thawing.

“Well, who knows ?” he slow broke silence.

“Mortals—come what

Come there may—are still the dupes of hope there 's luck in store.

Many scholars seek me, promise mounts and marvels : 165

Here stand I to witness how they step 'twixt me and clapperclawing !

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Dry bread,—that I've gained me : truly I should starve else :

But of milk, no drop was mine ! Well, shuffle cards once more !”

At the word of promise thus implied, our stranger—
What can he but cast his arms, in rapture of embrace, round Peter ?

170

“ Hold ! I choke !” the mage grunts. “ Shall I in the manger

Any longer play the dog ? Approach, my calf, and feed !

Bene . . . won't you wait for grace ?” But sudden incense

Wool-white, serpent-solid, curled up—perfume growing sweet and sweeter

Till it reached the young man's nose and seemed to win sense

175

Soul and all from out his brain through nostril :
yes, indeed !

Presently the young man rubbed his eyes. “ Where am I ?

Too much bother over books ! Some reverie has proved amusing,

What did Peter prate of ? 'Faith, my brow is clammy !

How my head throbs, how my heart thumps !
Can it be I swooned ?

180

Oh, I spoke my speech out—cribbed from Plato's tractate,

Dosed him with 'the Fair and Good,' swore—Dog of Egypt—I was choosing

Plato's way to serve men ! What 's the hour ?
Exact eight !

Home now, and to-morrow never mind how Plato mooned !

PIETRO OF ABANO

“Peter has the secret! Fair and Good are products (So he said) of Foul and Evil : one must bring to pass the other. 185

Just as poisons grow drugs, steal through sundry odd ducts

Doctors name, and ultimately issue safe and changed.

You'd abolish poisons, treat disease with dainties Such as suit the sound and sane? With all such kickshaws vain you pother! 190

Arsenic's the stuff puts force into the faint eyes, Opium sets the brain to rights—by cark and care deranged.

“What, he's safe within door?—would escape—
no question—

Thanks, since thanks and more I owe, and mean to pay in time befitting.

What most presses now is—after night's digestion, 195
Peter, of thy precepts!—promptest practice of the same.

Let me see! The wise man, first of all, scorns riches :

But to scorn them must obtain them : none believes in his permitting

Gold to lie ungathered : who picks up, then pitches Gold away—philosophizes : none disputes his claim. 200

“So with worldly honours : 't is by abdicating, Incontestably he proves he could have kept the crown discarded.

Sulla cuts a figure, leaving off dictating : Simpletons laud private life? ‘The grapes are sour,’ laugh we.

DRAMATIC IDYLS

So, again—but why continue? All 's tumultuous ²⁰⁵ Here: my head's a-whirl with knowledge. Speedily shall be rewarded

He who taught me! Greeks prove ingrates? So insult you us?

When your teaching bears its first-fruits, Peter—wait and see!"

As the word, the deed proved; ere a brief year's passage,

Fop—that fool he made the jokes on—now he made the jokes for, gratis:

Hunks—that hoarder, long left lonely in his crass age— ²¹⁰

Found now one appreciative deferential friend:
Powder-paint-and-patch, Hag Jezebel—recovered,
Strange to say, the power to please, get courtship
till she cried Jam satis!

Fop be-flattered, Hunks be-friended, Hag beloved— ²¹⁵

Nobody o'erlooked, save God—he soon attained his end.

As he lounged at ease one morning in his villa, (Hag's the dowry) estimated (Hunks' bequest) his coin in coffer,

Mused on how a fool's good word (Fop's word)
could fill a

Social circle with his praise, promote him man of mark,— ²²⁰

All at once—"An old friend fain would see your Highness!"

There stood Peter, skeleton and scarecrow, plain writ Phi-lo-so-pher

In the woe-worn face—for yellowness and dryness, Parchment—with a pair of eyes—one hope their feeble spark.

PIETRO OF ABANO

“Did I counsel rightly? Have you, in accordance, ²²⁵ Prospered greatly, dear my pupil? Sure, at just the stage I find you,
When your hand may draw me forth from the mad war-dance
Savages are leading round your master—down,
not dead.
Padua wants to burn me : baulk them, let me linger Life out—rueful though its remnant—hid in some safe hole behind you ! ²³⁰
Prostrate here I lie : quick, help with but a finger Lest I house in safety's self—a tombstone o'er my head !

“Lodging, bite and sup, with—now and then—a copper
—Alms for any poorer still, if such there be,—is all my asking.
Take me for your bedesman,—nay, if you think proper, ²³⁵
Menial merely,—such my perfect passion for repose !
Yes, from out your plenty Peter craves a pittance
—Leave to thaw his frozen hands before the fire
whereat you 're basking !
Double though your debt were, grant this boon—remittance
He proclaims of obligation: 'tis himself that owes!” ²⁴⁰

“Venerated Master—can it be, such treatment Learning meets with, magic fails to guard you from, by all appearance?
Strange ! for, as you entered,—what the famous feat meant,
I was full of,—why you reared that fabric, Padua's boast.

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Nowise for man's pride, man's pleasure, did you slyly 245
Raise it, but man's seat of rule whereby the world should soon have clearance
(Happy world) from such a rout as now so vilely Handles you—and hampers me, for which I grieve
the most.

“Since if it got wind you now were my familiar,
How could I protect you—nay, defend myself against the rabble? 250
Wait until the mob, now masters, willy-nilly are Servants as they should be : then has gratitude full play!
Surely this experience shows how unbecoming
'T is that minds like mine should rot in ease and plenty. Geese may gabble, Gorge, and keep the ground : but swans are soon
for quitting 255
Earthly fare—as fain would I, your swan, if taught
the way.

“Teach me, then, to rule men, have them at my pleasure !
Solely for their good, of course,—impart a secret
worth rewarding,
Since the proper life's-prize ! Tantalus's treasure Aught beside proves, vanishes and leaves no trace at all. 260
Wait awhile, nor press for payment prematurely !
Over-haste defrauds you. Thanks ! since,—even while I speak,—discarding Sloth and vain delights, I learn how—swiftly, surely—
Magic sways the sceptre, wears the crown and wields the ball !

PIETRO OF ABANO

"Gone again—what, is he? 'Faith, he 's soon
disposed of! 265

Peter's precepts work already, put within my lump their heaven!

Ay, we needs must don glove would we pluck the rose—doff

Silken garment would we climb the tree and take its fruit.

Why sharp thorn, rough rind? To keep unviolated Either prize! We garland us, we mount from earth to feast in heaven, 270

Just because exist what once we estimated Hindrances which, better taught, as helps we now compute.

"Foolishly I turned disgusted from my fellows!
Pits of ignorance—to fill, and heaps of prejudice
—to level—

Multitudes in motley, whites and blacks and yellows— 275

What a hopeless task it seemed to discipline the host!

Now I see my error. Vices act like virtues —Not alone because they guard—sharp thorns—
the rose we first dishevel,

Not because they scrape, scratch—rough rind—
through the dirt-shoes

Bare feet cling to bole with, while the half-mooned boot we boast. 280

"No, my aim is nobler, more disinterested!
Man shall keep what seemed to thwart him, since it proves his true assistance,
Leads to ascertaining which head is the best head,
Would he crown his body, rule its members—
lawless else.

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Ignorant the horse stares, by deficient vision 285
Takes a man to be a monster, lets him mount,
then, twice the distance
Horse could trot unriden, gallops—dream
Elysian!—
Dreaming that his dwarfish guide 's a giant,— jockeys tell 's."

Brief, so worked the spell, he promptly had a riddance :
Heart and brain no longer felt the pricks which passed for conscience-scruples : 290 Free henceforth his feet,—Per Bacco, how they did dance
Merrily through lets and checks that stopped the way before !
Politics the prize now,—such adroit adviser,
Opportune suggester, with the tact that triples and quadruples
Merit in each measure,—never did the Kaiser 295 Boast a subject such a statesman, friend, and something more !

As he, up and down, one noonday, paced his closet
—Council o'er, each spark (his hint) blown flame,
by colleagues' breath applauded, Strokes of statecraft hailed with "Salomo si nôsset !"

(His the nostrum)—every throw for luck come double-six,— 300

As he, pacing, hugged himself in satisfaction,
Thump—the door went. "What, the Kaiser?
By none else were I defrauded
Thus of well-earned solace. Since 't is fate's exaction,—

Enter, Liege my Lord ! Ha, Peter, you here ?
Teneor vix !"

PIETRO OF ABANO

“Ah, Sir, none the less, contain you, nor wax irate ! 305
You so lofty, I so lowly,—vast the space which yawns between us !

Still, methinks, you—more than ever—at a high rate

Needs must prize poor Peter’s secret since it lifts you thus.

Grant me now the boon whereat before you boggled !

Ten long years your march has moved—one triumph—(though e’s short)—hactenus, 310

While I down and down disastrously have joggled
Till I pitch against Death’s door, the true Nec
Ultra Plus.

“Years ago—some ten ’t is—since I sought for shelter,

Craved in your whole house a closet, out of all your means a comfort.

Now you soar above these : as is gold to spelter 315

So is power—you urged with reason—paramount to wealth.

Power you boast in plenty : let it grant me refuge !

Houseroom now is out of question : find for me
some stronghold—some fort—

Privacy wherein, immured, shall this blind deaf huge

Monster of a mob let stay the soul I’d save by stealth ! 320

“Ay, for all too much with magic have I tampered !

—Lost the world, and gained, I fear, a certain place I’m to describe loth !

Still, if prayer and fasting tame the pride long pampered,

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Mercy may be mine : amendment never comes too late.

How can I amend beset by cursers, kickers ? 325

Pluck this brand from out the burning ! Once away, I take my Bible-oath,

Never more—so long as life's weak lamp-flame
flickers—

No, not once I 'll tease you, but in silence bear
my fate ! ”

“ Gently, good my Genius, Oracle unerring !

Strange now ! can you guess on what—as in you peeped—it was I pondered ? 330

You and I are both of one mind in preferring Power to wealth, but—here 's the point—what sort of power, I ask ?

Ruling men is vulgar, easy and ignoble :

Rid yourself of conscience, quick you have at beck and call the fond herd.

But who wields the crozier, down may fling the crow-bill : 335

That 's the power I covet now ; soul 's sway o'er souls—my task !

“ ‘ Well but, ’ you object, ‘ you have it, who by glamour

Dress up lies to look like truths, mask folly in the garb of reason :

Your soul acts on theirs, sure, when the people
clamour,

Hold their peace, now fight now fondle,—ear-wigged through the brains. ’ 340

Possibly ! but still the operation 's mundane, Grosser than a taste demands which—craving manna—kecks at peason—

PIETRO OF ABANO

Power o'er men by wants material : why should one deign
Rule by sordid hopes and fears—a grunt for all one's pains ?

“ No, if men must praise me, let them praise to purpose !
Would 'we move the world, not earth but heaven 345
must be our fulcrum—pou sto !
Thus I seek to move it : Master, why interpose—Baulk my climbing close on what 's the ladder's topmost round ?
Statecraft 't is I step from : when by priestcraft hoisted
Up to where my foot may touch the highest rung which fate allows toe,
Then indeed ask favour ! On you shall be foisted 350
No excuse : I 'll pay my debt, each penny of the pound !

“ Ho, my knaves without there ! Lead this worthy downstairs !
No farewell, good Paul—nay, Peter—what 's
your name remembered rightly ?
Come, he 's humble : out another would have flounced—airs 355
Suitors often give themselves when our sort bow them forth.
Did I touch his rags ? He surely kept his distance :
Yet, there somehow passed to me from him—
where'er the virtue might lie—
Something that inspires my soul—Oh, by assistance Doubtlessly of Peter !—still, he 's worth just what he 's worth ! 360

DRAMATIC IDYLS

"'T is my own soul soars now : soaring—how?
By crawling !

I 'll to Rome, before Rome's feet the temporal-supreme lay prostrate !

' Hands ' (I 'll say) ' proficient once in pulling,
hauling

This and that way men as I was minded—feet
now clasp ! '

Ay, the Kaiser's self has wrung them in his fervour !

Now—they only sue to slave for Rome, nor at one doit the cost rate. 365

Rome's adopted child—no bone, no muscle, nerve or

Sinew of me but I 'll strain, though out my life
I gasp ! "

As he stood one evening proudly—(he had traversed

Rome on horseback—peerless pageant !—claimed the Lateran as new Pope)— 370

Thinking " All 's attained now ! Pontiff ! Who could have erst

Dreamed of my advance so far when, some ten years ago,

I embraced devotion, grew from priest to bishop, Gained the Purple, bribed the Conclave, got the

Two-thirds, saw my coop ope, Came out—what Rome hails me ! O were there a wish-shop, 375

Not one wish more would I purchase—lord of all below !

" Ha !—who dares intrude now—puts aside the arras ?

PIETRO OF ABANO

What, old Peter, here again, at such a time, in such a presence?

Satan sends this plague back merely to embarrass
Me who enter on my office—little needing you! 380
'Faith, I 'm touched myself by age, but you look Tithon!

Were it vain to seek of you the sole prize left—rejuvenescence?

Well, since flesh is grass which Time must lay his scythe on,
Say your say and sodepart and make no moreado!"

Peter faltered—coughing first by way of prologue— 385

"Holiness, your help comes late : a death at ninety little matters.

Padua, build poor Peter's pyre now, on log roll log, Burn away—I 've lived my day! Yet here 's the sting in death—

I 've an author's pride : I want my Book's survival :
See, I 've hid it in my breast to warm me mid the rags and tatters! 390

Save it—tell next age your Master had no rival!
Scholar's debt discharged in full, be 'Thanks'
my latest breath!"

"Faugh, the frowsy bundle—scribblings harumscarum

Scattered o'er a dozen sheepskins! What 's the name of this farrago?

Ha—' Conciliator Differentiarum '— 395

Man and book may burn together, cause the world
no loss!

Stop—what else? A tractate—eh, ' De Speciebus Cereemonialis Ma-gi-æ? ' I dream sure! Hence, away, go,

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Wizard,—quick avoid me! Vain you clasp my knee, buss
Hand that bears the Fisher's ring or foot that boasts the Cross! 400

“Help! The old magician clings like an octopus!
Ah, you rise now—fuming, fretting, frowning, if
I read your features!
Frown, who cares? We're Pope—once Pope, you can't unpope us!
Good—you muster up a smile: that's better!
Still so brisk?
All at once grown youthful? But the case is plain! Ass— 405
Here I dally with the fiend, yet know the Word
—compels all creatures
Earthly, heavenly, hellish. Apaga, Sathanas!
Dicam verbum Salomonis—” “—dicite!” When—whisk!—

What was changed? The stranger gave his eyes
a rubbing:
There smiled Peter's face turned back a moment at him o'er the shoulder, 410
As the black door shut, bang! “So he 'scapes
a drubbing!” (Quoth a boy who, unespied, had stopped to hear the talk).
“That's the way to thank these wizards when they bid men Benedicite! What ails you? You, a man, and yet no bolder?
Foreign Sir, you look but foolish!” “Idmen,
idmen!” 415
Groaned the Greek. “O Peter, cheese at last I know from chalk!”

PIETRO OF ABANO

Peter lived his life out, menaced yet no martyr, Knew himself the mighty man he was—such knowledge all his guerdon,
Left the world a big book—people but in part err
When they style a true Scientiæ Com-pen-di-um : 420
“ Admirationem incutit ” they sourly Smile, as fast they shut the folio which myself was somehow spurred on
Once to ope : but love—life’s milk which daily,
hourly,
Blockheads lap—O Peter, still thy taste of love’s to come !

Greek, was your ambition likewise doomed to failure ? 425
True, I find no record you wore purple, walked with axe and fasces, Played some antipope’s part : still, friend, don’t turn tail, you’re Certain, with but these two gifts, to gain earth’s prize in time !
Cleverness uncurbed by conscience—if you ransacked
Peter’s book you’d find no potent spell like these to rule the masses ; 430
Nor should want example, had I not to transact
Other business. Go your ways, you’ll thrive !
So ends my rhyme.

When these parts Tiberius,—not yet Cæsar,— travelled,
Passing Padua, he consulted Padua’s Oracle of Geryon
(God three-headed, thrice wise) just to get unravelled 435

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Certain tangles of his future. “Fling at Abano Golden dice,” it answered: “dropt within the fount there,

Note what sum the pips present !” And still we see each die, the very one,

Turn up, through the crystal,—read the whole account there

Where ’t is told by Suetonius,—each its highest throw.

'440

Scarce the sportive fancy-dice I fling show “Venus :”

Still—for love of that dear land which I so oft n dreams revisit—

I have—oh, not sung! but lilted (as—between us—Grows my lazy custom) this its legend. What the lilt?

DOCTOR —

A RABBI told me : On the day allowed Satan for carping at God's rule, he came,
Fresh from our earth, to brave the angel-crowd.

“What is the fault now?” “This I find to blame :
Many and various are the tongues below, 5
Yet all agree in one speech, all proclaim

“‘Hell has no might to match what earth can show :
Death is the strongest-born of Hell, and yet
Stronger than Death is a Bad Wife, we know.’

“Is it a wonder if I fume and fret— 10
Robbed of my rights, since Death am I, and mine
The style of Strongest? Men pay Nature's debt

“Because they must at my demand ; decline
To pay it henceforth surely men will please,
Provided husbands with bad wives combine 15

“To baffle Death. Judge between me and these!”
“Thyself shalt judge. Descend to earth in shape
Of mortal, marry, drain from froth to lees

“The bitter draught, then see if thou escape
Concluding, with men sorrowful and sage, 20
A Bad Wife's strength Death's self in vain would ape !”

DRAMATIC IDYLS

How Satan entered on his pilgrimage,
Conformed himself to earthly ordinance,
Wived and played husband well from youth to age

Intrepidly—I leave untold, advance 25
Through many a married year until I reach
A day when—of his father's countenance

The very image, like him too in speech
As well as thought and deed,—the union's fruit Attained maturity. "I needs must teach 30

"My son a trade : but trade, such son to suit,
Needs seeking after. He a man of war ?
Too cowardly ! A lawyer wins repute—

"Having to toil and moil, though—both which are Beyond this sluggard. There's Divinity : 35
No, that's my own bread-winner—that be far

"From my poor offspring ! Physic ? Ha, we'll try
If this be practicable. Where's my wit ?
Asleep?—since, now I come to think. . . . Ay, ay !

"Hither, my son ! Exactly have I hit 40
On a profession for thee. Medicus— Behold, thou art appointed ! Yea, I spit

"Upon thine eyes, bestow a virtue thus
That henceforth not this human form I wear
Shalt thou perceive alone, but—one of us 45

"By privilege—thy fleshly sight shall bear
Me in my spirit-person as I walk
The world and take my prey appointed there.

DOCTOR —

“ Doctor once dubbed—what ignorance shall baulk
Thy march triumphant? Diagnose the gout 50
As cholic, and prescribe it cheese for chalk—

“ No matter ! All 's one : cure shall come about
And win thee wealth—fees paid with such a roar
Of thanks and praise alike from lord and lout

“ As never stunned man's ears on earth before. 55
‘ How may this be ? ’ Why, that 's my sceptic !
Soon
Truth will corrupt thee, soon thou doubt'st no
more !

“ Why is it I bestow on thee the boon
Of recognizing me the while I go
Invisibly among men, morning, noon 60

“ And night, from house to house, and—quick or slow—
Take my appointed prey ? They summon thee
For help, suppose : obey the summons ! so !

“ Enter, look round ! Where 's Death ? Know—
I am he,
Satan who work all evil : I who bring 65
Pain to the patient in whate'er degree.

“ I, then, am there : first glance thine eye shall fling
Will find me—whether distant or at hand,
As I am free to do my spiriting.

“ At such mere first glance thou shalt understand 70
, Wherefore I reach no higher up the room
Than door or window, when my form is scanned.

DRAMATIC IDYLS

"Howe'er friends' faces please to gather gloom,
Bent o'er the sick,—howe'er himself desponds,—
In such case Death is not the sufferer's doom. 75

"Contrariwise, do friends rejoice my bonds
Are broken, does the captive in his turn Crow 'Life shall conquer'? Nip these foolish fronds

"Of hope a-sprout, if haply thou discern
Me at the head—my victim's head, be sure ! 80 Forth now! This taught thee, little else to learn!"

And forth he went. Folk heard him ask demure
"How do you style this ailment? (There he peeps, My father, through the arras!) Sirs, the cure

"Is plain as A. B. C. ! Experience steeps 85 Blossoms of pennyroyal half an hour
In sherris. Sumat !—Lo, how sound he sleeps—

"The subject you presumed was past the power Of Galen to relieve !" Or else "How 's this ?
Why call for help so tardily? Clouds lour 90

"Portentously indeed, Sirs ! (Nought 's amiss :
He 's at the bed-foot merely.) Still, the storm
May pass averted—not by quacks, I wis

"Like you, my masters ! You, forsooth, perform
A miracle? Stand, sciolists, aside ! 95
Blood, ne'er so cold, at ignorance grows warm !"

Which boasting by result was justified,
Big as might words be : whether drugged or left Drugless, the patient always lived, not died.

DOCTOR —

Great the heir's gratitude, so nigh bereft 100
Of all he prized in this world : sweet the smile
Of disconcerted rivals : "Cure?—say, theft

"From Nature in despite of Art—so style
This off-hand kill-or-cure work ! You did much,
I had done more : folk cannot wait awhile !" 105

But did the case change ? was it—"Scarcely such
The symptoms as to warrant our recourse
To your skill, Doctor ! Yet since just a touch

"Of pulse, a taste of breath, has all the force
With you of long investigation claimed 110
By others,—tracks an ailment to its source

"Intuitively,—may we ask unblamed
What from this pimple you prognosticate ?"
"Death !" was the answer, as he saw and named

The coucher by the sick man's head. "Too late 115
You send for my assistance. I am bold
Only by Nature's leave, and bow to Fate !

"Besides, you have my rivals : lavish gold !
How comfortably quick shall life depart
Cosseted by attentions manifold ! 120

"One day, one hour ago, perchance my art
Had done some service. Since you have yourselves
Chosen—before the horse—to put the cart,

"Why, Sirs, the sooner that the sexton delves
Your patient's grave, the better ! How you stare 125
—Shallow, for all the deep books on your shelves !

DRAMATIC IDYLS

"Fare you well, fumblers!" Do I need declare
What name and fame, what riches recompensed
The Doctor's practice? Never anywhere

Such an adept as daily evidenced 130
Each new vaticination! Oh, not he Like dolts who dallied with their scruples, fenced

With subterfuge, nor gave out frank and free Something decisive! If he said "I save
The patient," saved he was: if "Death will be" 135

"His portion," you might count him dead.
Thus brave,
Behold our worthy, sans competitor
Throughout the country, on the architrave

Of Glory's temple golden-lettered for Machaon redivivus! So, it fell 140
That, of a sudden, when the Emperor

Was smit by sore disease, I need not tell
If any other Doctor's aid was sought
To come and forthwith make the sick Prince well.

"He will reward thee as a monarch ought. 145
Not much imports the malady; but then,
He clings to life and cries like one distraught

"For thee—who, from a simple citizen,
Mayst look to rise in rank,—nay, haply wear
A medal with his portrait,—always when 150

"Recovery is quite accomplished. There!
Pass to the presence!" Hardly has he crossed
The chamber's threshold when he halts, aware

DOCTOR —

Of who stands sentry by the head. All 's lost.
"Sire, nought avails my art : you near the goal, 155
And end the race by giving up the ghost."

"How?" cried the monarch : "Names upon your roll
Of half my subjects rescued by your skill—
Old and young, rich and poor—crowd cheek by jowl

"And yet no room for mine? Be saved I will! 160
Why else am I earth's foremost potentate?
Add me to these and take as fee your fill

"Of gold—that point admits of no debate Between us : save me, as you can and must,— Gold, till your gown's pouch cracks beneath the weight!" 165

This touched the Doctor. "Truly a home-thrust, Parent, you will not parry! Have I dared Entreat that you forego the meal of dust

"—Man that is snake's meat—when I saw prepared
Your daily portion? Never! Just this once, 170
Go from his head, then,—let his life be spared!"

Whisper met whisper in the gruff response
"Fool, I must have my prey : no inch I budge
From where thou see'st me thus myself ensconce."

"Ah," moaned the sufferer, "by thy look I judge 175
Wealth fails to tempt thee : what if honours prove More efficacious? Nought to him I grudge

"Who saves me. Only keep my head above
The cloud that 's creeping round it—I 'll divide My empire with thee! No? What 's left but—love? 180

DRAMATIC IDYLS

"Does love allure thee? Well then, take as bride
My only daughter, fair beyond belief!
Save me—to-morrow shall the knot be tied!"

"Father, you hear him! Respite ne'er so brief
Is all I beg: go now and come again 185
Next day, for aught I care: respect the grief

"Mine will be if thy first-born sues in vain!"
"Fool, I must have my prey!" was all he got In answer. But a fancy crossed his brain.

"I have it! Sire, methinks a meteor shot 190
Just now across the heavens and neutralized
Jove's salutary influence: 'neath the blot

"Plumb are you placed now: well that I surmised
The cause of failure! Knaves, reverse the bed!"
"Stay!" groaned the monarch, "I shall be capsized— 195

"Jolt—jolt—my heels uplift where late my head
Was lying—sure I 'm turned right round at last!
What do you say now, Doctor?" Nought he said:

For why? With one brisk leap the Antic passed
From couch-foot back to pillow,—as before, 200
Lord of the situation. Long aghast

The Doctor gazed, then "Yet one trial more
Is left me" inwardly he uttered. "Shame,
Upon thy flinty heart! Do I implore

"This trifling favour in the idle name 205
Of mercy to the moribund? I plead
The cause of all thou dost affect: my aim

DOCTOR —

“ Befits my author ! Why would I succeed ?
Simply that by success I may promote
The growth of thy pet virtues—pride and greed. 210

“ But keep thy favours !—curse thee ! I devote Henceforth my service to the other side.
No time to lose : the rattle ’s in his throat.

“ So,—not to leave one last resource untried,—
Run to my house with all haste, somebody ! 215
Bring me that knobstick thence, so often plied

“ With profit by the astrologer—shall I Disdain its help, the mystic Jacob’s-Staff ?
Sire, do but have the courage not to die

“ Till this arrive ! Let none of you dare laugh ! 220
Though rugged its exterior, I have seen
That implement work wonders, send the chaff

“ Quick and thick flying from the wheat—I mean,
By metaphor, a human sheaf it thrashed
Flail-like. Go fetch it ! Or—a word between 225

“ Just you and me, friend !—go bid, unabashed,
My mother, whom you ’ll find there, bring the stick Herself—herself, mind ! ” Out the lackey dashed

Zealous upon the errand. Craft and trick
Are meat and drink to Satan : and he grinned 230
—How else ?—at an excuse so politic

For failure : scarce would Jacob’s-Staff rescind Fate’s firm decree ! And ever as he neared
The agonizing one, his breath like wind

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Froze to the marrow, while his eye-flash seared 235
Sense in the brain up : closelier and more close Pressing his prey, when at the door appeared

—Who but his Wife the Bad ? Whereof one dose,
One grain, one mite of the medicament,
Sufficed him. Up he sprang. One word, too gross 240

To soil my lips with,—and through ceiling went Somehow the Husband. “That a storm’s dispersed
We know for certain by the sulphury scent !

“Hail to the Doctor ! Who but one so versed
In all Dame Nature’s secrets had prescribed 245
The staff thus opportunely ? Style him first

“And foremost of physicians !” “I’ve imbibed Elixir surely,” smiled the prince,—“have gained
New lease of life. Dear Doctor, how you bribed

“Death to forego me, boots not : you’ve obtained 250
My daughter and her dowry. Death, I’ve heard,
Was still on earth the strongest power that reigned,

“Except a Bad Wife !” Whereunto demurred Nowise the Doctor, so refused the fee
—No dowry, no bad wife !

“You think absurd 255
This tale?”—the Rabbi added : “True, our Talmud
Boasts sundry such : yet—have our elders erred
In thinking there’s some water there, not all mud ?”
I tell it, as the Rabbi told it me.

PAN AND LUNA

Si credere dignum est.—Georgic. iii. 390.

“O WORTHY of belief I hold it was,
Virgil, your legend in those strange three lines !
No question, that adventure came to pass
One black night in Arcadia : yes, the pines,
Mountains and valleys mingling made one mass 5
Of black with void black heaven : the earth's confines,
The sky's embrace,—below, above, around,
All hardened into black without a bound.

Fill up a swart stone chalice to the brim
With fresh-squeezed yet fast-thickening poppy-juice : 10
See how the sluggish jelly, late a-swim,
Turns marble to the touch of who would loose
The solid smooth, grown jet from rim to rim,
By turning round the bowl ! So night can fuse
Earth with her all-comprising sky. No less, 15
Light, the least spark, shows air and emptiness.

And thus it proved when—diving into space,
Stript of all vapour, from each web of mist
Utterly film-free—entered on her race
The naked Moon, full-orbed antagonist 20
Of night and dark, night's dowry : peak to base,
Upstart mountains, and each valley, kissed
To sudden life, lay silver-bright : in air
Flew she revealed, Maid-Moon with limbs all bare.

DRAMATIC IDYLS

Still as she fled, each depth — where refuge seemed— 25
Opening a lone pale chamber, left distinct
Those limbs: mid still-retreating blue, she teemed
Herself with whiteness,—virginal, uncinct
By any halo save what finely gleamed
To outline not disguise her : heaven was linked 30
In one accord with earth to quaff the joy,
Drain beauty to the dregs without alloy.

Whereof she grew aware. What help? When, lo,
A succourable cloud with sleep lay dense :
Some pine-tree-top had caught it sailing slow, 35
And tethered for a prize : in evidence
Captive lay fleece on fleece of piled-up snow
Drowsily patient : flake-heaped how or whence,
The structure of that succourable cloud,
What matter? Shamed she plunged into its shroud. 40

Orbed—so the woman-figure poets call
Because of rounds on rounds—that apple-shaped Head which its hair binds close into a ball
Each side the curving ears—that pure undraped
Pout of the sister paps—that . . . Once for all, 45
Say—her consummate circle thus escaped
With its innumerable circlets, sank absorbed,
Safe in the cloud—O naked Moon full-orbed !

But what means this? The downy swathes combine,
Conglobe, the smothery coy-caressing stuff 50
Curdles about her ! Vain each twist and twine
Those lithe limbs try, encroached on by a fluff
Fitting as close as fits the dented spine
Its flexile ivory outside-flesh : enough !
The plumy drifts contract, condense, constringe, 55
Till she is swallowed by the feathery springe.

PAN AND LUNA

As when a pearl slips lost in the thin foam
Churned on a sea-shore, and, o'er-frothed, conceits
Herself safe-housed in Amphitrite's dome,— If, through the bladdery wave-worked yeast, she meets 60
What most she loathes and leaps from,—elf from gnome
No gladder,—finds that safest of retreats
Bubble about a treacherous hand wide ope
To grasp her—(divers who pick pearls so grope)—

So lay this Maid-Moon clasped around and caught 65
By rough red Pan, the god of all that tract :
He it was schemed the snare thus subtly wrought
With simulated earth-breath,—wool-tufts packed
Into a billowy wrappage. Sheep far-sought
For spotless shearings yield such : take the fact 70
As learned Virgil gives it,—how the breed
Whitens itself for ever : yes, indeed !

If one forefather ram, though pure as chalk
From tinge on fleece, should still display a tongue
Black 'neath the beast's moist palate, prompt men baulk 75
The propagating plague : he gets no young :
They rather slay him,—sell his hide to caulk Ships with, first steeped in pitch,—nor hands are wrung
In sorrow for his fate : protected thus,
The purity we love is gained for us. 80

So did Girl-moon, by just her attribute
Of unmatched modesty betrayed, lie trapped,
Bruised to the breast of Pan, half-god half-brute,
Raked by his bristly boar-sward while he lapped

DRAMATIC IDYLS

—Never say, kissed her ! that were to pollute 85
Love's language—which moreover proves unapt
To tell how she recoiled—as who finds thorns Where she sought flowers—when, feeling, she touched—horns !

Then—does the legend say ?—first moon-eclipse
Happened, first swooning-fit which puzzled sore 90
The early sages ? Is that why she dips
Into the dark, a minute and no more,
Only so long as serves her while she rips
The cloud's womb through and, faultless as before,
Pursues her way ? No lesson for a maid 95
Left she, a maid herself thus trapped, betrayed ?

Ha, Virgil ? Tell the rest, you ! “To the deep
Of his domain the wildwood, Pan forthwith
Called her, and so she followed”—in her sleep,
Surely ?—“by no means spurning him.” The myth 100 Explain who may ! Let all else go, I keep —As of a ruin just a monolith—
Thus much, one verse of five words, each a boon :
Arcadia, night, a cloud, Pan, and the moon.

“TOUCH him ne'er so lightly, into song he broke :
Soil so quick-receptive,—not one feather-seed,
Not one flower-dust fell but straight its fall awoke
Vitalizing virtue : song would song succeed
Sudden as spontaneous—prove a poet-soul !”

Indeed ? 5

Rock's the song-soil rather, surface hard and bare :
Sun and dew their mildness, storm and frost their rage
Vainly both expend,—few flowers awaken there :
Quiet in its cleft broods—what the after age
Knows and names a pine, a nation's heritage. 10

ADDITIONAL POEMS

"OH LOVE, LOVE"

OH Love, Love, thou that from the eyes diffusest
Yearning, and on the soul sweet grace inducest—
Souls against whom thy hostile march is made—
Never to me be manifest in ire,
Nor, out of time and tune, my peace invade !
Since neither from the fire—
No, nor the stars—is launched a bolt more mighty
Than that of Aphrodité Hurled from the hands of Love, the boy with Zeus for sire.

Idly, how idly, by the Alpheian river
And in the Pythian shrines of Phœbus, quiver
Blood-offerings from the bull, which Hellas heaps :
While Love we worship not—the Lord of men !
Worship not him, the very key who keeps
Of Aphrodité, when She closes up her dearest chamber-portals :
—Love, when he comes to mortals,
Wide-wasting, through those deeps of woes beyond the deep.

VERSES FROM "THE HOUR WILL COME"

THE blind man to the maiden said,
"O thou of hearts the truest,
Thy countenance is hid from me ;
Let not my question anger thee !
Speak, though in words the fewest.

"Tell me, what kind of eyes are thine ?
Dark eyes, or light ones rather ?"
"My eyes are a decided brown—
So much at least, by looking down,
From the brook's glass I gather."

"And is it red—thy little mouth ?
That too the blind must care for."
"Ah ! I would tell it soon to thee,
Only—none yet has told it me,
I cannot answer, therefore.

"But dost thou ask what heart I have—
There hesitate I never.
In thine own breast 't is borne, and so
'T is thine in weal, and thine in woe,
For life, for death—thine ever !"

GOLDONI

GOLDONI—good, gay, sunniest of souls—
• Glassing half Venice in that verse of thine—
What though it just reflect the shade and shine
Of common life, nor render, as it rolls,
Grandeur and gloom? Sufficient for thy shoals
Was Carnival : Parini's depths enshrine Secrets unsuited to that opaline
Surface of things which laughs along thy scrolls.
There throng the people: how they come and go,
Lisp the soft language, flaunt the bright garb—
see—
On Piazza, Calle, under Portico
And over Bridge! Dear king of Comedy,
Be honoured! Thou that didst love Venice so,
Venice, and we who love her, all love thee!

HELEN'S TOWER

(Written at the request of the Marquis of Dufferin)

WHO hears of Helen's Tower, may dream perchance
How the Greek beauty from the Scaean gate
Gazed on old friends unanimous in hate,
Death-doom'd because of her fair countenance.
Hearts would leap otherwise at thy advance,
Lady, to whom this tower is consecrate !
Like hers, thy face once made all eyes elate,
Yet, unlike hers, was bless'd by every glance.
The Tower of Hate is outworn, far and strange :
A transitory shame of long ago,
It dies into the sand from which it sprang ;
But thine, Love's rock-built Tower, shall fear no
change :
God's self laid stable earth's foundations so,
When all the morning stars together sang.

THE FOUNDER OF THE FEAST

(To Arthur Chappell)

"ENTER my palace," if a prince should say—
"Feast with the Painters! See, in bounteous row,
They range from Titian up to Angelo!"
Could we be silent at the rich survey?
A host so kindly, in as great a way
Invites to banquet, substitutes for show
Sound that 's diviner still, and bids us know
Bach like Beethoven; are we thankless, pray?
Thanks, then, to Arthur Chappell,—thanks to him
Whose every guest henceforth not idly vaunts,
"Sense has received the utmost Nature grants,
My cup was filled with rapture to the brim,
When, night by night—ah, memory, how it haunts!—
Music was poured by perfect ministrants,
By Halle, Schumann, Piatti, Joachim."

THE NAMES

(To Shakespeare)

SHAKESPEARE!—to such name's sounding what succeeds

Fitly as silence? Falter forth the spell,—

Act follows word, the speaker knows full well,
Nor tampers with its magic more than needs.

Two names there are : That which the Hebrew reads

With his soul only : if from lips it fell,

Echo, back thundered by earth, heaven and hell,
Would own "Thou did'st create us!" Nought impedes

We voice the other name, man's most of might,

Awesomely, lovingly : let awe and love
Mutely await their working, leave to sight

All of the issue as—below—above—

Shakespeare's creation rises : one remove,
Though dread—this finite from that infinite.

WHY I AM A LIBERAL

“WHY?” Because all I haply can and do,
All that I am now, all I hope to be—
Whence comes it save from fortune setting free
Body and soul the purpose to pursue,
God traced for both? If fetters, not a few,
Of prejudice, convention, fall from me,
These shall I bid men—each in his degree
Also God-guided—bear, and gaily too?

But little do or can the best of us :
That little is achieved through Liberty.
Who, then, dares hold—emancipated thus—
His fellow shall continue bound? Not I
Who live, love, labour freely, nor discuss A brother's right to freedom. That is “Why.”
